Josie Mansfield Goes, Too, A New Planet Swims In, A Millionaire Baby, Rats Cured of Cancer.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE FRENCH have a saying "Tout passe, tout casse, tout lasse."

"Everything passes, everything breaks, everything becomes wearisome."

Jim Fisk, Wall street gambler, friend of Bill Tweed, admired Josie Mansfield. Ed Stokes, who ran the Hoffman House, with the large picture of undressed ladies by Bouguereau in the barroom, after he came out of jail, shot Fisk dead in the Grand Hotel on Broadway. Visitors, for years, were shown the bullet marks on the marble staircase.

Fisk died, Stokes died, the Grand Hotel was torn down, the Hoffman House was torn down, Bouguereau's "Diana in the Bath" went somewhere else. Josie lived on. Now she is dead and buried.

PROF. PICKERING, whose playthings are the nebulae, stars and planets, has found an interesting "new" object in space. No human eye has seen it, but its existence, size and weight are proved by its effect on the planet Uranus.

The new heavenly giant, called "Planet P," has a diameter of 44,000 miles, whereas our Earth is only 8,000 miles through. Its distance from the sun varies from five to nine billion miles. That variation is due to the shape of the ellipse in which it travels, something like the shape of an egg.

PLANET P IS 95 times as far from the sun as we are, and whereas we go around the sun once in 365 days, Planet P requires 656 of our years for one of its years. If you reached three score and 10 on that planet you would be 45,920 years old.

Perhaps we shall go there some day, while traveling from one to another of the "many mansions" and live as long as that.

MITCHEL REYNOLDS, 3rd, 15 months old, inherits from his great-grandmother, Mrs. Sorg, $1,785,415. When he gets it, with interest, at 21, he will have about $3,500,000.

How would you prepare a young baby to receive three and a half millions at the age of 21, in such a way as to prevent his being made a fool by money and by sycophants?

DR. BORIS SOKOLOFF, of St. Louis, proves to the Pasteur Institute in Paris that lactic acid can be useful against cancer.

Twenty-seven per cent of cancerous rats were completely cured by injections of lactic acid and cancerous growth arrested in the remaining 73 per cent.

The value of lactic acid and the energetic lacti bacilli is not fully appreciated. Doctors should experiment with the introduction of lactic bacilli directly into the lower intestinal tract, instead of relying on the bacilli to find their way safely through the destructive juices of the stomach, into the duodenum, and onward.

RUSSIA HAS been sending troops close to the Chinese territory in which Japan is making herself at home. Now Japan sends troops to "the area of the Russians in Northern Manchuria."

Japan wishes "to protect her railway workers," and Russia has an excuse as good. Ordinarily this would sound like a war. But you can't tell what the strange Bolsheviki will do. When you expect them to shoot they may begin a Russian dance with boots on and embrace their brothers, the Japanese.

It seems improbable that Russia would risk fatal interference with her five-year plan for the pleasure of fighting Japan. But if war does come, Japan will find a Russia unlike that she pushed over so easily in the days of the feeble czar and corrupt grand dukes.

BERLIN REPORTS that:

Russia calls "astounding impudence" Japan's demand that Russian soldiers be kept away from the border. If trouble comes, Russia will find Japan capable of things more astounding than that.

GOLD CONTINUES traveling from the United States to France. Four million dollars' worth went on the ship Albert Ballin, bound for Paris, yesterday.

The French request, and get gold in United States gold coin. Frenchmen like to collect these, that they may have real money.

France has two and a half billions in gold, more in proportion to wealth and population than any other nation in the world, but does not coin or distribute any of it. She never before had so much, and keeps it in solid lumps.

IT MAY COMFORT you, watching gold going from here to Paris, to learn that it is coming to us from weaker countries, South America, China and even India, where Britain made a foolish, ineffectual effort to enforce the gold standard.

India has on the way here $3,250,000 in gold, the first of

NAN BRITTON AT TOLEDO

Defense Rests Case In $50,000 Suit Of Nan Britton

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The defense rested today in the trial of the $50,000 libel suit of Nan Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," against C. A. Klunk, Marion (O.) hotel keeper.

Counsel for Klunk had just completed reading to the jury Miss Britton's book which said the late President Warren G. Harding was the father of her daughter, Elizabeth Ann, now 12.

Miss Britton sued Klunk on the charges that he circulated another book, "The Answer to the President's Daughter," which she said defamed her character.

Reading by defense counsel from Miss Britton's book disclosed her assertion that letters received by her from President Harding while he was United States senator, were from one to 60 pages long; also that he had characterized both his letters and those he received from the plaintiff as compared to nothing but "French love letters." The senator had suggested, the book states, that all communications between them be destroyed.

ASSERTIONS ASSAILED

In "The Answer to the President's Daughter," written by Joseph De Barthe, Marion, O., now deceased, as a defense of President Harding, and the offending book in the present case growing out of its alleged libelous contents, the assertion of Nan Britton that she had clandestine meetings with

STADTFELD GIVEN HIGH COURT JOB

Pinchot Names Allegheny Jurist and Former Bar Head to Superior Bench

Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, of the Common Pleas Court, defeated for Republican renomination to that bench, today was named a judge of the Pennsylvania Superior Court by Gov. Pinchot.

Stadtfeld, a former president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, succeeds Judge James B. Drew, appointed to the State Supreme Court by Gov. Pinchot and nominated for the same post at the primaries.

The announcement of Stadtfeld's appointment was made from the offices of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. McGovern accompanied Stadtfeld to the state capital, where they interviewed the Governor this morning and were informed of the appointment.

Judge Stadtfeld, who is 67, was sworn as a Common Pleas judge with Judge Sylvester Snee on July 1, 1930.

Both had been appointed by Gov. John S. Fisher to fill vacancies on the Common Pleas bench caused by the death of Judge Josiah Cohen and the retirement of Judge John A. Evans, president judge.

Snee was nominated as one of the seven Republican candidates for Common Pleas judgeships in the September primary. Stadtfeld was barely nosed out by Judge William H. McNaugher, another Fisher-appointed judge.

TROOPERS TO GUARD POLLS

McGovern Requests Pinchot For State Police Aid in Balking Election 'Steal'

By MARK SHIELDS

State police will guard the polls next Tuesday, as they did the registration booths during the September primary. It will be the first time in history that state police have guarded the polls in a general election.

Application for the troops has been made to Gov. Pinchot by the Independent party, the request being transmitted to the Governor by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, who is in Harrisburg today.

McGovern is a candidate on both the Independent and Republican tickets, but it is understood the request originated with the management of Independent headquarters which asked McGovern, as a public official, to make formal application to the Governor.

TROOPERS ASSURED

The troopers, it is understood, will come from Greensburg barracks, as they did in the primary. Independents are understood to have been assured that the state police were available, and only the order of the Governor is required to bring their entry into Pittsburgh on election day.

Arrangements already have been made for transportation of the troopers. During the registration days they had their headquarters in the offices of the Registration Commission in the county building. Where they will be based next Tuesday, or to what public official they will report, has not been disclosed.

FEAR 'STEAL'

The Independents, in requesting McGovern to ask for troops, are understood to have stated that they feared efforts would be made to steal the election through intimidation of voters favorable to former Senator C. M. Barr. In-

Business Hails Steel Plants' Resumption

Resumption of steel mill activities throughout the Pittsburgh district today was heralded by business observers as the first definite indication of a turn toward prosperity.

Yesterday's announcement from the Edgar Thomson plant of the Carnegie Steel Company, at Braddock, that between 2,500 and 3,500 former employes would return to work Monday was amplified today by information that the plant has a rail order of sufficient size to keep that number of men employed for at least a month. The mills officials said, will operate at 70 per cent of capacity.

SEE MORE ORDERS

Additional orders, according to the company executives, are anticipated before the end of November, to keep the mills operat-

Boy Plays His Harmonica As He Starts Life Term

By HAROLD McGRATH

International News Service.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Oct. 30.—Twelve-year-old convict Herbert Franklin Niccolls today started his term of life imprisonment as a murderer with but one concern uppermost in his mind—to what extent would he still be allowed to play his beloved cornet and harmonica?

Herbert played simple, childish tunes at Asotin, Wash., as he waited to be taken to the bleak prison where he was condemned for the shooting of Sheriff John Wormell, who surprised the lad during the burglary of a country store.

And during the long automobile ride to Walla Walla he made the countryside echo to the notes of "Taps" and "Home Sweet Home," tunes he selected, innocent of the irony implied.

Herbert was admitted to the prison yesterday afternoon, assigned No. 13,973, and placed in a three-foot cell with iron cot and chair.

Tricks learned at an industrial school and involving a pack of cards were evoked for the benefit of Deputy Sheriff Bob Campbell and the International News Service correspondent.

Phones Police With Nickel Left by Bandits

Two bandits who held up Joseph Del Debbio, 48, lunch room proprietor, of 5608 Wilkins avenue, left him with a nickel early today, and with that nickel Del Debbio called police who are searching for the men.

The men entered the place and ordered coffee, Del Debbio said. After finishing their coffee, one of them drew a revolver and ordered Del Debbio to a rear room. They escaped with $25 from the cash register, leaving the nickel in his pockets.

A well-dressed young man who asked John Bartley, of 442 Shady avenue, clerk in the Mayflower Drug Company store at Baum boulevard at Euclid avenue, to give him change for a dollar last night, covered Bartley with a revolver and forced him to hand over several dollars from the cash register. Store officials, unable to make a complete check, said that the cash register had not contained much money.

GREEN URGES SIX-HOUR DAY AS UNEMPLOYMENT REMEDY

SEES 7 MILLION OUT OF WORK BY JANUARY

Growth of Idleness Normal, Labor Chief Says; Peril Rests in Its Continuance

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—There is only enough work available in the United States today to employ each unemployed wage earner 35 hours a week or six hours a day, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, asserted today in emphasizing the need for shorter working hours and maintenance of the pre-depression wage scales.

His October reports from trade unions showed that unemployment increased again. In the first half of the month 19.6 per cent of the union's membership was out of work compared with 19.4 per cent in September and 19.2 per cent in August.

SEES 7,000,000 IDLE

Green said the two-tenths of 1 per cent increase was not unusual for this season, as a similar increase occurred in October, 1928, a normal year. He warned:

"But if unemployment continues to increase at this rate we shall have 7,000,000 persons out of work by January.

The federation estimates 5,600,000 were unemployed this month, practically the same number as in September. Green explained:

"While some 30,000 lost their jobs in industry in October, farmers took on more workers this month to help with harvesting. Some 40,000 more were unemployed on farms."

PART-TIME INCREASE

The number of workers on part-time schedules increased 1 per cent during the month, 18 per cent of the union's membership was so engaged in September against 19 per cent this month. Green noted this increase as a "healthy sign."

Unless something is done to prevent the usual fall increase in unemployment, he said,

"We expect 600,000 persons to lose their jobs in November; 480,000 will be laid off on farms and 118,000 in industry."

Concerning wage-cutting, he said it was encouraging to note that from January to September 15 only one worker in 10 had his wages reduced, according to government reports from 15,000 manufacturing plants.

URGES EMERGENCY STEPS

Admitting the situation is alarming, Green declared every effort should be put forth now to keep workers in their jobs, and urged that labor's emergency program be put into effect immediately. This program is:

Maintenance of wages to retain workers' buying power and sustain demand for goods; shorter hours so work may be divided among all workers; employers assure work to a minimum force from November to April; create work through public undertakings; strengthen employment agencies; keep young in schools; give preference to workers with dependents, and secure financial relief from public and private funds to take care of those for whom no work can be found.

Red Cross May Enter Job Relief, Payne Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—A possibility that the national organization of the American Red Cross might have to take a hand in unemployment relief was seen today by Chairman John Barton Payne. He said:

"If it is as heavy as it may be, we'll have to get into it. We are watching to see what develops."

The National Red Cross has steadfastly taken the position that its province was to deal with natural calamities, such as fires, floods and droughts. Unemployment, like other industrial emergencies has been handled by local chapters, the national organization has asked them to give special attention to the problem this winter.

WHAT A HOLIDAY SEASON -:- By Quin Hall

FAITH NEEDED TO END SLUMP

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today that morale which won the World War, is the first essential for victory over adverse economic conditions.

Faith and courage, he said at the annual meeting of the association, are "the only things that can thow out our national material resources which have been frozen in an iceberg of fear." He said:

"As this takes place people in general will begin again living normal economic lives, thereby stimulating sluggish existing markets and creating new ones. Appetites for goods will expand with the feeding of them.

"That, of course, will mean the taking up of the employment slack and the eventual creation of new opportunities out of new materials to be uncovered by the quickened march of progress."

THEATER BOMB SUSPECT HELD

Despite his emphatic denials that he had anything to do with the recent attempted bombing of the Colonial Theater, 2008 Carson street, Joseph Reichle, 22, of 3824 Windgap road, was remanded to jail pending further investigation in Central Police Court today.

Detectives Michael Tortorelli and Sigmund Gorsket, of the bomb and arson squad, declared they believed Reichle was an associate of Serafina Pittinato, 24, of Pittock and Anthony DeAngelo, 22, of Stowe Township, being held for investigation in the frustrated bombing. The trio was also being questioned regarding the bombing of the home of Thomas J. Conley, McKees Rocks political reform leader, several months ago.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., puts the unemployed at city work, paid at 40 cents an hour. Their pay isn't "real money," but "scrip," a paper money that workers can use to purchase goods at the city's stores.

Food, clothing, other necessities are cheap at city stores. Merchants don't suffer, because those that spend the scrip would not have any other money to spend. Grand Rapids merchants approve the plan.

MORGAN AIDING BRITISH BANKS

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—With J. P. Morgan in London for conferences with his associates, international bankers were understood to be taking active measures today for stabilization of the pound sterling at the earliest possible date.

Revival of world trade is held to be partly dependent upon this stabilization, since a great deal of the world's business continues to be done in sterling. Although possessing the bulk of the world's gold supply, British financiers hold New York is still insufficiently practiced to handle the majority of the necessary world banking.

There is some talk of establishing an "empire currency" and an unofficial committee of experts is already working on this possibility. It is even planned to extend this currency to other countries outside the empire which have gone off the gold standard.

Woman Falls Dead In Larimer Avenue

Staggering onto a porch of a residence in Larimer avenue at Carver street, East End, early today, Lydia Deasley, 60, a Negro, of 208 Mayflower street, collapsed and died. She was removed to the Pittsburgh Hospital, where it was stated she had died as a result of a heart attack.

BUTLER BACKS RELIEF LOAN

DETROIT, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Immediate "artificial respiration" is needed to bring America from the present depression, it was declared here today by Smedley Butler, retired United States Marine general. He said:

"The $5,000,000,000 loan plan or a similar plan of equal magnitude is necessary to lift the country from its slump.

"Although I am no economist, my respect for the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan has increased as I discussed conditions with men in close contact with the problems of the depression."

2 Boys to Go Free In Father's Slaying

SALEM, Mo., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Charles Richtor, 16, and his brother, Roy, 12, who fatally shot their father, William Richter, farmer, Sunday night, will not be prosecuted, Prosecuting Attorney George Addison has said. He said the boys apparently acted in defense of their own lives and that of their mother. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Mrs. Richter and the boys testified Richter was intoxicated and threatened to kill them with a knife. Roy shot his father through the chest with a revolver when he rushed at him, and Charles shot him twice with a shotgun.

KERR EXTENDS AUDIT TO MORE BUREAUS

City Departments Required To Make Monthly Reports Included in Investigation

An audit of the accounts of various city departments required under the law to make monthly reports to the controller is being made in connection with the probe of the office of Roy D. Schooley, deposed treasurer, it was admitted today by Controller James P. Kerr.

When the Controller's attention was called to the provisions of the law requiring that "detailed statements of the receipts and expenditures of the several departments shall be made on the third Monday of each month to the Controller," He said:

"Those accounts are being audited now. That is included in the audit of the City Treasurer's office, and just what it will show and when the audit will be completed, I do not know. I do know that we have asked that a thorough job be done."

BACKED BY LAW

Controller Kerr has full authority for this as the law directs that "the Controller shall, at the end of each fiscal year, audit and examine and settle the accounts of such officers."

Kerr at the beginning of the year made an audit or checkup of the accounts of the police magistrates and markets, but on account of installing a new billing system and the demands of the buying probe, did not have the time for a general audit of the various departments.

SWEEPING AUDIT

These include safety, public works, delinquent taxes, assessors, City Treasurer, City Controller, department of law, public welfare, sinking fund commission, public health and department of supplies. Controller Kerr said recently that he intended to make an audit wherever money is handled, but made no reference to any particular department. His admission today that an audit is being made of the several departments as required by the law, means that the audit now being made by Price, Waterhouse & Co. is far more extensive than was at first thought.

VOTE MACHINE PAY IN COURT

voting machines until after examination by the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

"I cannot imagine how the fiscal officers of this county, in face of the possibility that these machines may not meet the approval of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, can go ahead and pay for them."

It was then revealed that the county had filed its answer to the mandamus suit before the bill was filed. Controller Woodside explained this, saying his counsel knew the suit was to be filed and the answer was prepared to save time.

When the questions of Arensberg's right to intervene came up, Arensberg said he had been invited to be at the hearing by the controller and treasurer and he was acting in the capacity of representing the plaintiff in the equity action.

BOND REQUIRED

After the noon recess, Judge Elder W. Marshall ruled that Attorneys Arensberg and Ella Graubert be permitted to intervene provided they filed bond by next Wednesday when the hearing is to be resumed.

Attorney Eaton asked for the bond, inasmuch as the money involved represents about $2,000 a month in interest.

M. B. Lesher, County Solicitor, told the court the County Commissioners had approved the payment of the balance due on his advice. He said he had rendered that decision in view of the fact that the bill of equity had not asked for a preliminary injunction.

The company declares the bill in equity filed in the Prothonotary's office to compel further examination of the machines was simply to "harass and impede the company."

In the answer Woodside sets forth that he does not wish to take responsibility for paying off the contract while litigation is pending. The decision of the court following the hearing, he said, will determine whether he can legally pay the bill.

Spark Tumbles Down Chimney, Fires Home

A spark which fell into an unused chimney and bounced out onto the rug below, after it had been carried across a roof top from one chimney to another by the wind, today was blamed for the fire in the home of H. A. Leigh at 36 Rocklyn avenue, Mt. Lebanon. The fire occurred late yesterday, causing damage estimated at $500.

Fire Chief James E. Wood, of Mt. Lebanon, declared the spark set fire to the rug and the blaze spread to the furniture and slightly damaged the floor before it was extinguished by firemen.

ASK GOVERNORS TO COAL MEET

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, has invited the governors of bituminous coal producing states to attend the third annual conference on bituminous coal, he announced today.

In addition to the state executives, coal commissions that have been appointed to aid relief of the industry have been invited, while preparations are being made to present a review of the various relief plans so far submitted.

The invitations to the conference follow the development of the original idea—which encompassed only the scientific discussion—into the economic phase of the coal industry.

The conference will be concluded November 21.

MOVE TO OUST DUNLAP AIDES

According to reliable information at the City-County Building, Col. W. R. Dunlap, of the Department of Supplies, will go before the Civil Service Commission late today and ask that three clerks in his department be placed on the exempt list.

The three employes are said to be Bert M. Doty, contract clerk; E. Boyd Birch and George P. Anderson. Placing of the employes on the exempt list would permit the Director to dismiss them from service without a hearing before the Civil Service Commission. The Civil Service Commission has authority to grant Director Dunlap's request.

It is said the places are sought by relatives of present officeholders.

ROBBER SHOOTS MAN AS WIFE LOOKS ON

Woman Describes Gunplay In Gas Station Holdup; Thug Escapes Bullets

While Mrs. Olive Kirkland, 30, of 6904 Fifth avenue, kept watch over her husband, Edward Ball Kirkland, 40, in Pittsburgh Hospital today, police were searching the city and county for trace of the robber who fired two bullets into her husband's body in the Standard Oil Company service station at Hamilton avenue and Putnam street, last night.

Kirkland was wounded seriously.

Mrs. Kirkland, a witness to the shooting, said she was fired upon twice by the robber as she ran screaming into the street.

Kirkland fired twice at the robber as he fled from the station after taking a small amount of change from Kirkland's pocket as he lay on the floor.

SECOND ROBBERY

The robber, described by Kirkland as the same man who robbed him of $40 Monday, entered the station shortly after Kirkland had finished his lunch, according to Mrs. Kirkland. He appeared with a drawn revolver.

Describing the shooting, Mrs. Kirkland, who had gone to the service station with a lunch for her husband, accompanied by their son, Edward Ball Kirkland, Jr., 6, said:

"My husband had just gone to the washroom. The door was closed and I was there by myself when the man entered. My boy was in back of the place playing.

WIFE SCREAMS

"The man yelled, 'Where's the man?' and I started to scream. Then the robber saw the closed washroom door and ran toward it.

"At this moment my son came out another door. Apparently startled, the robber started firing at my husband through the door."

"When he opened it, I ran screaming into Hamilton avenue and tried to stop several automobiles.

"Then I saw the robber run from the station and I followed him. A man tried to stop him but he got away."

Kirkland fired twice at the robber as he fled. Two of the bullets fired by the robber struck Kirkland, while the rest shattered a wash basin.

CAPTOR FOILED

George Hunzeker, 31, of 6744 Atwell street, proprietor of a repair shop near the service station, told police he ran to the station when he heard the shooting and met the robber as he left the place.

Hunzeker said he tried to grab the man, but that he threatened him with a revolver. The man escaped in a coupe he had parked near Hunzeker's place of business, according to a police report.

Kirkland, a railroad telegrapher, came here from Georgia to seek work four months ago, according to his wife. The only job he found was the one at the gasoline station. After Monday's holdup, he told his wife that he was going to borrow a revolver and be on guard against holdups, she said.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Inquiry has been made of Otto Lee, clerk of the State Printing Board, as to how Gov. Willis (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, of Oklahoma, could enter the Indiana presidential primary next spring. The query came from C. A. Cunningham, secretary of the Murray Mississippi Valley headquarters, at Chicago. Lee said he would send Cunningham a copy of the state election laws.

Politics Hampers Police, Director Clark Charges

Divorce politics from the Police Department and less corruption and dishonesty will result.

This is the opinion of Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, who returned Thursday from attending the international police conference in Paris. He said:

"Their is no politics played in the police of France or England, and they are the better for it. A policeman's word is law over there, and they have no interference from petty politicians and ward heelers like we have in many of our large cities in the United States."

Clark said there is no doubt that, if police are taken out of politics, more efficiency can be attained and less crime committed.

Continuing he said:

"Many honest policemen become intimidated by being 'put on the spot' by a politician because the particular patrolman happened to arrest a henchman of the politician. By performing his honest duty, the policeman is 'given the works' by some disgruntled small politician.

"Police heads of Paris and London told me that the police of this country are on a par with that of any other country, but are handicapped by political influence.

"I am more convinced that prohibition is a rank failure since my tour abroad. During my stay in London I failed to see one drunken man. Out of a population of nearly 8,000,000 last year but 25,000 persons were arrested for drunkenness. Here in Pittsburgh the police arrested more than 35,000."

Rum Suspect Loses Shoes And Freedom in Chase

John Koursas, 30, of 5 Sample way, made an attempt to "slip" away from prohibition agents, but lost his slippers and was caught. His feet were badly bruised.

Agents, according to testimony before the United States Commissioner, armed with a warrant to search the home of Koursas went to his residence. When no one answered the door bell they gained entrance through a window on the first floor.

The raiders were examining a cache of whisky they found under a stairway in the basement when they were startled by a heavy crash of glass. Looking out of the cellar window they saw a pair of berdoom slippers on the ground and much scattered glass. They next saw a slipperless man running down the street. A member of the raiding party pursued and after a chase of three blocks captured Koursas.

Koursas, according to testimony, was on the second floor when the agents entered the house. When they went to the basement he jumped from a second-story window, taking with him sash and glass. The slippers dropped off and he ran without them.

The commissioner held Koursas for court under $2,000 bond on a charge of selling and possessing contraband liquor. His injured feet caused him to limp into and out of the courtroom.

TWO TRAPPED SIX DAYS IN MINE TELL OF IMPRISONMENT

RESCUE PICKS HEARD FOR 3 DAYS

Four Companions Killed By Gas After Explosion; Crowd Waits at Pit Mouth

NANTICOKE, Pa., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—From their beds in the Nanticoke State Hospital, John Thomashunis and Joseph Matzoni today told the story of their 133 hour imprisonment by an explosion in the West End Coal Company mine at Moranaqua. They were rescued this morning. Four companions were found dead when rescuers worked through tons of rock and coal.

Thomashunis has been in the mines for 40 years. Matzoni, a lad of 22, gave credit to him for his safety.

When the explosion came, Matzoni said, he and two others started to rush through the tunnel to see what had happened. Thomashunis called to them not to leave and, as they kept going, Thomashunis grabbed Matzoni and pulled him back. The other two, John Molitoris and Henry Ceglarski, were overcome by after-damp before they had gone more than a few feet.

Jacob Finus, 45, and Paul Novak, 40, were instantly killed by the blast.

Thomashunis and Matzoni gathered up the safety lamps and dinner pails of the four dead and prepared for a long vigil. A mine car, half-filled with coal, was their bunkhouse. With their own coats and those of the dead they made themselves beds. Thomashunis cautioned Matzoni to eat sparingly, and as a result their food lasted until yesterday. They still had drinking water when rescued.

For three days they heard the thud of the rescuers' picks as the squads cut their way through a 50-foot wall of coal.

During the day the men spent their time in talking and walking to the obstruction in the tunnel to listen for signs of rescuers.

A crowd of about 200 were waiting at the mouth of the mine as Thomashunis and Matzoni were brought out to an ambulance. Among the crowd was Mrs. Thomashunis. She was taken to the mine offices, where officials assured her that her husband was in good condition. She said:

"When I got the message that he was all right I felt just as if he had come from the dead."

BRAZIL QUELLS NEW REVOLT

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—President Getulio Vargas, of Brazil, today had weathered the fourth short-lived revolt of this year, with the quelling of an army rebellion at Pernambuco, reports received here said.

The reports said the revolt broke out in the Twenty-first Regiment of Chasseurs Wednesday and that the commander and another officer were killed and several others imprisoned. State and federal authorities, it was said, quickly suppressed it.

The Brazilian army put down a revolt at Pernambuco last May and in April and July there were riots at Sao Paulo, important coffee center.

KELLY INDORSES G. O. P. TICKET

Congressman Clyde Kelly, of Braddock, spoke at the noon meeting today indorsing the Republican ticket and mentioning Col. C. C. McGovern and Senator William D. Mansfield as worthy of support. He said:

"It is my pleasure to be for the Republican candidates and all the nominees are worthy of support."

Paying special reference to McGovern and Mansfield, he continued:

"The County Commissioners' office by law must have minority representation. Mr. McGovern and Mr. Mansfield won the Republican nominations in a fair contest. Since we can only vote for two commissioner candidates, is there any reason to drop one Republican nominee to vote for a minority party candidate? I say no."

Other speakers were Judge W. H. McNaugher, Prothonotary John Vogt and Attorney Benjamin Lencher, who presided.

Wife Faints When Mate Joins in Own Wake

The aged man slumped over while sitting in a rocking chair at his home. His wife, Emma, could find no pulse. Neither could the police rescue squad she summoned and they departed with Hall for the morgue.

En route, they stopped at a hospital for an official death pronouncement. Physicians could find no heartbeats, but decided to try a stimulant anyway.

Hall's eyelids flickered. The astonished physicians applied artificial respiration. Presently Hall sat up. He exclaimed:

"I guess I must have been out for a while."

JAPAN'S SPLIT WITH RUSSIA GROWING

International News Service.

MOSCOW, Oct. 30.—The increasing strain placed on Russo-Japanese relations by the Manchurian crisis was clearly revealed here today.

Passages in the remarks exchanged by Japanese Ambassador Koki Hirota and Leo M. Karakhan, vice commissar for foreign affairs, strike the attention with all the force of a red danger signal.

The memorandum in which Hirota explained Japanese military activity in Manchuria and warns Russia to keep "hands off" the Sino-Japanese dispute concludes:

Karakhan's answer, denying Soviet aid to any of Japan's enemies in Manchuria, pointedly rebuked Tokio in these words:

"The Soviet government considers that the policy of military occupation, applied under whatever form of so-called protection of interests and nationals, is inconsistent with the peaceful policy of the Soviet Union and with the interests of world peace."

Britain Aids Chinese, Japanese Assert

TOKIO, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Japanese newspapers were flooded today with reports from Mukden and from various points in China and Manchuria accusing the British of helping China against Japan in the present dispute between the Nanking and Tokio governments. These reports, obviously inspired, originate with Japanese news agencies.

Second Mate Gives Wife to Enoch Arden

CEDAR FALLS, Ia., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—A modern Enoch Arden returned to his family yesterday—but unlike the fictional hero, he did not go away again after finding his wife remarried.

Instead, James Hool, 40, whom his wife had given up for dead, will return to his family after Mrs. Hool obtains an annulment from Paul Lantz, whom she married two years ago.

The three talked the situation over today and Lantz agreed to the annulment.

Hool, given up for dead eight years ago after his Army discharge papers were found on a man shot in a Montana bank robbery, said he had wandered about the Pacific Coast and the Northwest since leaving his wife.

GAS FAILS, THUG FREES CAPTIVE

Kidnaped in his own machine after being robbed, Peter Mafkoof, Weirton (W. Va.) poolroom proprietor, drove his robber-captor 30 miles into Crafton, where the gas gave out. A revolver pressed into the side of Mafkoof was the incentive for the drive.

When the gas gave out on Crafton boulevard, the robber leaped from the car and fled. Mafkooff notified George A. Taylor, Crafton police chief, who spread the alarm. Lieut. Harry Keisling, of Carnegie, picked up Peter Posneck, 23, of Burgettstown, on East Main street, Carnegie, as a suspect, and turned him over to the Crafton police. Posneck, police said, carried a revolver, $39 and a watch and chain, which had been taken from Mafkoof.

GANNA WALSKA WON'T REWED

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Elated at her success in her operatic recital here last night, Mme. Ganna Walska, divorced wife of Harold McCormick, Chicago millionaire, told International News Service today that she would "never remarry." She said:

"I want to go ahead with my career, and that makes it necessary for me to spend most of my time in Europe.

"But I could never marry again because Mr. McCormick was so sweet that I could never think of marrying anyone else.

"The only trouble between us was that he wants to live in Chicago and I want to live in Paris. We are still friends, however, and Mr. McCormick takes the greatest interest in my professional career."

GIRL CLEARED IN FIANCE'S HOLDUP

Loyal to Man Who Confessed Planning Robbery and Had Her Bound by Robbers

Loyal in the face of disillusionment, Anna Marshall, 21, of 2427 California avenue, was discharged in North Side Police Court today after she had convinced police she had not helped plan a robbery to which her sweetheart admitted.

Of Frank Puglin, 30, of 99 South Tenth street, held with two others in the robbery of Sismour's dry cleaning office, 2425 California avenue, she said:

"I am sorry Frank is involved in this. I love him still."

The others held are John Fox, 27, of 1220 Mimosa street, and George Schultz, 38, of 629 Banbury street. They will be questioned by detectives and held for possible identification in other crimes.

MET AT DANCE

Miss Marshall, who was bound, with two other employes, by Fox and Schultz, while Puglin remained in a car outside, in the holdup of the Sismour office Wednesday morning, told Magistrate Ray Schneider:

"I met Frank at a dance on the Greater Pittsburgh more than two years ago. He was manager of the dance floor. I have gone with him ever since. We planned to be married as soon as he got a steady job. I have always paid the way to shows and other amusements, as he wasn't able to get a permanent position.

HELPED COUNT MONEY

"He used to help me count the receipts Saturday nights at Sismour's, so he would know how much we would have on hand Monday morning to turn over to the collectors. I knew nothing of any plan to rob the place and was amazed when police asked me to identify three men arrested."

Miss Marshall said she was too excited to identify either Fox or Schultz, and that she didn't see Puglin.

Puglin testified he remained in the car so his girl wouldn't recognize him. The holdup netted $470, of which $185 was found in Puglin's dresser drawer, police said.

Puglin, remorseful, made a noose from his necktie in a cell last night, but was prevented from his apparent purpose to end his life, Turnkey Michael Callen reported.

MRS. CHARLAYNE GELLATLY

Ex-Actress Seeks Gellatly Gift Return

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—John Gellatly, 78, an art collector who presented the Smithsonian Institution with a $4,000,000 collection of paintings, statuary and tapestries, informed the federal attorney that his wife, Charlayne, a former actress, who recently endeavored to have him pay the rent on her apartment, had threatened to bring proceedings to have his gift to the institution set aside.

It was revealed that Mrs. Gellatly already had notified the government she intends to bring suit to recover the paintings. After conferring with Gellatly, a representative of the federal attorney called Dr. Charles Greely Abbot, director of the institution, on the telephone and informed him of possible developments.

TRUNK SLAYER'S ACCOMPLICE SOUGHT

Crowds Gather at Courthouse As 'Tigress' Nears Phoenix By Car; Nurse Again Flees

By W. M. BISHOP
International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30.—As Phoenix prepared today to receive Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, whose frenzied and mysterious acts have torn its social, business and official life asunder, startling elements surrounding the trunk murders began to be unraveled.

Hundreds of citizens gathered at the Courthouse today for a glimpse of the frail "tiger woman," accused of shooting to death her dearest friends, Agnes Leroi, a nurse, and Hedwig Samuelson, a school teacher, and shipping their bodies in two trunks and a suitcase to Los Angeles, October 18.

In custody of officers, she was traveling by auto from Los Angeles, where she abandoned her fight against extradition on advice of attorneys.

SEEK ACCOMPLICE

1. Evidence gathered by investigators working under the direction of the County Attorney point to an accomplice.

2. Lucille Moore, star state's witness who stated she saw Jack J. Halloran, wealthy Phoenix lumberman, social, civic and church leader, in affectionate embrace with Anne Leroi and Hedwig Samuelson, has fled from Arizona to avoid further notoriety.

3. There is no evidence which would indicate any one of the three principals were drug addicts or were connected with the so-called powerful "Phoenix drug ring," which murdered two men, one a government narcotic squad secret service agent, two years ago.

4. A doctor and another woman may be implicated.

EVIDENCE SOUGHT

The investigating forces of both the County Attorney and the Sheriff's office were ordered to concentrate their investigations on the theory that Mrs. Judd had an accomplice.

County Attorney Lloyd Andrews, who was accompanying the Mrs. Judd party here from Los Angeles, had assumed that Mrs. Judd was physically incapable of the brutal slayings which were followed by the mutilation of Miss Samuelson and the subsequent packing of the bodies of her two companions, for whom she frequently had expressed unusual affection, in the two trunks and suitcase which were shipped to Los Angeles.

Rancher Says Accomplice Burned Mattress

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Ruth Judd had an accomplice who helped her burn a mattress on the desert, 15 miles from Phoenix, Ariz., following the slaying of Miss Agnes Leroi and Miss Hedwig Samuelson.

This was revealed today by Earl McDaniel, 38-year-old Texas rancher, who was found in Los Angeles today by International News Service.

He said that on the night of October 16 his son and daughter went to a party, the son returning alone with word that the daughter was returning with a married man.

McDaniel said he drove out on the desert, turned out the lights of the car and waited with a shotgun. He said:

"A little after midnight a big dark sedan came up and a man and woman were in it. I thought it was my daughter and the man.

"The man jumped out of the car and threw down a roll of bedding. It was a mattress and some blankets. I jumped out of my car and started for the man. He lit a match and set fire to the mattress and it burned up like it had gasoline on it. The man saw me coming and jumped back in the car and drove away. He went in the direction of Phoenix."

Coincident with Mrs. Judd's removal from the county jail, police officers released Fred Williams, of El Paso, Tex., who "confessed" that he aided Mrs. Judd in the killing of the two women. Police said his story was untrue and ordered him to leave the city. Williams promised to do that.

dependent candidate for County Commissioner. In addition to downtown wards, it is understood the constabulary will be assigned to some boroughs where trouble was encountered by Independents in the primary, especially Wilmerding and McKees Rocks.

Mansfield Chiefs Charged With Vote Coercion

The Allegheny County political campaign for commissioner has developed into a straight-out fight between County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and former Senator C. M. Barr, Independent Republicans, on one side, and Senator William D. Mansfield, Republican, and David L. Lawrence, Democrat, on the other. This complicated situation exists despite the fact that McGovern also is a Republican nominee, and Mansfield publicly is asking votes for the straight Republican ticket, with the exception of the three candidates for Poor Directors.

Barr and McGovern, displeased at Mansfield's silence in the face of palpable efforts of machine Republicans to put across Mansfield and Lawrence, opened fire on Mansfield as well as Lawrence in a meeting in North Side Carnegie Hall last night. Barr, probably selected because of the long friendship which has existed between himself and Mansfield, provided the dynamite which had greater force because of its source.

Barr shouted:

"Elect McGovern and myself County Commissioners, and it won't be necessary for us to ask W. L. Mellon or some man in McKeesport how to vote."

It was inferred that "some man in McKeesport" is E. R. Crawford, president of the McKeesport Tin Plate Company, Mansfield's political godfather, who contributed $10,000 to his primary campaign, his brother, James Crawford, Mayor of Duquesne, contributing a similar amount. It has been charged that employes of the Crawford mills are being ordered by their bosses to vote for Mansfield and Lawrence.

Reference to Mellon was based on the close connection of Senator James J. Coyne with the former state chairman, and the friendly political relation of Coyne and Lawrence. This is the first mention of Mellon which has been made in the campaign, and Barr's charge that Lawrence would vote on the county board as Mellon wished, and Mansfield as Crawford dictated, caused a stir.

Barr asserted that the election of Lawrence and Mansfield would mean a continuation of the existing political control in Allegheny County.

FOUR COMBINATIONS

Though Barr and McGovern are directly affiliated, and Lawrence and Mansfield are connected through the activities of machine Republicans, there are actually four combinations in the minds of various groups. In addition to the two named, thousands of Republicans link Mansfield and McGovern as their candidates, because that is "regular" and orthodox.

But there is also a definite support for a Barr-Mansfield ticket, and it is being given impetus by some of the candidates on the Republican ticket, despite the silence of Mansfield toward Barr's candidacy. Numbered in this group are public officials who are opponents of Senator Coyne, and who contend the election of Lawrence means the backdoor entrance of Coyne into the Commissioners' office, even though he was defeated for a place on the board in the primaries.

There is no open espousal of this ticket in speeches, but work for it is being quietly and effectively carried on.

ALPERN'S BOLT

Indirect indorsement of Mansfield by Louis Alpern when the latter withdrew from the County Commissioner race Wednesday night, including in his statement criticism of McGovern, is being repudiated by some who helped promote the Alpern candidacy. Attorney J. I. Simon, who was chairman of his speakers' and meetings committee, declared today that Alpern's announcement of withdrawal was published before he had seen it, and he denied any implication that the sentiment of Alpern spoke for the whole committee. Simon said:

"Now that Mr. Alpern is out of the race I unhesitatingly select as my choice for the minority commissionership, and recommend to my friends, Mr. Barr, first because he represents the same school of thought as Mr. McGovern, and second, because I am picking a winner."

MRS. MILLER'S CHARGES

Charges by Mrs. John O. Miller yesterday that six years ago Lawrence and Mansfield furnished her with evidence upon which she had brought about the arrest of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong on the allegation that he had held an illegal meeting of the Commissioners, and parceled out many jobs, are not expected to materially affect the campaign.

The revelations of Mrs. Miller did show that at one time Mansfield and Lawrence had been gunning for Armstrong, but apparently old wounds have been forgotten, for Armstrong is supporting Mansfield, as he did in the primary, and many of his followers are boosting Lawrence without concealment.

M'GOVERN WINS BAN AGAINST BALLOTS

Court Issues Injunction Against Firm Printing Samples of Originals

A preliminary injunction restraining the Pittsburgh Printing Company from printing sample ballots for any persons other than the County Commissioners and from delivering or using any of the alleged 240,000 "bootleg" specimen ballots was granted by Judge Elder W. Marshall late yesterday on petition of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern.

A hearing was fixed for Monday afternoon when the injunction may be made permanent or dismissed.

The printing company, operating a plant at 530 Fernando street, does the printing of official and sample ballots to be used at the general election Tuesday, and Louis Golder, an official of the company, admitted at a County Commissioners' meeting that 240,000 sample ballots in the same form and manner, and on the same color of paper as the official specimen ballots, have been printed by the company, the petition alleged.

It charged:

"Your orator complains and says that the said 240,000 sample ballots were printed on the same color paper for the purpose of deceiving the electors.

"The Pittsburgh Printing Company by reason of being the official printers of the ballots and the specimen ballots which are to be used in the election, has acquired a secret knowledge of the set-up, form and design of the ballot to be used at said election and has illegally, unlawfully and for a purpose known to them, printed over 240,000 ballots on the same color paper, and in the same set-up, design and form for person or persons unknown to your petitioner.

DECEPTION CHARGED

"That the said 240,000 sample ballots are marked in such a manner as to deceive the voters as to the choice of how to mark the ballot in voting a straight ticket."

McGovern averred he would suffer irreparable loss and damage unless an injunction were granted.

It has been charged that the 240,000 specimen ballots were printed in such a manner as to make conspicuous the candidacies of Senator William D. Mansfield, Republican, and David L. Lawrence, Democrat, jointly supported by the city and county machines.

9 DEMOCRATS IN BOLT

The alliance of David L. Lawrence, Democratic nominee for County Commissioner, "with the Republican organization" has been disapproved by nine Democrats in a statement issued last night. Lawrence is county chairman.

The objectors are A. M. Thompson, John M. Henry, George H. Stengel, Carl D. Smith, Martin F. Howley, Thomas H. Hester, Gregg C. Llewellyn, Barbara M. Sullivan and Bradley McK. Burns. The statement read:

"We, the undersigned members of the Democratic party, unwilling to tolerate the exploitation of the party for the selfish benefit of those in titular charge of its affairs and feeling that it would be disloyalty to the party to remain silent, hereby repudiate the leadership of David L. Lawrence, county chairman and candidate for County Commissioner."

WOMAN PLEADS FOR LAWRENCE

Mrs. Carroll Miller, nationally known Democratic leader, addressed a party rally last night in Fort Pitt Hotel in behalf of the ticket headed by David L. Lawrence, nominee for County Commissioner. Attorney W. N. McNair, campaign chairman, presided. Mrs. Miller complained of a lack of co-operation of the press in the Democratic Party's efforts for good government. She said:

"For years our Democratic organization has complained of registration and election frauds, but we got no help from the press or the courts. I recall when Attorney McNair, our present campaign chairman, was a candidate for Mayor, he exposed the very practices of crooked registration and phantom voting about which there has been so much stir recently, but all Mr. McNair got for his trouble was being arrested for disturbing the peace.

"At that time David L. Lawrence was our county chairman and he tried without avail to get facts before the voters, but he had no help from the bar as a whole, the press or the courts.

"Mr. Lawrence has no alliance with anyone except his fellow citizens whose best interests he will safeguard."

Attorney Charles A. Poth, independent Republican, advocated the election of Lawrence in an address at the noon meeting yesterday in Democratic headquarters, 432 Diamond street. Other speakers were Attorney B. B. McGinnis and John Murphy, party nominee for City Council.

Speakers at Crafton Meeting Laud Barr

Between 40 and 50 workers of the Independent party attended a meeting at the home of Harry A. Walker, 185 Noble avenue, Crafton, last night. Walker is chairman of the Crafton Independent organization. The workers heard Alex P. Lindsay and Louis Leonard extol the record and character of former State Senator C. M. Barr, running mate of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. The speakers stressed Barr's efforts to obtain legislation favorable to labor.

Car, Trolley Crash Causes Man's Death

Harry Grey, 25, of 49 Alexis street, injured Saturday when his automobile collided with a street car at Forbes and Beeler streets, died last night in the Montefiore Hospital.

Harry Mitchell, 20, of 230 South Mathilda street, was in the Pittsburgh Hospital with serious injuries; police said he received when struck by a machine driven by Murray Tudor, 41, Negro, of 7220 Monticello street, in Upland street, near Monticello street.

field. Whether he will be joined in the contest by his sisters Mrs. Marian Oslet and Mrs. John Eyre Sloane and his brother Thomas A. Edison Jr. was not disclosed.

The noted inventor's will was filed for probate in Surrogate's Court, Essex County, New Jersey, yesterday. The bulk of the estate was left to Theodore M. and Charles Edison, children of Mrs. Una M. Edison. He stipulated that they decide how much the elder children were entitled to receive and when they were to receive their share of the estate.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Mrs. Mina M. Edison, widow of Thomas A. Edison, emerged 24 hours after the probate of his will in the Surrogate Court in Newark yesterday as one of the richest women in New Jersey, if not in the United States, though under his will she received no legacy.

Her wealth is variously estimate here as running between $25,000,000 and $40,000,000.

Its chief source has been "gifts" bestowed upon her by her husband from his weekly checks for royalties and for the presidency of his various companies all through their 46 years of married life. These weekly checks for a period of 14 years are said to have averaged $25,000, giving Edison an annual income over this period of $1,300,000, or a total of $18,200,000.

HUGE INCOME

This income was strictly cash and was only a part of the moneys that flowed in to the inventor in the form of dividends from his various holdings, from his complete monopoly of the phonograph and moving picture for much of the two 17-year periods during which he held patents on their invention, and later for his membership in the General Film Company, the organization which held such a complete monopoly on the moving picture industry that it was broken up under the Sherman anti-trust act.

Edison was wont to carry home his pay check which averaged $25,000 a week. It was never seen again. It went, persistent rumor said, to Mrs. Edison, who invested it shrewdly.

In all this time she proved herself the model wife and mother. She headed charity drives and was known in the poorer sections where she was often seen visiting the sick and the poor.

And in the financial centers in Wall street, the still-faced brokers and bankers who handle millions of stocks and bonds could, if they would, tell you of another Mrs. Mina M. Edison.

Starvation Center Changes to Land Of Plenty

ENGLAND, Ark., Oct. 30 (AP).—The finest agricultural products of this community are on display here to prove things have changed at England.

Widely publicized as the scene of a so-called food riot last winter when the Red Cross was feeding drought sufferers, the England community now calls itself "the land of plenty."

Farmers who were destitute last winter brought a wide variety of farm products, livestock and poultry to town for exhibition at the first annual merchants and farmers trades day. Canned goods and other foodstuffs prepared for the winter were also on display.

COURT CROWDS HEAR HARDING 'LOVE NOTES'

Defense Rests in $50,000 Britton Suit on Answer To 'President's Daughter'

President Harding in the White House was discredited on the grounds of impossibility. Counsel read portions from the book on this point as follows:

"Let us look for a momegt at this historic place—the White House—in which the President's wife is supposed to have led a lonesome life in the executive mansion while the complaining witness found it so remarkably easy to gain admission at will, day or night, and without the knowledge of the wife.

PRIVACY DENIED

"It is impossible for any one to enter the White House except under rigid surveilance. If you doubt it, try it. The prisoner of Chillon enjoyed a privacy denied the chief executive of this nation."

All persons under 21 years old were barred from court by Judge John M. Killits who is presiding at the trial. He added that the time might come when it would be necessary to exclude even the press.

Several young people left the courtroom after Judge Killits gave the order. Attorney William F. Marsteller of Cleveland, representing Miss Britton, told the court that he was making an exception to the judge's statement. There was nothing salacious in the trial so far, he said, excepting that which might have been read from the book.

The reading of excerpts from "The President's Daughter" was then continued.

Arguments in the case may be made today, and the case may go to the jury before court adjourns today.

STATE REPORT MARKS SESSION BY NURSES

Duquesne Head Speaks At Luncheon; State Group Closes Session Tonight

Nursing education was the subject on the final program today of the Pennsylvania State Nurses' Association convention in William Penn Hotel.

Report of the State Board of Examiners for Registration of Nurses was one of the important matters before the delegates. The League of Nursing education section of the association, was electing officers.

The Rev. Dr. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, spoke on adult education at the noon luncheon. Dr. Q. A. W. Rohrbach, of the University of Pittsburgh, spoke at the afternoon session.

Speaking on "The White House Conference Applied to a State Program" at last night's session, Katherine Tucker, general director of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing said:

"Schools for nursing in most hospitals were not started, nor are they continued, for educational purposes, but rather as a cheap way of getting hospital patients cared for. The result is the production of too many poorly prepared nurses and not enough prepared ones.

"The White House conference decided that no hospital should be expected to bear the expenses of nursing education out of funds collected for the care of the sick, and that no student should be thought of as a money saving device for a hospital. The question as to whether any hospital should conduct a nursing school should be decided on a basis of the amount of educational experience it has to offer, which is the criteria in any other form of education for a responsible profession."

'Last in Family' Husband Gets Divorce

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 30 (AP.)—Meal time, all the time, it was just a case of being last for Merret Bell.

At the dinner table, the platter would be passed first to his mother-in-law, Bell told Divorce Judge Samuel H. Silbert. Next came his wife's two children by a former marriage and then Mrs. Bell. What was left, he got, Bell said.

When the family went for an automobile ride, the mother-in-law got in first and after her came the two children and Mrs. Bell. Never, Bell said, was there enough room for him, Bell complained.

"Family life for me was nothing but last place, last say, or last word."

He got a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty.

WALKER FACES 'TIN BOX' QUIZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Mayor James J. Walker, revealed today as one of the growing list of city officials who own a "tin box," eventually will be called as a witness in the city-wide investigation conducted by the Hofstadter legislative committee. Samuel Seabury, committee counsel, publicly intimated.

However, Seabury said he first wanted to question Russell T. Sherwood, linked by new evidence as sharing the safe-deposit vault housing the "tin box" of Mayor Walker, whom he called the Mayor's personal financial agent. Sherwood was under subpena, served on him in Mexico City, to appear before the committee today. He was still reported in Mexico and Seabury proposed today to apply for a court order to have Sherwood declared in contempt.

The Mayor refused to comment on the testimony he had rented the safe deposit vault jointly with Sherwood, that Sherwood had a key to it and that Fred C. Harris, connected with the Manhattan company, now possessed a key to the same vault housing the "tin box."

Prisoners Shiver In Cells; Coal Exhausted

The coal bins at the Public Safety Building, Water and Short streets, were empty today as engineers cast their eyes around for bits of wood with which to heat the four-story building. The last of the coal was used yesterday morning, and stray bits of firewood were used yesterday afternoon. However, last night the furnace was cold and so were the 30 prisoners in their cells. Detectives and policemen went about with their coats on, hoping that the new supply of fuel would soon arrive.

RUSSIAN ARTIST WINS MEDAL

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Morris Kantor's painting, "Haunted House," has won for him $2,500 and the Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Logan medal for art.

A jury at the Art Institute's annual exhibition of paintings and sculptures made the award yesterday, basing its decision on originality and creative ability. The painting shows the interior of a colonial room flooded with light and surrounded by fantastic forms of houses against a night sky, with the menacing shadow of a man with roofs at his back cast over one wall.

Kantor is a New Yorker, who was born in Russia, but who received his training in this country.

Robert B. Harshe, director of the institute, predicted that the jury's selection would precipitate considerable controversy.

SWISSVALE WORK

Swissvale Borough officials announced today that employment would be furnished to about 200 men there through co-operation with the Allegheny County Emergency Association during the winter months.

The Borough Council was informed last night that the emergency association had allotted Swissvale $20,000 for labor on public improvements to offset winter unemployment. The Council immeditaely voted $8,500 for materials to make the needed repairs to streets and sewers. The work is to start at once. The work, Council members said, will be prorated among teh unemployed, not more than 200 to be employed at one time.

Halloween Proves Costly for Milkmen

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Halloween is serious business to the International Association of Milk Dealers.

Their convention program was interrupted today long enough to issue a plea to American housewives to be sure to take their milk bottles inside the house tomorrow night.

Tens of thousands of milk bottles, the association noted, have been playfully spirited away on recent Halloweens by pranksters.

PLANS SPEEDED TO RELEASE BANK CASH

State Officials Hope to Have Large Sum Available To Depositors for Holiday

Pittsburghers with money tied up in closed state banks looking forward to a bleak holiday season, were visibly encouraged today by the report that State Secretary of Banking William D. Gordon has found a possible way to free some of their money before Christmas.

Dr. Gordon's plan, about to be inaugurated in Philadelphia's 37 closed state banks, involves extension of credit by merchants and actual payment of dividends at once. Shortly to be applied in Pittsburgh, it is understood, the plan provides a short cut in the liquidation of the institutions.

Dr. Gordon today in Harrisburg said he plans to visit Pittsburgh next week to perfect arrangements for putting the "Philadelphia Plan" into effect, but was not yet ready to name the man who will direct its operation here.

Vital to the Philadelphia plan is the assistance of John A. McCarthy, Philadelphia banker and businessman, who has volunteered his services as "private banker" in the work of paying depositors at once under a law designed to retard payment.

SALE OF CASH

Gordon's arrangement with McCarthy involves the sale of cash held by various defunct institutions to McCarthy for "$1 and other valuable considerations." The "other valuable considerations" are McCarthy's services in paying dividends to depositors.

McCarthy, receiving cash of the closed banks, pays it, in turn, to depositors on a pro rata basis. His time is donated to the depositors' service for $1.

Ordinarily, making of inventory, issuing statements of deposits, appraising the banks, making an audit and presenting the whole to court involves from six to nine months. Only by the "sale" of the bank's cash to McCarthy can the money legally be paid to depositors.

It is understood that Gordon will try to find a financier in Pittsburgh willing to act as private banker in the same capacity as that of McCarthy in Philadelphia. The system is to be inaugurated, if possible, Gordon says, in time to free at least part of the $20,000,000 tied up in failed state banks.

Kerr Ready to Accept Bankers' Pool Notes

Dr. James P. Kerr, city controller, today said he approved the action taken yesterday by the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association favoring the use of gold notes of the National Credit Corporation as security for city, county and state deposits in banks.

Kerr said he had been in communication with the Clearing House Association and had notified it when the gold notes were issued the city would co-operate.

The notes will generally be accepted at 90 per cent of their face value, it is said, following Federal authorization at that figure.

The National Credit Corporation is the $500,000,000 pool organized by banks, at President Hoover's suggestion, to reinforce the credit structure by making available to banks money on security unacceptable by the Federal Reserve.

NOT A BITE OF BREAKFAST UNTIL YOU DRINK WATER

Italian Doctors Working Wonders on Headache and Stomach Sufferers With Simple, Internal Bathing

Why is it that eight out of every ten people today are being made miserable, unhappy and inefficient by constant headaches?

Italian doctors startled the world by giving plain effervescent water before breakfast as the remedy. A homely treatment, but effective sometimes beyond belief. A form of intestinal bathing that makes anemic-looking, pasty-faced, headachy and stomach-acidity people take on new life, new appearance and new health.

The way the treatment works is on the same principle of washing out the intestines every morning before breakfast just like you wash dirt off your face and hands. For just as it is necessary to clean ashes from a furnace before a fire burns bright and clear, so it is necessary to wash out the stomach BEFORE food goes into it.

Otherwise you most likely cause a bad condition by mixing the food you eat with ptomaine-like accumulations in the stomach that virtually poison the fresh foods you put in it.

For that reason, every man or woman—whether sick or well—is advised to drink each morning BEFORE BREAKFAST, one-half glass of water with two tablespoonfuls of ordinary Italian brioschi effervescent in it, followed by a large glass of plain water. That's the whole Italian treatment tens of thousands of people today are crediting with near-miracles in the relief of constant headaches, sour stomach, acidity, constipation, "bilious" attacks and general lassitude and debility.

The Italian brioschi effervescent to put with water can be obtained in large cans at any store for a few cents. The way to pronounce the word is Bree-os-ky—ordinary Italian brioschi. A few days of it will suffice to make most anyone a crank on the subject of intestinal bathing.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

IF YOU DON'T mind, I'll take you into my confidence today. As long as the laugh is on me, I don't see why I shouldn't let you in on the inside.

When I first started columning some 80 or 90 years ago, I fell into a very unfortunate habit. I began to kill people without rhyme or reason. That is to say, I killed them in print. If I so much as heard that a Broadway character who had once been something had died, I immediately rushed to a typewriter and gave that character an obituary that was calculated to bring tears even to the eyes of a motion picture executive.

All of which, as far as it went, was strictly okay. The only trouble was that it didn't go far enough. After I had buried them to the accompaniment of many sobs, my characters had a very exasperating habit of turning up again in a most annoying healthy fashion. Maybe you'll recall a few of them:

I wrote a lengthy piece on the stormy career of Joe (Two-Gun) Murphy, formerly a feared member of the narcotic squad. It was well received and the ending was particularly spectacular, because Mr. Murphy met his end when both he and his car were riddled by machine gun bullets on the outskirts of Chicago. About three weeks after I buried him Mr. Murphy turned up in my office and assured me I had been slightly mistaken. Was my face green? . . .

Then there was the story of the attractive Kitty Banks. She had worked too hard in the Broadway cabarets to support her mother. She had been advertised as the physical culture girl, but she had developed tuberculosis. If I am not mistaken, I buried her in the city of Denver, Col.

Some three years later, I was sitting in a Broadway restaurant when a beautiful damsel tapped my shoulder. I leaped to my feet.

"You don't remember me, do you, Mr. Hellinger?" she murmured. "My name is Kitty Banks. I've been waiting so long to tell you that your article about me was highly amusing. Do I look like a corpse to you?"

Well, it's just as Barney Gallant says. On Broadway, you never know when they're going to cross you . . .

You'll probably remember the mistake in the case of Ralph Farnum, theatrical representative and a grand guy. Newspapers all over the country reported the fact that Ralph had gone to his doom in the wastes of Death Valley. I wasn't going to be caught again—and I waited several days longer to make sure that he was really gone. When it seemed absolutely certain that he had perished.

Now, Ralph is one sweet person and I'm happy that he's with us again. But look what he did to me. Exactly two hours after my story had gone to press the wires carried the news that Ralph had turned up, safe and sound, and wanted to know what all the shooting was about. Wouldn't you think the man might have had a little more consideration?

Well, that finished me. I made up my mind right then and there—and I think I wrote about it at the time—that I will never write another obituary until the body had been lowered into the grave.

"Mark," I told myself, "you've been a dope for the last time. No more sob stuff about a person's passing unless you're sure that you know what you're talking about."

So I took my own advice and laid off. Not since the Ralph Farnum case have I taken any undue chances.

If you happened to read yesterday's column, you will recall that I mourned the loss of Barney, my English bulldog. I loved the animal. And, as he had been missing for three days, I went over his history and gave him a fitting obituary.

And, would you believe it, he turned up five hours later just as healthy and happy as he had ever been! . . .

IT'S AN Al Klein fable, this story of Herbert Blinks. I hope you like.

Poor Herbert was one of those birds who could never hold down a job. He went drifting from one place to another. A lot of it was sheer tough luck. A company would go bankrupt, another spot might burn, poor Herbert might get sick, and so on and so forth. Whatever the cause, Herbert could never get settled.

Came the day when it was necessary for him to take a job as a bookkeeper on a Pacific island. The only reason he got the job was because nobody else wanted it. But his tough luck still pursued him. Half-way to the island the ship was wrecked. And we find Herbert as a castaway on the wrong island, the sole survivor of the wreck.

He had but one thing for company, and that was a large book that had floated ashore with him. Herbert turned the pages idly, and found it was a catalogue from the house of Pears, Soebuck and Company, the largest mail order concern in the United States. As he glanced at the text and the illustrations, a terrific idea hit him.

Why not master the complete catalogue? Why not, since he had nothing but time on his hands, learn every item on every page by heart? And then, when he was rescued, why not go to the president of the concern and prove that he knew more about the business than the president himself? Could he fail? Surely not.

So Herbert Blinks went to work. Every moment not spent in gathering food was devoted to studying that catalogue. When he was finally picked up by a tramp steamer, seven months later, he had successfully mastered every line in the complete catalogue of 1,763 pages! . . .

After a million miles of red tape had been unwound, Herbert Blinks found himself before the president of Pears, Soebuck & Co. At last the big moment was at hand. Herbert Blinks was to have a job for life!

"So," the Big Man grunted, "you know every word in our catalogue."

"I do," replied Herbert confidently. "Try me."

The president tried him. He asked him the number of the porcelain-top tables. Blinks told him. He asked him for cross files and index numbers. Blinks told him. The Big Man finally reached for the catalogue on Blink's lap—the catalogue he had studied. He nodded, and looked at the calendar.

"Let me see," murmered the Big Man, "this is Oct. 15, 1931. You want a job, eh? Well, you can come to work for us during the season of Fall and Winter, 1927—the date on this catalogue!" . . .

PITT-TECH FEUD RENEWAL HIT

Student councils of both Pitt and Tech have acted to suppress undergraduate efforts to revive the traditional bitterness between the two schools as revealed today.

The Pitt Weekly, undergraduate publication, disclosed that the campus feud was disclosed that councils of both schools are working vigorously to suppress the revival of ill-feeling.

Pitt students who invaded the Tech campus last week and painted the slogan worn Pitt on the giant goal posts on the steps of the Administration Building were subjected to severe criticism by Dean of Men Robert C. Clothier of Pitt. He said:

"It is extremely regrettable that any undergraduate in an institution as large as ours should be guilty of such conduct. Certainly it is indicative of a positive immaturity, an absence of the pledged responsibilities of students."

Chicago Teachers Get Cash at Last

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—AP.—Chicago school teachers, unpaid with real money since last spring, today were able to take a step toward end of their financial ruin. They received one month's pay made possible by the city's purchase of cash of $4,650,000 in 1931 school tax anticipation warrants.

New Shoes Bring Joy, Death to Aged Man

DENTON, Md., Oct. 30.—AP.—A pair of new shoes brought temporary happiness to Charles Dolan, 78-year-old resident of the Caroline County almshouse. He put them on, smiled and started to go downstairs.

At the top of the landing the smooth soles caused him to slip and he fell to his death.

HOME IN N. Y., SCHWAB SWEARS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—AP.—Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation wants it understood he is a resident of New York.

He said in seeking a supreme court order to vacate a notice to take his deposition in a suit against two brokerage firms for commissions on the sale of 95,000 shares of stock once owned by him. The notice had said Schwab was not a resident of New York and therefore not available as a witness. His affidavit said:

"I am not a resident of Loretto, Pa., as stated in said subpena and notice. I have a country home in Loretto, but my residence is and for more than 50 years has been in the city, county and state of New York."

The order, signed by Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Gennon, requires Victor D. Shokire and Michael V. Kiely to show cause why the notice should not be vacated.

ESKIMO FINDS 'LOST' ISLAND

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Oct. 30.—AP.—The reported finding of an unmapped island in the Arctic Ocean approximately 150 miles north of the mouth of Colville River is taken by old-timers to confirm a similar discovery some 75 years ago.

Recent arrivals from the east coast say the island, rocky and a mile or more in length, was found by an Eskimo, Takpuk, and the crew of his 10-ton whaling schooner, when they were blown off their course in a storm. Takpuk said the crew landed there.

Old-timers recalled that about 75 years ago a whaling ship, under the command of a Capt. Keenan, also reported finding land in that approximate location in the ocean. Several explorers have searched for the island without success.

Two-Day Plane Link To Colombia Near

BOGOTA, Columbia, Oct. 30.—AP.—A proposed international airways hookup which would bring Bogota within two days of the United States was brought nearer completion by the Scadta air lines announcement of a new flying field at Dorada, 40 minutes by air across the Andes from Bogota.

It was understood that beginning in December two 40-passenger planes will shuttle on alternate days between Miami, Fla., and Barranquilla, in a one-day service.

LOOTING RADIO SHOP ADMITTED

Accused of having looted the Professional Radio Service Company with offices in the Professional Building, Penn avenue, where he was employed as building superintendent, Louis Nagy, 42, of 7854 Upland street, confessed in Magistrate Leo Rothenberg's Central Police Court today. Nagy absolved Arthur Smith, 29, a mechanic, of 7238 Mt. Vernon street, also arrested.

Radio accessories to the value of $400 had been stolen, it was testified. Nagy, after admitting the theft, said he had loaned tubes and accessories to Smith, whose radio was not working properly, and that Smith knew nothing of the thefts. Both men were held for a further hearing.

STRAUS RICHES GO TO CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Enjoining her children to consult each other regarding family problems, Mrs. Lina Straus, mother of Nathan Straus, Jr., left her estate of over $2,000,000 to her three children.

There were no provisions in the will filed yesterday, merely the wish:

"That none of my children or grandchildren shall ever marry out of the faith, and I enjoin upon them always to be and remain good Jews."

Auto Dead, Buried, Woman Reports To State

HARRISBURG, Oct. 30.—Miss Helen M. Lohman's touring car may be "buried" at Worcester, Mass., but it will not be recorded in the Bureau of Motor Vehicles here as officially "dead" until she returns her certificate of title for cancellation.

Recently the Bureau sent Miss Lohman, who resides in Philadelphia, an application for a 1932 registration. She returned the application with a notation that:

"This car was killed at Worcester, Mass., on September 11, 1931. It is buried there."

The Bureau will advise Miss Lohman to return her certificate of title so that the registration may be canceled.

POLICE TO CURB PRANKS HERE

Pittsburgh's police department, augmented by 150 extra men, will patrol various sections of the city tomorrow night, to check Halloween depredations, according to Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh. Most of the special police will be concentrated in the downtown section, where the large number of Halloween celebrants are expected to gather in the old Pittsburgh custom.

Both Director James M. Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, and Supt. Walsh said many things would be tolerated, but property destruction was absolutely tabooed.

Makers Of Vicks VapoRub Score Another Advance In Home-Control Of Colds

Vick Chemists Develop the Perfect Ally to Vicks VapoRub—Introduces New Idea in Preventing Colds and Makes Possible the Vick Plan to Reduce the Family "Colds-Tax."

FREE TRIAL PACKAGES

Local Druggists Have Free Samples for Users of Vicks VapoRub.

Mothers of two generations have depended on Vicks VapoRub for treating the family's colds. Now, in 26 million homes, they welcome the newly discovered perfect ally to VapoRub—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—based on a new idea in preventing colds. Together, these two ideal, direct applications provide the new Vick Plan for better "Control of Colds" in the home—and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax."

Here is the Vick "Colds-Control" Plan:

1.—Before a Cold Starts.

On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens — when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Strikes.

During the day—anytime, any place—use the convenient Vicks Drops as often as needed. At night, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bedclothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This gives you full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, try the new Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

Trial Packages Free.

In order that every user of Vicks VapoRub may test the new Vick Plan of better "Control of Colds" in the home, every druggist in the United States has been sent a supply of samples. Get yours today. If your druggist's supply is exhausted, send us the top of a Vicks VapoRub carton—or coupon from the VapoRub directions folder—and we will mail you a trial package of Vicks Nose Drops (also a sample of Vicks Medicated Cough Drops) together with a folder on the Vick Plan for "Control of Colds" in the home. Address Vick Chemical Co., 1003 Milton St., Greensboro, N. C.

HOLDUP FOILED BY MOTORMAN

CHARLEROI, Pa., Oct. 30.—Attempted holdup of a Charleroi-Donora and Monongahela street car near Elders Park was frustrated by Motorman Dan Testy, 41, of Charleroi, early today when he plowed his car through a barricade of boulders on the tracks. The bandit, who was believed to have been injured when struck by the street car, escaped. He was described as youthful and was attired in overalls.

Testy told police that as he saw the barricade, he retarded the speed, and the front trucks drove through the barricade, but the rear trucks became fast. The bandit pulled the trolley pole from the wire. Testy placed the front trolley pole on the wire and the car sped away.

Lily Pons Named In $100,000 Suit

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Lily Pons, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was made defendant in a $100,000 suit today by Maria Gay Zenatello.

Mrs. Zenatello, former operatic singer, declares in the suit filed here and in another filed in New York, seeking $350,000, that Miss Pons broke a contract whereby Mrs. Zenatello was to be her manager and get 15 per cent of her earnings.

Dentist Must Face Charge of Murder

RENO, Nev., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—A motion to quash the information charging Dr. Carl Pierre Andre, former Fairmont, W. Va., dentist, with the murder of Martha Hutchinson, was denied by Judge Thomas Moran in District Court. Defense counsel had attacked the information on the grounds that Andre had not been accorded a legal preliminary hearing and that there was not reasonable probable cause shown in support of the murder charge. Andre is to plead November 8.

Strawn Advises U. S. To Quit 'Whining'

DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—What America needs to do, in the opinion of Silas Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, is to "quit whining about the depression and get down to business."

He said that one of the ills that aggravated the present economic situation was the mounting costs of government and rising taxes.

Alimony Payment Frees Mitchell Aide

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—His payment of $135 back alimony to his wife purged Philip H. Marcum, a special attorney in the office of United States Attorney General Mitchell, of a charge of contempt of court. He was cited by District of Columbia Supreme Court for contempt for failing to make the payments.

Let's talk Straight from the Shoulder

WHAT'S the net of this cigarette question? Let's lay the facts face up.

What you want in a cigarette is taste. You want mildness . . . smoothness . . . and pleasure when you smoke.

You rule out harshness, bitterness and bite.

IT'S no secret that Chesterfield pays top prices . . . yes, and a premium for the ripest, mellowest, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows.

But it makes Chesterfields taste better and smoke smoother . . . and that to us is a justifiable extravagance.

The men who do the curing and conditioning are specialists, too . . . carefully trained in handling these fine tobaccos.

• • •

IN BLENDING, Chesterfields are also different.

Instead of merely mixing the tobaccos together . . . we cross-blend them. It's like making a new and better-tasting kind of tobacco—a tobacco with greater smoothness, more mildness, and a more pleasing aroma. That's how we get that Chesterfield flavor. Milder . . . riper . . . mellower.

What about cigarette paper? . . . That's part of the story, too. Only the best that's made—the purest and finest—is good enough for Chesterfield.

Pick up a package. Note its clean appearance . . . free from heavy inks. And it's moisture-proof.

And three big factories at Richmond, Durham and San Francisco—operating under the strictest sanitary standards—rush them fresh to you.

Good . . . they've got to be good. Because they're made that way.

And most important of all . . . you can taste this goodness in the cigarette. You can tell it in the smoke.

Light up, Mister! Try Chesterfield.

Let the cigarette do its own talking. You'll get the whole thrilling story, in just two words . . . "They Satisfy"!

"Yes Sir—Mild yet they Satisfy"

HUSBAND SUES IRENE RICH

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Irene Rich, motion picture actress, plans to fight the divorce suit which her husband, David Blankenhorn, filed here yesterday.

Blankenhorn charged cruelty. He alleged Miss Rich told him she didn't love him and that living with him had become burdensome and detrimental to her career. His action was filed after the actress indicated a divorce was planned. Mendel Silberberg, her attorney, said:

"Miss Rich will contest the divorce. It will be understood this will be done with no bitterness, for there is none between them. It will be only for protection of her legal rights."

The Blankenhorns were married April 6, 1927, at Monterey, Cal., and separated May 14, 1931.

EXPECT VOTE INDICTMENTS

A grand jury presentment recommending indictments in the phantom voting phase of the primary election, September 15, may be made on Monday, it was indicated today, when the grand jury, instead of calling more witnesses, began reviewing the testimony taken during the past two weeks.

Attaches of the District Attorneys office said there was all likelihood that the presentment would be made on Monday despite the fact that the recommendation of indictments on the eve of Election Day might cause a political furore. District Attorney Andrew T. Park has left the entire matter up to the jurors and decision whether they will make a presentment on Monday or summon additional witnesses must come from them.

Beer Seized, 3 Men Arrested by Raiders

Prohibition agents reported seizing 38 barrels of beer and 400 pints of home brew while arresting three men early today in a raid on the Ye Olde Oaken Bucket, Brownsville road, Finleyville. N. Y. Theaters Fight For Sunday Drama

SEE HOLMES' RETIREMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The absence of the familiar figure of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes from the Supreme Court bench this week has increased the fears of his friends that the active career of one of America's greatest jurists may be near an end.

His present illness, an attack of lumbago, is not regarded as serious. He may return to his work shortly, but his general physical condition has led to apprehension that the burden of his duties is becoming too great for his strength.

Regardless, he will go on as long as he can. Ninety in March, he could have retired on full pay long ago. And long ago he ended speculation that he might retire voluntarily by writing a friend that he would go on so long as his mind and body permitted.

Ten years ago his health seemed to be failing, but care restored the vitality he inherited from New England ancestors.

Circus Men Sought In Train Death

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Sheriff W. H. Holcombe, of Mobile County, has asked police of Granger, Ia., to take into custody Earl Sennett, former employe of the Robbins Brothers Circus, on a warrant charging murder.

Warrants were sworn out for Sennett and Ralph Nobles, also a circus worker, following the death of John Smith, a Negro, from injuries received when he is alleged to have been thrown from the circus train as it was leaving Mobile for winter quarters.

SEIZE FARMS WITH STILLS

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—What is said to be the government's first confiscation of farm lands, on which the national prohibition act had been violated, was revealed here with the announcement that Federal Judge Louis Fitzhenry has ordered the seizure of more than 20 acres in Putnam and Bureau counties where prohibition agents found two stills in 1930.

E. L. Yellowley, Federal district administrator, said the proceedings opened a new avenue of attack for prohibition enforcers and were based on a 67-year-old statute directed at operation of illegal distilleries.

Twenty acres of Joseph Engelhaupt's 520-acre farm in Putnam County and 1.87 acres of Elmer F. Flaherty's 208-acre farm in Bureau County, will be sold by the government.

Yellowley said the statute was invoked against them because the stills on their properties were of such size that they must have known of their existence.

OLD WATER GAP HOTEL BURNS

DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The Kittatinny Hotel, one of the best known summer resorts in this section, was destroyed by fire early today. The loss was estimated at more than $600,000.

The hotel, a four-story frame structure, was closed for the season several weeks ago. It stood on a rock cliff above the Lackawanna Railroad.

An extensive collection of antiques owned by Mrs. John Purdy Cope, whose husband was manager of the hostelry, was destroyed.

Traffic over the Lackawanna trail and Lackawanna Railroad was tied up for several hours.

More than 800 women greeted Mrs. Charles S. Shoemaker, new president of the Twentieth Century Club, at the reception given in her honor yesterday from 4 until 7 o'clock. Mrs. Shoemaker, wearing a most becoming gown of eggplant chiffon, with a shoulder bouquet of orchids, and a small black ostrich-tipped hat, stood at the head of the long receiving line in the lounge. In the line were also the honorary presidents, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., wearing black rhinestone-trimmed chiffon and small black hat, and Mrs. William Reed Thompson, in black and turquoise blue velvet; Mrs. William C. Hamilton, an honorary member, wearing black satin and hat to match, and the vice presidents, Mrs. Frank Trevor Hogg, in violet; Mrs. William Watson Smith, wearing green crepe and matching hat of felt; Mrs. Howard H. McClintic, also in green, and Mrs. John A. Murtland in purple velvet.

The clubhouse was beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers. The two large Italian vases in the lounge held gorgeous chrysanthemums and on one table were placed several gift bouquets which had been sent to Mrs. Shoemaker. The two long tea tables in the dining room were centered with silver candelabra, whose branches supported bowls of hothouse fruits. Low mounds of small chrysanthemums were at each end of the two long tables, the small ones holding bowls of fruit.

Mrs. William J. Holland, as chairman of hostesses, had asked a number of the members to pour in half-hour relays, among them being Mrs. William Maclay Hall, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. McClintic, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Thaw, Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, Miss Alice Gray, Mrs. William Booth Trainer, Mrs. James I. Kay, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, Mrs. William Scott, Mrs. Howard Heinz, Mrs. Stewart Johnston, Mrs. George W. McKee, Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock and Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, who, however, was absent due to illness at home.

A string trio on the ballroom balcony was heard from all points of the house. Those guests who looked into the ballroom found a striking and advantageous change there. The last few rows of seats have been raised and railed into 17 boxes, which afford a better view of the stage than was formerly possible.

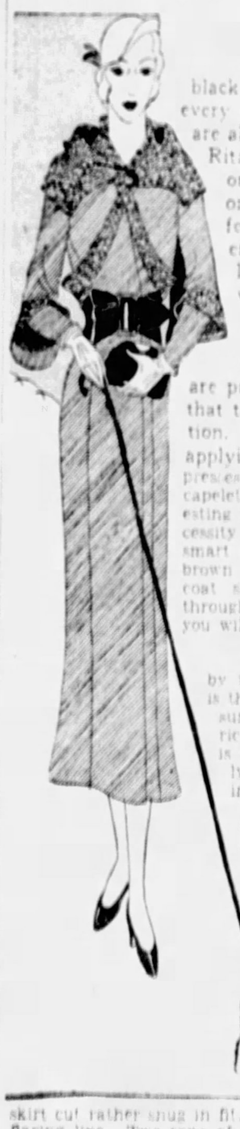
CHARMING BLACK COATS EXPRESS MUCH ORIGINALITY

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.



PARIS, Oct. 30.—Variations on one theme must surely apply to the black coat with black trimming. Such coats are in the wardrobe of almost every smart woman here and yet when they are all on parade, say at luncheon time at the Ritz on a brisk autumn day, there is not one coat that does not show points of originality or which exactly duplicates its fellows. And yet all are black coats, either in woolen, or what is more popular here, broadcloth, and are trimmed with silver or black fox, astrakan, real Persian lamb or ermine.

* * *

COLLAR AND SLEEVE trimmings are put in in various ways and one wonders that there are still yet new ways of application. For it is principally in the method of applying the trimming that the coat expresses its originality. And with the revival of capelets and odd collars, coats will be more interesting than ever. If your coat wardrobe is of necessity restricted we would advise you to get a very smart all-black coat rather than one in green, brown or red. This together with your winter coat should see you safely and very smartly through the season until well into spring. And you will always look very smart.

* * *

TODAY WE SHOW a drawing of a coat by that very brilliant designer, Bruyere, who is the last word in coats. She has used a dull-surfaced black broadcloth and trimmed it richly with black astrakan. The odd collar is double, consisting of a narrow inner piece lying close against the neck and extending in front in a diagonal line which curves around and crosses the back in a cuff-like manner, attached to the lower edge only. A second, wider, crushed collar, sitting well away from the neck and extending over the shoulder, is draped up in front and buttoned. Inverted "cuffs" of astrakan are placed just below the elbows on the close fitting sleeves. The exceedingly broad patent leather belt is about eight inches at its widest point.

* * *

WE SHOW ALSO one of the very newest evening frocks. It is by Bernard et Cie. It is pale cyclamen satin and has the bodice and upper part of the skirt cut rather snug in fit. But the vertical panels which constitute the skirt widens generously in a flaring line. Two rows of fluted fans of the material are placed at intervals around the lower edge. Each fan motif is double and stands out rather like a fungus on a tree-trunk in effect. The narrow belt has an elaborate jewelled buckle.

WESTINGHOUSE LINKED IN VOTE BOARD FIGHT

SIGNERS ADMIT REQUEST BY BOSSES

Court Bans Intimations Wilmerding Men Had Been Intimidated; Rule Delayed

Ten signers to a petition asking that three indicted election board members of the Fourth District, Wilmerding, be ousted, testified in court today that they had done so at the request of men who are Westinghouse foremen.

Judge James H. Gray, who held the hearing on the petition, filed by Independent voters of Wilmerding, after first indicating he would grant it, announced at the conclusion he would render a decision later.

The signers had been subpenaed by Attorney James P. Philpott, who attacked the petition, declaring the signatures had been obtained by coercion of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company.

ASKED TO SIGN

The signers, most of them understanding English with difficulty, testified that interpreters had explained the situation to them and that they had signed the petition because their "bosses" had requested them to.

One of the 10, Stanley Killar, testified:

"They told me the board was no good and that we had to make the board right, so I signed."

Judge Gray objected to intimations by Philpott that the men had been intimidated.

OFFICIAL EXPLAINS

B. A. Bevin, a company official, testified the petition had been brought to the plant at 2 p. m. and as it was wanted for filing in the Courthouse at 4 p. m., the men were called in and asked to sign after explanation had been made.

Those whom the court is asked to oust are Carmine Trengo, judge of elections; Joseph Figlia, majority inspector, and Louis Botto, minority inspector, all indicted on vote cheat charges. Those suggested to take their places are Edgar Donaldson, S. L. Smith and S. Howard Smith.

163 VOTES OFF

The independents opposed to the organization of John Volpe won a victory in Common Pleas Court late yesterday when Judge James R. Macfarlane ordered stricken from the registry lists of the Fourth District of Wilmerding, the names of 163 persons, for these reasons:

Dead	5
Not citizens	8
No such address	6
Error	1
Moved	35
Not found	108

The vote of the district in the primary election had been thrown out by the court previously after hearing charges of fraudulent and "phantom" voting. Hearings were begun last Friday on the attack on the registry list, which charged that 240 names were fictitious or "phantoms," that nine women were not citizens and that six persons listed were dead.

$2,800 Gems Stolen From Walker Home

City detectives today had found no trace of thieves who stole diamond rings valued at $2,800 from the apartment of Mrs. K. P. Walker yesterday at 225 Melwood avenue. Mrs. Walker discovered her loss upon her return from downtown. One ring, containing nine diamonds was valued at $1,800. Detectives said they believed a pass key had been used to enter the apartment.

Einstein's Realm Now Four Rooms And Kitchenette

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Things are getting so tough that Einstein is disputing his own theories.

He just laid another scientific egg that gums up the first four Einstein guesses. In liquid measure Einstein means one stein. And that was knocked off by our own eighteenth theory.

The German mathematical athlete is convinced that space has five dimensions. Four rooms and a kitchenette.

He certainly picked a sweet moment to plaster us with more statistics. The Navy is shrinking like flannel underwear, the Bank of England has discarded its gold wedding ring and if Wall street goes any further south the boys will think Spanish moss is money.

Sights Thrill Child Cured Of Blindness

EDNA GODDARD, 9

BELLAIRE, O., Oct. 30.—Born with a double cataract over both eyes, nine-year-old Edna Goddard, of this city, can see for the first time. Amazed at the wonders she is now seeing every day, Edna is delighted with colors and toys and flowers.

After a surgeon's knife tore the dark veil from her eyes and the bandages were removed, the first person she saw was her mother. Of this event, she said:

"Mamma looked so different from what I supposed she would. I didn't know that eyes were of a different color from the rest of the face. Everything is so bright and different."

She marveled at the sight of an automobile. To her, it was "a funny looking thing with round things on the bottom." A movie was only a conglomeration of strangely moving objects. So little Miss Goddard must learn everything anew.

The operation was performed by Dr. Leo Covert after civic clubs became interested in the child.

Alice in Wonderland never had half the revelations that Edna is having on her first visit to the land of sight and color. One of the greatest marvels in this new land—she is true to her sex—is a small mirror in which her own reflection is of never-ending enjoyment to her. She looks into it and giggles:

"I'm so funny!"

WILL ROGERS SAYS

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Oct. 30.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Early in the autumn Mrs. Rogers and I sent two sons away—supposedly to school. (We got tired trying to get 'em up in the morning.) One went north here in this state, another to New Mexico. Since then we have received no word or letter. We have looked in every football team all over the country. Guess they couldn't make the teams—knew their education was a failure and kept right on going. Any news from any source will be welcome. I am flying to Mexico City. The big one spoke Spanish, so maybe he is there. The little one didn't even speak English, but he loved chili and hot tamales, so he may be there, too. Yours, WILL.

FATHER FREED IN SON'S SUICIDE

Charles D. Baker, 56, of Penn Township, and his housekeeper, Mary Gill, 32, were released by county detectives today after an autopsy on the body of the former's son, Paul B. Baker, 32, revealed that he had ended his own life. He was found shot to death in the Baker home, a pistol nearby.

The elder Baker told detectives his son had taken the gun with a threat of killing a man whom he had found with a girl he had visited. He dissuaded him. Baker did, and later found his son dead.

3 POLICE HURT AT FOOTBALL

In the name of charity, football teams of the McKeesport police and fire departments met last night on War Memorial Field, McKeesport.

It was their third meeting and the rivalry seethed to a feverish pitch. When the "smoke" of the battle lifted—

Hopkins is in McKeesport Hospital.

Gray and Prosser were nursing their injuries at home, vowing:

"Never again."

More fortunate members of the police department, however, went about their duties, greeting fellow citizens:

"Wait until next year. We'd have won if the firemen hadn't hurt our boys."

LONG RELEASED AFTER GRILLING

Roxie Long, of "The Hill," famous for his ball-jumping journey to France some years ago, was questioned today by county detectives in search of clues to the murders of Jack Palmere and Sam (Toto) Amarosa, beer supply racketeers.

He was released after the grilling, but instructed to report to the city homicide squad tomorrow for further questioning.

Detectives said that Long admitted he knew both murdered men, but denied he had any dealings with them or that he knew anything of their deaths. Detectives said they had been seeking Long since the arrest of John Hobson, 28, Negro, of Youngstown, O.

Hobson told them, police say, that he had worked for Palmere and that Long was one of Palmere's customers. Detectives quoted Hobson as saying that he had delivered 24 five-gallon cans of moonshine from Palmere's establishment to Long.

Halloween pranks were today blamed by police for the dumping of a wagon of the American Reduction Company in the land chamber of Lock No. 1, Monongahela River.

The wagon presented a difficult problem to workers who found it necessary to close the lock. Patrick Haney, 34, 97 South Eighth street, arrested, denied the charge and was held for a further hearing.

LONG-CYR ROW BLOCKS BONDS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—A proposed sale of $12,000,000 worth of Louisiana highway and bridge bonds has been canceled because New York bankers are in doubt as to who could legally sign them as Governor.

Gov. Huey P. Long announced cancellation of the sale, set for November 2, and blamed the ouster suit filed against him by his Lieutenant Governor, Dr. Paul N. Cyr, who claims Long vacated the governor's chair when he certified his election to the United States Senate last March.

Cyr, contending he legally succeeded Long as Governor, took the chief executive's oath and Long for a time maintained police guards at state house and mansion with orders to throw Cyr out if he attempted to enter as governor.

FESS TO STAY AS CHAIRMAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Senator Fess, of Ohio, yesterday agreed to keep a job he has been trying to get rid of—being chairman of the Republican National Committee—until after the party convention next year.

He gave this word to Republican leaders who have been canvassing the party situation preliminary to the meeting of the national committee here in December to select the convention city.

Announcing his decision Senator Fess said:

"I will continue as chairman until the national convention is held and completed. Of course with the selection of candidates a manager for the campaign must then take over."

Because Fess previously expressed a desire to be relieved of the post when Congress convenes, President Hoover and Republican chieftains have been casting about for a new chairman.

VIOLIN WEALTH OF GYPSY KING

Racz Laczi, king of the Hungarian Gypsies, visited Pittsburgh yesterday with his band of 10 men. Lively Gypsy tunes were played without benefit of notes by the king and his men, the leader playing on his famous black violin, more than 400 years old, and valued at $50,000.

The violin has been in the family of the 62-year-old king for many generations, and he considers himself fortunate in being singled out from among his father's 48 children to receive it. He is the thirty-sixth son.

Racz Laczi, Jr., the king's 12-year-old son, is one of the members of the band. In the United States only six weeks, the boy said that he liked this country and wants to stay here the rest of his life. His father shares the wish.

The Gypsy orchestra, composed principally of string and percussion instruments, played at Moose Temple last night. They will continue their American tour.

FATE OF CYPRUS TO BE DECIDED

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The future status of the Island of Cyprus, where a revolt against British rule broke out recently, will be discussed by the British government with Sir Ronald Storrs, governor of the island, the colonial office announced.

The governor was informed the colonial office planned, in consultation with him, to review the whole constitutional future of the colony with special regard to questions arising out of the disorders, which were aimed at union of the island with Greece. The message said:

"It is obvious that liberties given under the present constitution have been abused by disloyal political leaders. Accordingly, in the general interest of the people of Cyprus, his majesty's government will have to review, in consultation with you, the whole question of the constitutional future of the island."

Girl Bandit, Mate Obtain Jobs As Freedom Nears

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The state is convinced that lawful pursuits the Cooneys, Ed and Celia, abandoned in 1924 for banditry, will swallow them up when they are released from state prisons next month.

A prison commissioner said that jobs had been obtained and that they probably would be returned to society about November 6. Ed is at Dannemora and Celia, the "bobbed-haired bandit" of seven years ago, at Auburn.

FORD CONFIRMS PAY CUT

DETROIT, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The Ford Motor Company has returned to the $6-a-day minimum wage, abandoning the $7 "emergency rate" placed in effect December 1, 1929, which it described as a $35,000,000 "contribution to the betterment of conditions."

A statement issued last night said the company reverted three weeks ago to the $6 rate "paid by the company throughout the so-called 'prosperity years' of 1919 to 1929." The statement said:

"The Ford Motor Company has not changed its standard wage rates nor abandoned its basic wage principles. Its wages remain the highest in the automotive industry."

For several weeks there have been persistent rumors of a wage readjustment in Ford plants, but until last night company officials declined to discuss them.

5TH AVENUE BAR RAIDED AGAIN

Prohibition agents today reported seizing a quantity of whisky, beer and alcohol in a raid last night at a place on the second floor at 809 Fifth avenue, in which employes escaped with money from the cash box.

Agents said that a "fish fry" had evidently been prepared for the "free lunch" counter, and that very little of it had been eaten before the raid.

The raid was the second in a month, according to the agents, who said that the place was one of the best known in the city. Scores of customers, found partaking of the free lunch, were not arrested, it was said. The place contained a 30-foot bar, according to the agents.

TRAFFIC GROUP SEEKS HEARING ON NEW CODE

Committee Votes to Ask Council Act on Rules Submitted Four Times

Members of the Better Traffic Committee, meeting yesterday in council chambers, voted to ask Council for a hearing on the committee's proposed codified traffic ordinance, and appointed a special committee to interest other civic bodies in arguing the case.

It was pointed out that the code was recently submitted to Council for the fourth time in two years and is in line with recent amendments to the state vehicle code as well as the "Hoover" model municipal traffic ordinance.

Five parking and traffic control ordinances were recommended to the director of the Department of Public Safety for a 60-day trial. The recommendations asked that parking be restricted to one hour between 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. on both sides of Walnut street from Ivy street to Aiken avenue; that parking be prohibited from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. on the east side of Forty-third street from Willow street to the railroad and on both sides of Braddock avenue from Hamilton avenue to Formosa way, and that parking be prohibited on the south side of Frankstown avenue for a distance of 230 feet west of Colliers street.

Film Stars Spend Vacations And Spare Hours Taking Motion Pictures

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 30

Home movies are becoming a fad in Hollywood. Irving Thalberg has a two reel picture of his son, taken with a small camera. He is having it titled at the studio. Reginald Denny is another who will have a complete photographic record of his new baby. Even Producer Louis B. Mayer made home movies of his trip to Alaska.

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey got a camera-record of their European trip. Connie Talmadge did the same. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon photographed Honolulu. So did Warner Baxter. Jean Hersholt went so far as to start a camera company. He recently sold it. I believe Buster Keaton is another home movie fan specializing on all foreign actresses that come to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot. Wallie Beery has bought all available special lenses and takes pictures from his plane. Mary Astor brings her camera to the studio and photographs the stars.

Miss Talmadge

IS THIS ECONOMY?

If you can believe Bert Hanlon a certain Hollywood restaurant is hiring midgets for waiters so the portions will look larger.

GOSSIP OR WHAT?

Consternation reigns in one of the larger film studios because of a new rule that requires a stenographer to take down everything said during story conferences. A typed report is then sent to production officials. . . Russell Gleason was to the Belasco Theater with Maureen O'Sullivan. . . Fifi Dorsay will return to Hollywood to spend the Christmas holidays with her fiance, Terry Ray, but plans to resume her vaudeville tour immediately afterwards. . . George Arliss is another who arrives here soon. He goes to work on his picture, "The Man Who Played God." . . . As if things weren't bad enough with the surviving miniature golf courses Tom Lennon went out the other night and single-handedly put one out of business. It seems the course offered $50 to anyone breaking par. Tom cut it a stroke. As he started on another round the owner lowered par a stroke. Tom broke it again. Then he promptly broke it a third time. In complete disgust the owner made him a check and shut up shop for good.

George Arliss

IN THE NEWS

After an extended search, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is at last filling the roles in "Freaks." Tod Browning's story of sideshow life in a circus. Harry Earles, the midget who played in both the silent and talkie versions of "The Unholy Three," will have one of the principal parts. Appearing with him will be his sister Daisy, also a midget, who has worked in circuses but never before the screen. Another sister, Tiny, is a midget but oddly enough there is a normal brother in the family and both parents are normal.

ARLEN STAYS ON GROUND

That airplane vacation of Dick Arlen is off. On the verge of his departure for Vancouver, Paramount cast him opposite Miriam Hopkins in "Two Kinds of Women." This is the film version of Robert E. Sherwood's play, "This Is New York."

William De Mille directs the picture, which will go into production next week.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Exclusive pictures of Ramsay MacDonald, Great Britain's Premier, on the eve of his great triumph are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn and other theaters. MacDonald is shown mingling with the voters of his district. He makes a statement that the Empire will eventually surmount its difficulties.

The anti-government forces of Adolf Hitler, in Germany, are shown gathered at an enormous rally staged after the failure to dissolve Chancellor Bruening's cabinet. Hitler's threat to enlist the people on the side of the National Socialists is shown in the review of his troops and the singing of the national anthem.

JOHNSON DENOUNCES

Senator Hiram Johnson of California in an exclusive statement to Metrotone bitterly condemns the action of the federal government in sending a representative to the League of Nations during the China-Japan dispute.

Latest in coiffures for milady is shown in a series of lacquered wigs shining like a colored gentleman's heel and of as many hues as Joseph's coat worn by pretty models.

TRICK SCENE OF AKRON

Premier Mussolini attends a tremendous review of Rome police in which thousands of the Eternal City's finest take part.

Many thrills attend an exciting "drag" hunt through the suburbs of Berlin by members of the Reichswehr Riding Club. Men, women, horses and dogs follow the trail. A treacherous spot near a high fence bowls the contestants over with the greatest number of spills ever recorded at one time.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

James R. Liddy, who will have the role of Nanki Poo in "The Mikado," which will bring Mme. Schumann-Heink to the Alvin Monday, is a graduate of the University of California and of "Artists and Models" and "The Student Prince." The former gave him a couple degrees for finishing a course in mining engineering.

The dances and ensembles of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," coming Monday to the Nixon, were staged by Ned McGurn. Dialogue by Eddie Welshm, was staged by Charles Ashley. Music and Lyrics are by Jay Gorney, E. Y. Harburg, Harold Arlen and Ted Kohler. The settings were designed by Hugh Willoughby and the costumes by Charles LeMaire and Florence Weber. This sensational announcement is an exclusive news "scoop," two days ahead of the Nixon program.

The Juno of "Juno and the Paycock," Sean O'Casey's play that will be given as part of the repertoire of the Irish Players of the Abbey Theater, Dublin, in the Twentieth Century Club and Carnegie Music Hall next week, is Miss Eileen Crowe, in private life the wife of F. J. McCormick, one of the leading male players of the company. In Dublin she is especially identified with the role of Juno, although she has an extensive repertoire, including Sister Celia in "The Kingdom of God," presented here by Ethel Barrymore.

"Sob Sister" Heroine in Fulton

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Still they come, these newspaper dramas. Now it is "Sob Sister" in the Fulton.

Linda Watkins from the Broadway stage has the title role. James Dunn, remembered as the hero in "Bad Girl," has the male lead. They are cast as rival reporters in a hectic movie duel for news and love.

The girl reporter is some news hound! She beats the men to it on every murder, suicide and kidnaping in the town. She fibs her way into confidences, she cuts telephone wires, she climbs fences.

BREAKFAST FOR TWO

But she has a sort of Jekyl-Hyde personality. In the mornings she's the most feminine, house-wifey person you'd ever hope to meet. She makes muffins and serves breakfast to the rival reporter who lives across the hall.

As the picture draws toward the finale, it goes melodramatic in the manner of a Zane Grey western. A wealthy child is kidnaped, the girl-reporter herself is kidnaped—and it looks for all the world as if she is going to be put on the spot.

THERE'S A MAN HUNT

Now comes a man hunt, with every reporter and every cop in the big town on the trail. It's as exciting as you'd want it to be.

Mr. Dunn again does a good job with his portrayal. The film is packed with lots of entertainment.

MUSIC
MOOSE TEMPLE

Moose Temple was crowded with Hungarian patriots from all over the county last night to hear Racz Laczi and his Gypsy orchestra play native tunes and improvised melodies of the homeland.

Mr. Lissfelt

Racz Laczi is king of Gypsy fiddlers and as he enters the stage he carries his crown and scepter, a page bears his fiddle and bow upon a velvet cushion. Budapest crowned him and nowhere else in the world are they better able to judge a fiddler, some years ago when he directed an orchestra of a thousand players he won the title which he modestly bears.

The King's music is almost entirely improvisation and the wonder of his orchestra is how marvelously it follows him through all his variations and modulations. The monotony of style in this music is only relieved by the spontaneity of themes, and although the lamenting chromatics become a bit sugary, there is a fascination about these improvisations that stirs Hungarians very deeply.

Horvath Lajos was a good entman and judging from the laughter must have told many a good native joke. Varady Juliska, a Hungarian Sophie Tucker, sang some sentimental and snappy popular songs.

5 HELD ON VOTE LAW CHARGES

Four employes of the Dixmont State Hospital for the Insane, and a resident of Overbrook, are at liberty under bond today, pending hearings on charges of violating election laws. They were arrested yesterday on information preferred by Independents and are to be given hearings before Justice of the Peace William A. Thompson, of Bellevue, Saturday.

Those under arrest are Jacob Michaels, of 2545 Homehurst street, Overbrook, and John J. Carlin, Thomas Cronan, Evelyn Eckman and Mrs. Norman Dougherty, all employes at Dixmont. The alleged violations are said to have taken place in Kilbuck Township. The five are accused of voting on forged tax receipts, intimidating voters and soliciting voters at the polls.

Stanley Has Cinderella Hero

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Platinum Blonde," a breezy comedy drama of a newspaper reporter, who marries into high society and finds the aristocratic height makes him dizzy, opened yesterday in the Stanley. It co-features Robert Williams and Jean Harlow, with Mr. Williams doing the acting and Miss Harlow appearing attractive.

Reporter Williams goes to an aristocratic mansion to get the inside dope on a breach of promise suit. And besides getting the story, he gets the fair daughter of the house as a bride.

TIRES OF RICHES

But he becomes tired of valets, who want to dress him; receptions with more guests than a hotel, and halls and drawing rooms that are bigger than museums. So in the end, he walks out on his wealthy wife and goes back to a little girl reporter, who has loved him all the time.

There are many comedy situations in the production. And many of the lines carry a laugh.

Mr. Williams is an amusing fellow, all right. Other players prominent include Walter Catlett and Loretta Young.

CINDERELLA MAN!

"Platinum Blonde" gets away from the usual type of newspaper yarns, and gives the real life reporter a "break." It may make him out half-goofy, but it leaves him with some self-respect.

Factor's 2nd Offer Of $2,000,000 Refused

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—John Factor, stock promoter, known as "Jake the Barber," has renewed his offer to return $2,000,000 of the $6,000,000 he is said to have swindled from English investors in 1927-1928, but Franklyn O. Overmyer, British attorney, refused the offer.

Overmyer insisted that Factor be returned to England for trial. United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, who is hearing the case, is to decide whether Factor shall be returned. Factor asked that a board of arbitration be elected to distribute the money. The hearing was continued.

I Am Discussed

He seems to be a normal sort of lad,
A decent mixer—likes a shady tale;
His instincts and his habits all are male;
I often went to parties at his house,
He traveled with a mighty jolly crowd,
He seems to like to revel and carouse—
It's tough he has to travel 'neath a cloud.

Of course we never say a word to him,
And after all, he may outgrow the vice;
We all have faults—but ours seems mighty slim
Compared with his—I know it isn't nice

To box a fellow's soul and drive the hearse—
But why does he insist on writing verse?

—Don Wahn.

Character

The newsreel editors and even the newspaper chiefs might be interested in an unusual photo. A department store on 125th street features a doorman who takes charge of baby carriages (with the babies in them) while the mothers shop.

Yesterday he governed 12 of them, racing from this one to that one to put back a nipple in a mouth that had skidded, or to feed one a bottle. He also carried one baby in his arms, rocking it to keep it from crying. His is a trying job.

And you should have heard him scold one mother yesterday—for not having a stronger strap on the carriage! Sometimes he takes care of 25 infants at a time.

For crying out loud!

In Other Words

The Monthly Weather Review says in part:

Heheheh

To hear the clowns tell it, the reason the Theater Guild put on a show that started at 4 p. m. was to see what the Guild subscribers looked like in the daytime.

Why Critics Get Gray

And audiences, one supposes. In a play trying out around New York last week (but now happily retired for revision) the author has the inmates of a woman's prison farm handling the keys to the gates, taking care of the discarded clothing of "freshmen" and receiving mail direct from the postman.

All of which in real life in a real jail would result in prisoners disappearing faster than politicians wanted by Seabury.

In Case You Didn't Know

Last year, dozens of graduates of our snootier universities, left high and dry by the decline in the market for customers' men and other luxuries of boom-time business, found there were still a few drops of prestige left in their university records. As graduates, they still were entitled to purchase a certain number of seats for the big games, and most of them did, turning the ducats over to still-solvent but non-university muggs for premiums of $10 to $25 for the season's tickets.

This year, it now seems certain, there will be plenty of tickets for even the biggest of the games and even the dees, dem and dose guys apparently are going to be welcomed by the manager of the football business with a smile and two seats on the 50-yard line.

And the football business might as well know now as later that for the last four or five years the most likely place in New York to inquire for a pair of ducats was in a good speakeasy.

Every Knock Is a Boost

They are saying that Jimmy Durante never says "Gold Bless Me" when he sneezes—because his nose is so long that when he sneezes the noise is too far away for him to hear.

Never Heard of Her!

Take it from one of the editors of a renowned film magazine. It's about the late Edison. Several years ago he was the honor guest at a dinner to which Doug Fairbanks and Mary Pickford were also invited.

It was just about the time that Edison was front-paged with his intelligence test questionaire. Mary, in her speech, eulogized the old gent. Then when he sat down he started to autograph a banquet menu for Mary,

"Er, er," he asked Mary, "how do you spell Pickford?"

Description

Art Bossin: "Why don't you like him?"

Bob Noble: "Oh, he's the kind of a guy who stands and reads the menu posted in a restaurant window!"

Add Hick Towns

"So your town is small, eh?" said a New Yorker.

"Yeh," groaned David Murray, "it's so small that the movie house doorman only wears a captain's uniform!"

Quiteso, Quiteso

O, Mr. Shubert!

And, says Dana L. Cotie, among other innovations in the theater this season that we'd like to see is the old-fashioned S. R. O. sign.

As If We Didn't Know

Sotto Voce

Frederic Lord: Veriwell, sir.

Alma Smith: Don't take it so to heart, dear.

Allan Thill Gerardine: See you there Tuesday eve'g, I'll wear the same face.

Squelch

"He's the sort of a guy who has to drink at least 10 cups of coffee to keep awake while talking about himself!"

Haw!

And Elinson just came in to report that the gangsters are a menace to the show business. They keep the police so busy—Earl Carroll and Mae West can't even get a show raided!

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

WOULD YOU CALL SUCH SUPREME SELF-SACRIFICE SIN?

With the Love Instinct of a Woman for Her Child . . . Fiercely, Passionately She Struggled To Protect Her Little One At Any Cost!

HELEN HAYES

and a remarkable cast of players

NEIL HAMILTON — MARIE PREVOST
JEAN HERSHOLT

From the play "The Lullaby" by Edward Knoblock. Directed by EDGAR SELWYN

The world might call it sin . . . but to her it was the supreme sacrifice of Mother love! Every woman will understand her—every man will be stirred by this heart-stirring story of deepest human emotion.

Lower and lower she sank—but she held her secret to the last!

During the past five years, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has produced more smashing hits than any other producing company. Pictures like "Trader Horn", "A Free Soul", "Min and Bill"—to name just a few. We say without hesitation that "The Sin of Madelon Claudet" is one of the greatest films M-G-M has ever produced. If you are afraid of a heart-throb don't go, for this magnificent performance will tug at your heart-strings and give you a thrill such as you have never had before in a theatre.

Beauty and youth were still hers—but she dedicated her life to the happiness of her boy. Little did she dream what Fate still had in store for her!

RECIPES BY PRUDENCE PENNY

ORANGE JACK-O'-LANTERNS—Eight oranges, 3 bananas, sliced, 3 apples, diced, 16 marshmallows, powdered sugar.

With a sharp knife cut tops off oranges and remove pulp from shells. Draw jack-o'-lanterns' faces on oranges with India ink (or use an eyebrow pencil). Cut pulp in pieces, saving juice, and combine with remaining ingredients, sweetening to taste. Fill orange shells, then cover with orange top, letting the filling peep out slightly. Make a witches' cap and a fringed neck ruff from black crepe paper and pin on jack-o'-lantern. Serve on a white paper doily. A black glass plate adds a smart touch. This makes a novel and decorative salad or dessert course for any type of Halloween party. Serves eight.

WITCHES' SALAD—Three cups diced cooked potatoes, 3 hard-cooked eggs, 1 tablespoon chopped onions, 2 tomatoes, cut in eighths, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, ¾ cup diced celery, French dressing, mayonnaise dressing, orange coloring.

Potatoes should be boiled or steamed in jackets, then cooled, peeled and diced. Add onion, green pepper and celery and marinade with a few tablespoons of French dressing. Let stand in a cool place at least a half hour. Then add the eggs diced and the tomato and toss all together lightly with a few tablespoons of orange mayonnaise made by adding a little orange coloring to the mayonnaise. Pile into salad dish. Mash with orange mayonnaise and garnish with ripe olives. Serves 6.

* * *

GOBLIN SANDWICHES—Cut rounds of brown bread very thin. Butter slices and press two together. Use slices of stuffed olives for eyes, chunks of pickle for nose and pimiento strip for mouth.

* * *

WITCH CAKES—For witch cakes bake plain sponge or butter cake in muffin tins. When cool, cut a thin slice off one side of cake and ice all over chocolate icing. While icing is moist put ice cream cone on cake for hat. On flat side where cut was made make a "face" with orange icing. Serve on small paper doily.

* * *

GOBLIN SALAD—Six hard cooked eggs, 6 crisp carrots, ½ cup mayonnaise, 2 ripe olives, 1 pimento or red pepper, lettuce.

Cut eggs lengthwise into halves. Remove the yolks and cream them with a little mayonnaise, salt and white pepper. Fill back smoothly into whites. If desired, a little grated cheese may be added. Place 2 halves, cut side up, on a bed of lettuce. Cut olives and pimento or pepper into tiny bits. With these make eyes, nose and mouth on egg yolk. Cut carrots into long slender strips. Use one strip for body of goblin and others for arms and legs. Put on "necktie" and "shoes" of mayonnaise. Garnish with a ripe olive or two and serve. Serves 6.

* * *

INDIVIDUAL PUMPKIN PIES—2½ cups flour, 2-3 cup lard, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons cold water. Mix flour and salt. Cut in lard with knife. Mixing with knife, slowly add the water. Mix until stiff dough forms. Divide into 6 pieces and roll out and fit into deep muffin pans. Fit carefully to make even cases. Flute the edges with the fingers. Add pumpkin filling.

* * *

PUMPKIN FILLING—Two cups pumpkin, 1 cup dark brown sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 2 cups milk.

Mix all ingredients and beat well. Pour into pie shells. Bake 15 minutes in moderate oven. Reduce heat and bake 20 minutes in moderately slow oven. Allow pies to cool in pans and then they can be easily slipped out with aid of knife and spatula. These individual pies can be topped with whipped cream or ice cream, or they can be sprinkled with nut meats. However, they are delicious served alone.

* * *

HAM MUFFINS—Cream ¼ cup butter, add a tablespoon of sugar, then 2 beaten eggs and a cup of milk. Sift together a cup of white flour, ¾ cup graham flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and add. Stir only until mixed. Fold in ¾ cup of chopped cooked ham. Bake in greased muffin tins in a moderate oven at 375 to 400 degrees, for 25 minutes. Serve hot.

* * *

STRAWBERRY BAVARIAN CREAM—One and one half tablespoons granulated gelatine; a cup of cold water, ½ cup boiling water, 1 cup sweetened fresh strawberry pulp, powdered sugar, ¾ cup whipping cream.

Soak gelatine in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add fruit pulp. Cool mixture until it begins to thicken, then add cream beaten stiff. Mould and chill. Garnish each serving with a dash of whipped cream.

* * *

PEACH BETTY—Peel 1 dozen peaches and stone. Chop the peaches leaving them quite coarse. Put a layer of fruit in a well-buttered baking dish, sprinkle with sugar, then with 1 cup of bread crumbs, dot with butter. Repeat in 3 layers, using 3 cups of bread crumbs, 1 cup of sugar and 3 tablespoons of butter. Cover and bake 45 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Uncover and cool 15 minutes longer so as to brown the surface. Serve with a custard sauce.

* * *

BEET SALAD—1½ cups chopped cooked beets, 1 hard cooked egg, 1½ cups diced celery, 1½ cups diced apple.

Combine the above ingredients with French dressing to moisten and marinate 1 hour. Mound on crisp cups of lettuce. Top with mayonnaise, garnish with slice of red apple unpared.

STEAMED LIVER LOAF—One pound liver (beef or pork), ½ pound salt pork, 1 medium onion, 6 sprigs parsley, 2 eggs (beaten), 1 cup fine cornflake crumbs, ½ cup milk, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Boil liver. Put liver, salt pork, onion and parsley through food chopper twice. Add the beaten eggs, cornflake crumbs, milk and seasonings. Turn into greased pudding dish. Cover and tie waxed paper over the top. Steam for about three hours. Serve hot or cold. Yield: 8 servings.

* * *

BAKED CALF'S LIVER—Cook a fresh calf's liver weighing about 3 pounds. Have the butcher lard and roll it. Put into a roasting pan and roast for one hour in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.). Serve with a brown gravy.

* * *

FRIED LIVER AND BACON—1½ pounds calf's liver and 6 slices of bacon. Slice the liver into half-inch slices. Fry the bacon. When crisp remove from the frying pan. Sprinkle the slices of liver with pepper and salt and dredge with flour. Fry them in the bacon fat about 10 minutes. When done, drain off all the fat and serve garnished with the bacon. Liver may also be broiled.

* * *

CELERY AND BEET SALAD—1 cupful of diced canned beets, 1 cupful of canned peas, 1 cupful of diced celery, ½ cupful of mayonnaise.

Drain the peas, mix with diced beets and celery. Add mayonnaise, combine lightly. Serve in crisp lettuce cups with cheese wafers.

Cut bread into 2-inch squares, ¼-inch thick. Dip each square in milk and drain slightly. Then dip in cocoanut, covering all sides well. Bake in moderate oven (325 F.) 25 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 3½ dozen squares.

* * *

PUMPKIN PIE—Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add 3 egg yolks slightly beaten, ¾ cup of sugar, 1 pint of pumpkin pulp, ¼ teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Add the milk, mix well and lastly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Have ready a pie pan lined with a crust well built up around the edges. Pour the pumpkin mixture into the crust and bake slowly for about one hour or until a knife blade will come out of the center of the pie clean.

* * *

BERRY SPONGE ROLL—Beat 3 eggs, add 1 cup sugar and beat together until very thick, add 3 tablespoons cold water and ½ teaspoon lemon extract. Sift 1 cup of bread flour with ½ teaspoon salt several times. Fold lightly into the egg mixture, spread in a large, shallow pan lined with oil paper. Bake for 15 miutes in a moderate oven. Take from oven, turn on a cloth which has been sprinkled with powdered sugar. Trim off any crisp edges and tear off the paper. Spread with sweetened berries, roll and serve with whipped cream.

Cereals With Milk or Cream Ideal Breakfast Food

They help make meals 'stick to the ribs and last all morning," declares Dr. Copeland, indorsing them for both adults and children.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Formerly Health Commissioner, New York City.
United States Senator from New York.

It seems to me that too little attention is paid to what we eat at breakfast. The average American starts his day by rushing through that meal. He gulps down his food and dashes out of the house almost before he has swallowed his food.

Such a method of eating breakfast, or any other meal, is harmful. It is a practice that makes a shortcut to poor health.

For energetic persons who work hard, it is important that the day be started in the correct way. This is done by eating food which is energy-producing and strength-building. But whatever the dishes served, the manner of eating must be deliberate.

The ideal breakfast food is one that will meet the day's requirements of the body. A good cereal served with milk or cream and sugar is an ideal food. The cereal, whatever it is, must be properly cooked. When it is prepared as it should be, it is easily digested.

NUTRITIVE VALUE HIGH

Fortunately, there is a great variety of breakfast foods. I can think of at least a dozen different kinds. They can be purchased all year round and are usually packed in a sanitary package. This protects them against spoiling and contamination.

In addition to their great value as a nourishing dish, they appeal to the palate and are easily digested. They are economical and require but little in the way of preparation.

The nutritive value of cereals is high because they contain a large percentage of carbohydrates. In addition, they carry proteins, as well as a small quantity of fat. Mineral substances are found in cereals and they are a good source of certain vitamins.

Recent studies of the feeding problems of children emphasize the importance of better breakfasts. For this reason cereals are heartily recommended for growing children.

Health has a direct relationship to the scholarship of the child. When a child is well nourished, happy and healthy, his grades at school are good. When he is ill or undernourished, his grades are likely to be poor.

SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED

Those mothers who worry about their children's report cards would do well to encourage the eating of cereals at breakfast. Certainly it is important that the children go off to school well nourished for the day's work. A good breakfast has been described as a meal "that sticks to the ribs and lasts all morning." It supplies the necessary energy to the child, both for his physical exertion and his mental tasks.

In recent tests made with two groups of children, it was found that the group fed on cereals gained more rapidly. It did better schoolwork than a group which had no cereals in its breakfast menu.

I am sure that the children will enjoy cereals and undoubtedly the adults will benefit by taking cereals every morning. Eating cereals is a good habit for the entire family to acquire.

Now that the weather is cool a warm porridge for breakfast is in order. With plenty of milk or cream added to the cereal it makes a well balanced meal.

The TRUTH ABOUT BRAN

With so many opinions about bran, it is well to know the facts. Here are the results of laboratory tests with bran:

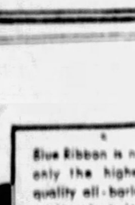
Bran also supplies "bulk" which further aids intestinal action. The "bulk" in bran is much like the "bulk" you eat in lettuce or other leafy vegetables.

This "bulk" absorbs moisture—like a soft sponge—and gently cleanses the intestines of wastes. Bran also brings the body needed iron for the blood.

A pleasant, safe bran cereal is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Millions of people have used it with satisfactory results over a period of ten years.

Two tablespoonfuls daily of this delicious ready-to-eat cereal are usually sufficient to prevent and relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.



Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has a wonderful nut-sweet flavor. Enjoy with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Sold by grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Is Wedding Extravagant When Times Are Hard?

"The idea," he snorts, "of wanting to spend all that money on foolishness like that when times are so bad that people are going hungry! But that's just like a girl!"

"Well I don't care," Lotta retorts stubbornly. "I'll only have one wedding. And I Want It to Be a Swell One—something to remember when the goose gets tough and pennies have to be pinched.

And so on and so on far into the wee small hours with dad and mom wrestling on the sidelines.

DREAMED OF WEDDING

"Dear Sally:

"I've got a problem that is causing a lot of argument between my fiance and myself and between my dad and mother, too, and I wonder if you and the gang can't help settle it.

"Here it is. Don't you think a girl is entitled to have a pretty wedding if she wants it?

"I think she is and ever since I was a little girl and went to my youngest and prettiest aunt's wedding I've dreamed of what mine would be like. I've dreamed of my white dress and my veil and my bridesmaids in flower-like gowns and hats walking up the church aisle to the solemn tones of the wedding march. All that has seemed to me always to be part of the beauty and sacredness of getting married and it just breaks my heart to think of doing without it.

Do you think I am wrong? Should I be satisfied to just put on a street suit and hat or just a plain little dress of some kind if I'm married at home and stumble up before just a few people in the living room and getting over with it?

MEN DISAPPROVE

"That's what Sam, the fellow I'm to marry, thinks I should do. But I just can't seem to agree with him. I only expect to have one wedding in my life and I think I'm entitled to have it as lovely as it can be—something to remember when things get kind of commonplace and you have to economize and work hard and get down to the tough going I know living often is. It seems to me that I just must have that fragrant memory to lay away and look back on.

But Sam seems to think that's silly. He says: Well, you'll be married just as fast even if you don't make all that fuss over it. It's just show anyway, and with times like they are it isn't right to spend money like that.

And although Mother thinks I should do as I want Dad agrees with Sam. So they're arguing over it too. And Sam and I have almost had a real quarrel over it. Of course I know that if I insist, Dad'll agree in the end to what I want. But he'll keep on snorting and grumbling about it even if he does agree.

WILLING TO SKIMP

"Of course I know that if I do have my wedding like I want it I'll have to pay for part of it myself. We're not rich by any means although we're not exactly poog either. And I suppose just as Dad and Sam say the money could be used for other things, such as buying more furniture for our home and things like that. But I won't mind skimping on those things for a while, and it is not just for 'show' that I want things pretty. It really means something to me.

"Can you understand how I feel? I know Mother does, but Dad and Sam think I'm just being foolish. Am I? Should I give in to them? Or am I right?

"Lotta."

Well, is she?

Which would you rather have, Bess Marie Helen? The memory of flowers and a lacy veil and your one big hour—Or money in the bank?

FAY KING
THE REAL FUN IS WATCHING CELEBRITIES FROM THE SIDE LINES
THE GREATEST CELEBRITY OF ALL IS THE CELEBRITY THAT INTERESTS CELEBRITIES

By FAY KING

Those who stand on the sidelines to view celebrities are likely to imagine that all celebrities are the best of pals.

This is far from true.

In fact one is amazed to find that many contemporary celebrities hardly know one another beyond the casual greetings exchanged when they mingle at the same first night or big banquet.

And that doesn't mean much because the greater the celebrity the more gracious he is in acknowledging a greeting from anyone.

But the celebrities who are friends form circles of their own and it is almost impossible to crash into one circle from another.

And the worst harm done to celebrities is by those who know them least, but pretend to know them best.

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

The Boys Plan a Fishing Trip

It was only for an instant that my panic over Dicky's mandate lasted. Then, as I might have known she would, Lillian came to the rescue.

Sorry, Dicky-bird, she said, but I'm afraid you'll have to let her off that promise for a little while in the morning."

"Why?" His tone was more uncompromising than he usually uses to Lillian.

Because I don't see how I'm going to manage without something only she can do for me in the morning. I have to get off a piece of work day after tomorrow and I'm simply swamped. And Madge was going to get something for me at Southampton which only she can select. I'll promise to send her to bed the minute she gets back and keep her there the rest of the day. Will that do?"

"Oh, you know it will do." Dicky's tone held exasperation and indulgence in equal quantities. "But if you're going to get up early, you ought to go to bed now."

"With dispatch, also celerity," Lillian laughed, but when we had moved into the living room she lowered her voice discreetly. "What a liar I am!" she whispered. "But there's nothing half so effective as an excuse as a piece of copy or a drawing you have to get off for an order or an edition. Nobody can get back at you and say you're a second edition of Sapphira, even if they strongly suspect you are. For there are so many times when the excuse is gospel truth that you can use it with safety upon the occasions when you need a subterfuge."

"You certainly have smoothed the path for me," I told her. "I can get out to telephone tomorrow without anyone's suspecting my errand."

"And look here, my lady!" She stopped and fixed me with an eye which, if not glittering like the Ancient Mariner's, held decision cold and ruthless. "If you have any idea you're going to get out of that going to bed sentence after you get back, you have two or more thinks coming, Dicky's right, you've been swishing around altogether too much, and I'm going to ride herd on you."

"Go as far as you like." I laughed, secretly delighted at the thought of a long lazy day. "But please, ma'am mayn't I take part of it on the porch in the couch hammock?"

"If you're very, very good and eat all your spinach, we'll see about it," she chuckled, and then she stopped short in our progress across the room for our four young people were rushing toward us, plainly excited and elated.

"Aunt Madge! Mums!" Their voices sounded together, and Lillian looked at them quizzically.

"Have pity on our eardrums!" she said. "Why don't you choose a chairman? Come on, Bill, speak up."

Purposely she had given the spokesmanship to the shyest of the four, and Bill swallowed two or three times before answering.

"It's just that we wondered if we couldn't go fishing tomorrow," he said. "Go in our bathing suits, you know, out in the bay with the boat so that we could go swimming whenever we got tired fishing. It's the only day the girls will be here this week, and they said they'd love to go."

"Regardless of all the things you have to do to get ready for your trip," Lillian said, looking at Marion.

"Not so much, honest," Mary interposed. "We really have been awfully good keeping our things mended, and we've just some pressing that—"

"I won't have Katie bothered, Marion," Lillian said decidedly. "You must see to your things yourself."

"Oh, surely, Mums," Marion promised easily. "But we can do them after we get back tomorrow night."

"Provided you get back in time. All right," she suddenly capitulated "you may go as far as I'm concerned. But your father and Uncle Dicky are the ones to ask, you know. Just now, nobody goes or comes from the farmhouse anywhere without their sanction."

The boys were wide-eyed, but they asked no questions, and we all went to the veranda where the two men, after pondering for a bit, gave their consent.

"I'll go with you," Mr. Underwood said, "unless Dicky-bird—"

"No, no, I don't fancy broiling on that bay." Dicky interposed hastily. "You'd better take Jerry Tiger along, too, don't you think? He might come in handy in an emergency."

"I'll do that little thing," Mr. Underwood returned, while the boys' eyes widened still more. Then Hank spoke diffidently. "Are are the little kids coming?" he asked.

There was an awkward silence. Probably not one of the four really would have welcomed the company of the obstreperous younger boys, but no one of the other three would have voiced it. But it was not the time or place to point out to Hank the error of his ways.

"No, they're staying home with me," Dicky said. "Now all you get to bed, pronto. If you go fishing you'll have to get up mighty early."

They scattered like quail and we were all close behind them. I suddenly realized a weariness which made me wish I did not have to get out to telephone Martha Halkett. Almost I was tempted to let the letter go on to Jack without an attempt to stop it.

Correct Manners -:-

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

In a Familiar Foursome

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The day does not seem complete without reading your wonderful advice to so many persons. Thus I come to you also.

I have been going with a young man for a year and a half and very often we go out with another couple, making it a foursome. When the gentlemen of the other party asks me to dance, what should be said to the young man I am with, if anything? EVA.

Thank you—and welcome.

With a foursome of this kind it would not be necessary for the other gentleman to ask the permission of your escort to dance with you.

After Dinner Custom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct for women who smoke to remain at the table and smoke with the gentlemen after dinner? MISS T.

It is the custom for the women, after a formal or more or less formal dinner, to go to the living room or the drawing room to chat together, and, if they wish, to smoke.

The Beauty Box -:-

By HELEN FOLLETT

When large pimples form on the face, neck or chest they should be treated to moist hot applications. When the yellow point has fully developed, open with a needle which has been sterilized by holding in a flame, press out the pus with extreme gentleness, keeping the finger tips covered with clean gauze. Careless treatment will spread germs, cause more pimples to form. Touch wounds with a solution of boric acid.

The color of the eye hasn't as much to do with its beauty as the expression. Any girl with wit in her head and who is mindful of her actions and conversation, can make her eyes attractive. Senseless to think of using drugs as brighteners of soul lamps. Natural animation and good nature will turn the trick, and good health is first aid.

Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Shifting the Three Bid

Shifting a demand bid of three to a strong make is always preferable to giving an immediate assist upon minimum trump support. There is no assurance that the opening bidder is especially long in trumps, or that he is wedded to the suit he first names.

Z bids 3-Hearts. Instead of assisting upon three small trumps Y shifted to 3-Spades, plainly showing Z that his partner held one or possibly both of the missing black aces. Had Z bid either 4-Hearts or 4-Spades, bidding would have ceased, but he bid 3-No trumps, knowing that Y would re-bid spades, assist hearts, or raise the no-trumps in case he held both missing aces. Do not forget that Z's opening bid announced possession of nine tricks.

Over Z's 3-No trumps Y showed three small hearts by shifting to 4-Hearts. It became pretty clear to Z that Y held one black ace only; with it either he held five or six spades, making a small slam reasonably certain at spades, but at nothing else, so Z ended contracting with 6-Spades. Y discarded one of his hearts and one diamond on Z's clubs, and by trumping one diamond easily fulfilled his contract. Only 4-odd could have been made at hearts, or 5-odd at no-trumps.

Had A's and Y's hands been interchanged a small slam could have been made at clubs, by losing only a single spade trick.

Had the original holdings of B and Y been reversed 5-odd could have been made at hearts. When the bidder of three really has all that he advertises there must be game with almost any holding opposite him.

Do not "bid to the score." Because two spades means game do not bid it unless you would do so at a love score. How is your partner to know whether you are stretching a one bid or have a hand calling for the opening two bid? In case you are overcalled adversely your partner wants to know how strong you really are.

New Vitamin G Prevents Pellagra

Pellagra has been known for nearly 200 years. It was only recently, however, that its real cause has become known. It is a disease which involves the skin, but, what is more important, it causes marked disturbances of the general health.

Dr. Copeland

At one time it was believed to be due to an infection. Now it is known that infection plays no part in its production.

The ordinary sanitary and hygienic measures which are commonly employed against the transmission of disease do not help control pellagra. The United States Public Health Service has shown that this disease is founded on faulty diet.

Pellagra is caused by an inadequate supply of certain food elements, particularly those containing necessary vitamins. When these foods are lacking in the diet the trouble follows. It is because of this fact that this disease is classified with those spoken of as the "vitamin deficiency diseases."

Scurvy and rickets are similar diseases. Scurvy occurs if the food does not contain vitamin C. Rickets is produced where there is a lack of vitamin D. Any diet which does not supply a sufficient amount of vitamin G will cause pellagra.

Such foods as fresh, lean meats, lard, milk, canned salmon and commercial wheat germ have been found to be exceedingly rich in this protective vitamin. Eggs, canned haddock, dried beans, soy beans, dried milk and tomatoes have been found of value in guarding against this disease. But they must be consumed in considerable quantities in order to supply the necessary amounts of vitamin G.

Corn products, wheat flour, rye flour, oatmeal, salt pork, the commercial lard substitutes, butter, carrots, turnips, onions, sweet potatoes and white rice are exceedingly poor in their content of this vitamin. It has been observed repeatedly that individuals whose diet consists essentially of those foods are likely to show signs of pellagra.

In most sections of this country the diet is a variable one and insures an adequate supply of the necessary elements. That is why pellagra is not so common here as it is abroad.

Answers to Health Queries

A. E. M. Q.—What is the cause of poor circulation and what will clear up the trouble?

2. What are the symptoms of anemia—is there a cure for it?

A.—Improve your general health and your circulation will benefit. Poor circulation may be due to several causes.

2. Anemia would be apt to cause weakness, pallor, circles beneath the eyes, lack of energy, etc. Improvement in the general health will increase the blood supply and benefit the entire system.

* * *

G. R. M. Q.—What do you advise for low vitality and very little strength?

A.—You should try to build up the general health first of all. Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk and eggs. Exercise daily in the fresh air and practice deep breathing. Take cod liver oil as a general tonic and builder.

CAPTAIN PLAID'S HOPE AGAINST IRISH

ONE OF THE main hopes of Carnegie Tech for a creditable showing against the stars of Notre Dame at the Stadium tomorrow is Capt. Murray Armentrout. Here's a gridder who on each succeeding Saturday has been an outstanding example of a football player "playing better than he knows how." Armentrout's best point at Carnegie prior to this season was his powerful running. So highly was he regarded by the fans as a runner that many thought he should have been used last year in place of Howard Eyth, despite the fact that the Mars lad was turning in a sensational performance every week.

Murray Armentrout

However, Armentrout's most ardent boosters never claimed he could do anything else particularly well. He could run with the ball, but was a mediocre defensive player and a joke as a punter. But this year it's different. With the responsibilities of the captaincy resting heavily upon his shoulders, Murray has been doing as much for his team as any one man in football.

THE CARNEGIE LEADER'S brilliance is dimmed somewhat by the fact that he is playing with a losing aggregation, yet he has not only kept up his good running, but has developed into a great punter and the Plaid's best defensive back—one of the most improved and most valuable players of the year.

When Croft was declared ineligible, Coaches Steffen and Waddell were up against it for a punter. Armentrout stepped into the breach and outkicked every man he opposed, including Stewart Wilson, until Paul Moss, of Purdue, had an average two yards better than his last Saturday. At that, Murray averaged 41 yards with a soggy ball.

IN THE GAME against W. & J. the big Tartan captain made about half of the tackles and he did the same against Georgia Tech and Purdue, his defensive work being a feature of each contest.

And Capt. Armentrout's constant battling, even for a lost cause, has done more to inspire Carnegie's sophomore ball club than any other factor. The Plaid's lean season has not prevented him from still being one of the most popular men on the Skibo campus.

WHEN THEY PLAY in State College tomorrow for the first time in 28 years, the Panthers will have such an edge on paper that a victory for them is considered certain. State has lost four games out of five this fall. If that dope holds good it will be the first time the Blue and Gold has ever won a game in State College. Though Pitt holds a big lead in the 33-game series, having won 19 times to State's 12, with two events resulting in ties, every victory credited to the locals was scored in Pittsburgh. The first five games in the series, starting in 1893, were played in State College and the Lions won all of them. Pitt has been victorious the last nine years without a break. Preceding that streak, tie games were played in 1920 and 1921, so that State has not tasted victory since 1919.

George Lasich

THERE IS SOME question as to whether Capt. George Lasich will be able to start for Penn State. For the first time in his college career the big fullback was hurt in a game last Saturday against Syracuse and he has been resting since. If he is out of the lineup tomorrow the State attack and defense will be weakened considerably.

Even without counting Capt. Lasich, whose home is in Clairton, Western Pennsylvania will be well represented among the Lions. For among the probable starters are Tom Slusser, left end, a Schenley High product; Tom Harper, halfback, of Kiski; Stan Stempeck, right tackle, of Wilmerding, and Donald Conn, quarterback, of Uniontown.

DUKE BALL RUSHERS may go well to direct their thrusts in some direction other than the tackles when Catholic University is met at Forbes Field tonight, the final floodlight game of the local season. For in Phil Gross and Tom Nally his gigantic sophomore threats, Coach Dutch Bergman says he has uncovered two of the finest naturals produced at the Washington school in years.

These surprising young stars, who scale 207 and 216 pounds, respectively, have been the life of a strong defense in games played to date. Using their well distributed weight to the best advantage possible, they not only have crashed through repeatedly for timely and impressive tackles, but also have shown unusual driving power in offense.

NALLY, A DISTRICT of Columbia boy, is considered one of the best prospects ever known at Catholic U. Against North Carolina last week he flashed the greatest form of his spectacular early career, figuring in nine out of 10 straight tackles during a crucial stage of the contest. Gross, a strapping lad from the Mid-West, resembles greatly his brother Lou, one of the best linemen ever turned out at the University of Minnesota. An all-Western tackle in 1925, Lou has since turned his talents to coaching, being at present affiliated in that capacity with his alma mater, Minnesota.

A CHARITY SOCCER game is the latest proposal in the sports movement to help the unemployed. The suggestion comes from Morry Goldman, who offers to send his team of kickers against any selected eleven in a night game at Forbes Field. Morry writes:

"During the last few weeks I've read a lot about a benefit football game. Well, I surely am in favor of the idea. I am sponsoring this season one of the finest soccer teams in the country, and we're willing to play any selected team a night game at Forbes Field."

TOURING PACIFIC COAST towns, Babe Ruth says he means to keep himself pretty close to condition this winter, so that he won't have to train so hard or take off so much weight in the spring. He figures he is good for two more seasons as a top-notch player. Then he hopes to become a manager.

"My legs are in great shape and I think I can keep going at top speed for a couple more seasons," Ruth said. "When I am through as a top-notcher I'm going to quit playing. They won't say the old Babe is slipping. I'll still be at the top of my game when I quit. Then I'll take a job as manager if there's one around."

Jimmy McLarnin

IF YOU'RE GOOD at riddles, try to guess how they're going to carry out the plan to show Lucien Brouillard, new welterweight king, in a championship fight in New York soon. Brouillard is only 20 years old, and the rules of the New York Boxing Commission stipulate that fighters under 21 shall not be permitted to box more than six rounds. But another regulation says that a champion cannot box in that state except with his title at stake, and still another provides that the distance for every championship bout must be 15 rounds. Therefore Brouillard, as a champion, is not allowed to enter a New York ring for less than 15 rounds, yet Brouillard as a minor cannot box more than six rounds. And there's an additional obstacle, as the man sought to meet Brouillard for the championship is Jimmy McLarnin. Brouillard is a southpaw, and McLarnin isn't keen about meeting fighters of that type, having refused for several years all offers to face Young Corbett.

NOTRE DAME TO WORK OUT AT STADIUM

By JESS CARVER

That deluge of hotties that stopped early commuters in the Pennsy station with their mouths agape this morning wasn't a delegation of the U. S. Wrestling Trust. The stopping off for breakfast. It was the Notre Dame varsity football squad, coaches and trainers some 75 strong here for the annual battle in the Pitt Stadium tomorrow with Carnegie Tech.

The Irish squad embarked from the shelter of South Bend late last night and disembarked from their choo-choos this morning at 8:30. The gent in the autumn leaf tie and shirt ensemble who was on hand to see that they were well cared for and that everything in the way of luggage was seen to was none other than the well known Al Becker, the snappy P. R. R. official. I just mention this so that you folks won't labor under the impression that his Highness, the Prince of Wales, was present.

JOURNEY UNEVENTFUL

The Irish had an uneventful journey. The boys and Coach Anderson were in fine spirits as they disembarked here, even though it was entirely too early in the morning.

"Good morning, boys," was Hunk's greeting to local newspaper friends and other acquaintances. "How in the world did you get up so early? You must have been to a wake."

The party immediately whisked to St. Paul's Cathedral, and from there to the P. A. A. for breakfast. Tommy Yarr swiped everyone else's butter and Sophomore Krause grabbed a second helping of scrambled eggs.

Anderson said that he regarded the Pitt team as being stronger than Northwestern, and that he would take no chances with the Tech team, but would start his first team.

Included among those on hand to greet the Irish were Buddy Overend and Doc Marks, of Tech, John Laboon, of the Tarton athletic council; Howard Harpster, former Tech all-America quarterback and present coach at Geneva College, and Joe Bach, Duquesne line coach, himself a former Notre Dame star.

After greeting Harper and Anderson, Harpster led his Geneva College squad out of the city, en route to Lancaster, Pa., where the Genevians will meet Franklin-Marshall tomorrow.

It seemed a bit odd, this morning, to be out there greeting those Irishers and not to grasp by the hand the great Rockne. Hunk Anderson and Jess Harper are swell fellows, no mistake about that, but this is the first year that we've missed Rock, and somehow, the N. D. arrival wasn't the same.

TEAM AT P. A. A.

The Notre Dame squad is quartered at the P. A. A. The boys will drill in the Stadium this afternoon, prior to Tech's practice session on the same turf, and then the Ramblers will more or less hole up until game time tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Pitt is set to depart for State College, where tomorrow the Panthers take on Penn State's Nittany Lions. Yesterday the squad had its last strenuous drill, a light one being carded this morning before the departure for State, which is set for 2:15 this afternoon. At State College the team will be quartered at Nittany Lion Inn, a pip of a hostelry.

After yesterday's workout Coach Sutherland was still a bit undecided as to whether he'd start his second or first elevens against the Lions. Indications point to the former getting the call, and if the varsity is used, there are sure to be two second stringers in the lineup—Mike Sebastian at right halfback and Tar Onder at right guard. Onder will be taking the place of the injured Hart Morris, who suffered a broken right hand in the Notre Dame clash, and Sebastian will be in there for the battered Paul Reider.

In all, 33 players will make the trip to Penn State, the first invasion of State territory since 1902, when Pitt lost, 27-0.

TARTANS ARE SET

Carnegie is set for the Irish. The Tartans realize that they are very much on the short end; that they are facing the best football team in the country, one that is fighting for the present coach.

PIRATES AGAIN SIGN CRANDALL

Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, again has signed Otis Crandall, Giant star of years ago, as a coach. Dreyfuss still is seeking a manager for the Pirates to replace Jewel Ens, but says he will have no announcement on that score until the December baseball meetings.

Dreyfuss made the announcement in New York, where he has been visiting for several days.

Otis, 44 years old, is now wintering with his family at Bell, Cal., near Los Angeles. He was appointed chief assistant to Manager Ens last winter, and came through with colors flying.

At the close of the season just past, Crandall watched the post-season series between Wichita and Des Moines, of the Western League.

EDDIE BRANNON SUSPENDED

THE COACH'S VIEWPOINT

By Howard Harpster

Last week the writer attempted to forecast the results of the games and proceeded to put down in this column not only the "winners," but in some cases reasons why they couldn't lose . . . Needless to say, some of the teams "laid down," and the writer wishes to announce that in this case the knowledge gained from experience is well learned . . .

Howard Harpster

There will be no future "forecasts" . . . The percentage was not so bad—17 winners and two ties out of 24 guesses; but oh, those other five! . . . Wisconsin to beat Penn, W. & J. to win from Lafayette, and the prize, Illinois to take Michigan, were a few of the real bad guesses . . . Wisconsin lost by 14 points, W. & J. by 21 and Illinois by only 35 . . . These teams must not have known the "dope," or they wouldn't have thrown us down like that.

Tomorrow, when Coach Anderson sends his Fighting Irish onto the field at the Stadium to meet Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh fans will see a mighty fine looking football team . . . Some critics say this year's eleven hasn't the class and isn't as smooth as Rockne's great team of last year. . . . Well, maybe not, but here is one who is most thankful that Notre Dame doesn't play any of the smaller schools, like—well, Geneva . . . Notre Dame may not be as smooth as it was last season, whatever "smooth" means, but it has everything that was ever on any other football team.

The Irish this year have a great line on both the offense and defense . . . Their ends and backs can just about get under and hang on to any forward pass thrown, as long as the ball and receiver are both on the same field . . . The backs can run high and hard, as Notre Dame backs always have, and they fight and twist and turn, always trying to get that extra yard . . . Their blocking back knows how to block, the fullback reminds you of Savoldi, Jackwich is clever at directing the team and Schwartz is better than he was last year.

Schwartz is a marvelous ball carrier, one of the best I have seen, and is the type of runner that might break away for a long run any time he starts out with the ball . . . This year he has taken over the passing and kicking duties, both of which he handles very well . . . His passing against Pitt was the deciding feature of the game, while his punting against Northwestern helped his team out of danger on more than one occasion.

Carnegie Tech, having been caught in the depression by way of lack of material, isn't conceded an outside chance of being the team to give Notre Dame its first licking in 24 games. However, every team that Wally Steffen ever has had at Tech, good or bad, has had one quality in common, and that is plenty of fight. So tomorrow when you are watching the two teams in action regardless of the period or score, look over this Tech team every once in a while and see if that old spirit and fight isn't there. My guess is that it will be standing out so conspicuously that you will note it without looking for it.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Frank J. Farrell, who for 16 years owned the New York American League baseball team and a string of race horses, left a net estate of $1,072, when he died February 16, 1926, an appraisal showed. His widow, Mrs. Anna E. Farrell, received $731 of the total.

CARNERA-SANTA MEET NOV. 13

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Jimmy Johnston, general manager of Madison Square Garden, has announced he had practically closed three 10-round heavyweight bouts for his first show on November 13. The matches are:

Primo Carnera, Italy, vs. Jose Santa, Portugal.

Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J., vs. Mateo Osa, Spain.

Walter Cobb, Baltimore heavyweight, also will appear on the card against an opponent yet to be selected.

STAGG URGED TO RESIGN

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Director of Athletics A. A. Stagg was urged to resign as football coach in a letter published yesterday in the Daily Maroon, school paper. The letter was written by a student who signed himself "Undergraduate."

In publishing the letter the Daily Maroon said:

"The Daily Maroon takes this opportunity to present without comment a communication received from a student at the university. Members of the university community who hold other views are invited to make use of this column."

Stagg is now in his fortieth year as University of Chicago football coach. During the past five years his teams have been well below the standard of other years.

TIGERS LOSE YECKLEY

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—A three-hour drill, one hour of which was devoted to a blackboard talk on Michigan offensive tactics, was the routine at Princeton yesterday. Capt. Bill Yeckley was injured in dummy scrimmage with the scrubs and it is doubtful whether he will be able to start against Michigan.

Officials: Referee—F. E. Tetting, Empire—A. H. Stark, Linesman—G. B. Vierling.

Outweighed both on the line and in the backfield, but boasting a strong aerial attack and a set of speedy and elusive backs, the formidable Catholic University football team battles the Dukes at Forbes Field here tonight in the final local nocturnal clash of the season.

Well coached by the astute Dutch Bergman, versed in the intricacies of the Notre Dame system and determined to make up for the 12-0 setback suffered here last year at the hands of the Dukes, the Washington Cardinals are out to make it an interesting evening for the Dukes.

The contest is the third in a row of exceptional strength for Duquesne, Western Maryland and Georgetown having been held to scoreless ties the last two times out. Catholic U. has fast been establishing itself as a potent factor in eastern college football circles. Last week, entering the game on the short end, much as will be the case tonight, the Cardinals upset the North Carolina State Wolfpack.

SOPHOMORES STRONG

In the backfield Bergman has a heady quarterback in Johnny Oliver, who will be acting captain tonight; two hard running halfbacks in Whelan and McVean and a good line plunger in Fullback Sheary.

Joe Bach, who has been handling the Dukes this week while Head Coach Elmer Layden is confined to his home with a severe cold, plans to start the regular Duke lineup, with Murphy and Niccolai at the ends, Sinko and O'Donnell at the tackles, Antoon and Capt. Mike Ferrera at the guards, Cecone at center and Devenney, DeLucca, Christina and Zaninelli in the backfield.

Coach Layden's condition is so poorly that the former Four Horseman may not be able to be on the bench for tonight's game. His temperature yesterday rose, the medicos ordered him back to bed and it is very doubtful if he'll be able to be out there tonight. In his absence, Joe Bach will continue in full charge.

RELY ON ZANINELLI

Bach is hoping that big Sil Zaninelli, who punted so well against Western Maryland last week, will be "on" again tonight. The Dukes have been drilled against the Cardinals' air attack, which is said to be very cleverly laid and well executed.

Duquesne will outweigh Catholic U. by five pounds on the line, nine in the backfield and the entire Duke starting team will have an edge of some seven pounds.

The Duquesne University freshmen will play their only home game of the season on the Bluff campus this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Dukes will engage the W. & J. yearlings.

KICKOFF LIKELY TO REMAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Any movement to abolish the kickoff in football, a play to which attention has been drawn by the fatal injury of Cadet Richard B. Sheridan, in the Army-Yale game, apparently will find little favor with members of the football rules committee.

Six members of the committee were reached for comment on whether they favored abolishment or alteration of the present rule which puts the ball in play by a kickoff at the beginning of the first and third quarters and following each goal or touchdown, and four favored its retention.

T. A. D. Jones, former Yale coach, who saw the game in which Sheridan was injured, said he would prefer not to comment until he could gain a "more sane" perspective. E. K. Hall, chairman of the committee, declined to comment.

SCHOOL GRIDDER DIES

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Jimmy Trace, 17-year-old high school student, was dead today of injuries suffered in a football game a week ago today.

POWERFUL SCHOOL ELEVENS CLASH TODAY

Three West Penn Cup Soccer Battles Slated for Tomorrow

SCOTT OPPOSES ERIE TEAM IN CHARITY TILT

By JULIUS LEVIN

With two games scheduled in each section of the City League, a charity battle under the floodlights in North Braddock between Scott High and Strong Vincent, of Erie, two other night games and a varied program of interesting out-of-town games, Western Pennsylvania's followers of interscholastic football are in for a big treat today.

One of the headliners is the Scott-Strong Vincent game, bringing together two powerful clubs in a night battle for the unemployment fund of North Braddock. Quite a large number of tickets have been sold and the fund is expected to be enriched by several thousand dollars.

AMONG LEADERS

Strong Vincent for several years has ranked with the leading teams in Northwestern Pennsylvania, and its first appearance in this section is expected to draw a record crowd to North Braddock.

Two other night frays on the program find the undefeated California eleven engaging Steve Stepanian's Charleroi team at Charleroi, while Coach Heckathorne's Beaver Falls aggregation plays Butler on the Geneva College gridiron.

California will be out to score its sixth straight victory at the expense of Charleroi. Carl Aschman's team has yet to suffer a setback.

The four City League games today find Westinghouse at Schenley and South at Allerdice in Section I, while Carrick plays at Perry and South Hills at Allegheny in Section II. Crafton invades Langley for a non-league contest.

STOWE AT BELLEVUE

Ted Marnen takes his undefeated Stowe Township eleven to Bellevue to engage the team of that school, while Bill Sullivan's undefeated McKeesport aggregation engages West Newton at McKeesport. Dick Schumaker's Carnegie eleven will attempt to regain its winning stride by invading Mt. Lebanon to tackle Henry Leucht's smooth-working team.

ARNOLD SCHOOL IDLE

The Arnold School, Braddock avenue, football team will be idle this weekend, at least insofar as scheduled contests are concerned. However, it won't be a day of leisure for the team, for Coach Paul Heverly plans to put in as many good licks as he can during the weekend holiday, looking toward the coming clash with the Western Reserve Academy, at Hudson, O., on Saturday, November 14. This game will wind up the season for the prep school gridders and, as in years past, is Arnold's outstanding event of the season.

BRENT, ENGLISH DRAW

MUNCIE, Ind., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Billy Brent, Pittsburgh Negro middleweight, and Harry English, Toledo Negro, drew in 10 rounds here last night. English weighed 162, Brent, 156. In a 10-round semi-windup, Johnny Conler, Toledo lightweight, won a judge's decision over Jackie Griffiths, Pittsburgh Negro.

IRISH HERE TO BATTLE TECH

FIREMEN TOP POLICEMEN IN CHARITY TILT

By TOM BIRKS

With 10,000 fans cheering them on to victory, the McKeesport Fire Department's football team avenged last year's defeat at the hands of the Police Department by staging a brilliant rally in the last half to defeat the Bluecoats, 14 to 6, in their annual grid game at War Memorial Stadium, McKeesport, last night. Proceeds were turned over to the fund for the relief of the unemployed.

At the end of the first half, mainly through some great line plunging by Capt. Joe Hopkins, the Policemen appeared well on their way to another win. Through Hopkins' efforts the Police led, 6-0, at the intermission.

Before the third period had ended, however, the Police had been backed staging a do-or-die rally on their own five-yard line. Offside against the Firemen halted them from scoring twice.

When the last period started, a series of line bucks carried the ball to the Police 15-yard mark, where Mandela fumbled, to quickly recover and scoot around right end for a touchdown. Capt. Hopkins left the field with a leg injury after this play. Johnson rushed over the extra point.

Firemen—14.		Police—6
Bergast	L. E.	O'Hara
Longobardo	L. T.	Hodker
Bissett	L. G.	Speers
Mellenthuit	C.	Krusling
Donnelly	R. G.	Bazzel
Mains	R. T.	Toth
Flaherty	R. E.	Frey
Mandela	Q.	Busser
Johnson	L. H.	Grey
Doughty	R. H.	Kaczor
Marsden	F.	Hopkins

Score by periods:

Firemen	0	0	0	14—14
Police	0	6	0	0—6

Touchdowns—Hopkins, Mandela 2. Point after touchdown—Johnson, Doughty. Referee—Det. Very. Umpire—Dougherty. Linesman—Bolster. Field Judge—Egan.

Dilks to Attempt To Break Long Run Record

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 30.—Earl Lin Dilks, local long distance runner, will attempt to make the 62½-mile run from Meadville to this city early next week, running between a motorcycle and an automobile in an effort to lower the world record for that distance.

Tabiro and San Miquel, American Indians, jointly made the distance in nine hours and 37 minutes in November, 1926, running from Panchua to Mexico City.

SWITCH ELEVEN FACES TEST IN TITLE FIGHT

Soccer fans have their choice of three West Penn cup ties to attend tomorrow afternoon. The Duquesne Republican Club will be the attraction at Sullivan Field, meeting the German Sport eleven, and the Germans should win.

Jack Campbell, manager of the Switch team, is out to capture the West Penn cup this season. The Swissvalers have a stiff hurdle in Westinghouse for the first round. However, on league form, the Switch eleven should come through.

Nelson is in splendid form, and is getting goals. McNair and Marshall are ideal inside men, and they are making many openings for the crack center forward.

The Pittsburgh Rovers make the trip to Grove Station to meet the Morrys, and victory should be easy for the Castle Shannon aggregation.

On last Saturday's showing, it is hard to see how the Rovers are going to get any place. Nick Peckovitch has a well-balanced club, Brogi and Grilli, the up-river boys, are playing a fine game, and Pee Wee will be back in the lineup.—TOM BIRKS.

LOCAL SCHOOL COACH DIES

Ralph C. Atkinson, aged 35 years, former coach at Allegheny High School and for the last two years assistant to Chester E. Briggs at Fifth Avenue High, died early this morning in his home, 1816 Perrott avenue, North Side, a victim of pneumonia.

Atkinson coached at Allegheny High School for eight years, succeeding Harrison R. Briggs, a brother of the present Fifth Avenue coach, in 1922. He left Allegheny at the close of the 1929 season to assist Chester Briggs at Fifth Avenue. He coached the swimming, track and soccer teams at the uptown school.

STAGG FAVORS PURDUE, OHIO

By AMOS ALONZO STAGG
University of Chicago Coach

The Minnesota-Wisconsin game tomorrow brings into action the most historical rivalry of the Middle West. This rivalry dates back to the year 1890 when Minnesota challenged Wisconsin to a game at Minneapolis for which they offered a guarantee of $250, which game Minnesota won, 63 to 0. An interesting sidelight to the game was that the Wisconsin players arrived in Minneapolis wearing silk top hats.

This rivalry has resulted in a game being played each year with the exception of 1906, when the Intercollegiate Faculty Conference passed its famous set of reform eligibility rules which has become the pattern for all intercollegiate conference and self-respecting colleges in the United States.

Because of Wisconsin's already demonstrated strength, the Badgers must be given the edge in this contest.

Northwestern, with its powerful and diversified attack, should prove too strong for the fast improving Illini. Northwestern's teams have been continuously trained in the same system of play since Coach Hanley took charge five years ago, while Coach Zuppke has been experimenting last year and this on new styles of attack.

Indiana will be host to Ohio State at Bloomington. Ohio should be too powerful for the Hoosiers.

For a great many years, the newspapers hung out the slogan for the Chicago-Purdue game, "Stagg Fears Purdue." It used to be a hoax, but for several years it has been no joke. The fast-scoring machine of the Boilermakers is certain to be too much for the comparatively weak Chicago team.

It Always Sounds Better When Someone Else Says It

Aitch Jay writing his "Metropolitan Impressions" in the current issue of Men's Wear Magazine, a recognized international Style Authority on Men's Dress, made the following unsolicited statement:

"The best looking shoes in town these days, regardless of price, are to be found in the windows of the Regal Shoe Shops. Their styles are correct and smart and they show a larger assortment of models and lasts than any other shoe store in the city.

"There are really nice looking riding boots, skiing boots, hiking boots, Newmarket boots, dress shoes, heavy shoes, and a great variety of styles for business dress, many of which are admirable replicas of expensive, custom bootmakers' products."

This article was written the day before the announcement of our price reduction. Today, every style described by Aitch Jay and all Styles in all Leathers, in every Regal Store are now ALL ONE PRICE, $5.85.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Motor Square Garden will have to run off its lengthy fight card on a fast time schedule next Monday night to get the fans out of the trenches before the following week's show and to this end it has announced that the first bout will go on promptly at 8:30, as advertised, and not at 8:45 or 8:50, as usually is the case, to take care of straggling customers while the prompt patrons fret and stew waiting for the curtain to go up on the show.

The half-hour intermission before the main bout for the benefit of the hot dog and soda pop concession also will be eliminated, and it ought to be done away with permanently if the sentiment of the regular fans means anything. Last Monday night, with only a regulation-length show, it was almost 11:30 o'clock before the fans began their trek homeward.

CARD COMPLETED

Next Monday's card, completed last night, consists of two 10-round bouts, an eight-rounder, a six-rounder and a four-rounder. The usual show contains only a 10-round, an eight-round and two six-round bouts.

Mose Butch, Oakland bantamweight, and Frankie Wallace, of Cleveland, both recent victors over Johnny Datto and Jackie Rodgers, will box the windup engagement. Sammy Dorfman, of New York, who copped a decision over Johnny Jadich at the Meyers Bowl during the summer season, and Ray Collins, of Erie, are in the other 10-rounder. The eight-round bout is between Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, and Sid Silas, of New York. Charley Blazovitch, of St. Michaels, and Jack Thompson, of the North Side, are down for the second bout, and Petey Johns, of the North Side, meets Jimmy Gilligan, of Clairton, in the four-round opener.

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, has signed Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, to box Lou Saunders, of Beaver Falls, in the first 10-round bout of his double windup card next Thursday night. Young Rudy, of Charleroi, and Marty McHale, of McKeesport, are in the top spot.

Sport Vignettes

The Dukes are in a deuce of a spot, their record for the season so far being two wins, two defeats and two ties. . . . Sort of deuces wild, you might say, and they're starting all over again from scratch tonight. . . . Jimmy Moore, who hasn't publicly challenged Tiger West for at least three weeks by actual count, is back making up for lost time and asks the local promoters how about arranging a nice quiet little slugging match for him with his boy friend. . . . Benny Leonard is getting ready to chuck this comeback business because no one will take his fights seriously, although they can't seem to be able to locate the bag in which he is alleged to carry them. . . . Pitt's second team, reported A. W. O. L. at South Bend, accompanied the first team to State College today. . . . They do say Jack Kearns, manager of Mickey Walker and Jackie Fields and formerly of Jack Dempsey, has a "piece" of Lou Brouillard, the new welterweight champion.

Carnegie Tech is all primed for a battle to the death with the Irish of Notre Dame at the Stadium tomorrow. . . . To match Sheeketski and Jackwich in the Notre Dame backfield, it will counter with Bevevino and Graveno, not to mention a few other Irish youths. . . . By the way, the Notre Dame basketball schedule is just out, although, to hear some folks tell it, they opened that season last Saturday. . . . Keep a weather eye peeled for the doings of Fullback Campiglio, of West Liberty Teachers' College, of West Virginia, against the undefeated Fordham eleven in New York tomorrow. . . . Campy, old kid, has been running wild against other opponents and this is his first chance to cut loose against a big time team.

Local Poloists To Play Tomorrow

The polo game postponed from last Saturday, between the 107th Artillery and the South Park Polo Club, will be played tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the club field, McEwen's Farm. The probable lineup:

South Park.	107th Artillery.
R. D. Dette	1 . . Lieut. Watson
W. H. Voltz	2 . . . Lieut. Collins
R. H. Loether	3 . . . . Capt. Voltz

Capt. Steimer will referee.

REJECTION OF CHARITY GAME CAUSES STIR

W. & J.'S ACTION BRINGS WAVE OF PROTEST

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 30.—A wave of protest from Wash-Jeff followers, including heads of local relief and charitable agencies, swept over this community following refusal of the athletic council to sanction a post-season game for charity with Geneva at Beaver Falls on December 5.

Geneva had accepted the proposal the day it was made and it was regarded as certain that the Presidents would accept a formal proposal made by the Community Chest. The roar of disapproval has served in a measure to drown the rumors of strife and dissension in the team and of wide-open breaches among those in charge of the team.

Word received here indicated disappointment on the part of Geneva authorities, who predicted a record crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 for the game, and who will likely open negotiations for a game at Beaver Falls on the December date with West Virginia.

The athletic council, it is pointed out, did not even dignify their decision by giving a statement for publication, it being reported that the authorities merely held it to be "inadvisable" to arrange a game now, and also that the project was "premature." It was reported on the campus today that the players had expressed an unwillingness to contribute their "bit" to charity and that both the manager and Head Coach Amos had spoken against it, although Amos previously had said he favored playing the game. Acting President E. M. Weyer placed no obstacle in the way of the game, stating that he believed it should be put up to the players themselves.

JACKETS HELD UP AT BORDER

By CARL W. SHATTO

Members of the Pittsburgh International League hockey squad today are assembled—but on the wrong side of the Canadian border.

Coach Charles Reid today said that he and Roy D. Schooley, president and manager, were experiencing the customary trouble with immigration officials, but that it was very probable that all difficulties would be ironed out and the full squad here for the first Yellow Jacket practice session on Monday.

Gordy Fraser and Joe Matte, defense men, have been working out with the Chicago Hawks at Duquesne Garden for the last several days, but they are the only Jackets on hand at the present time. Tory Gregg, captain and right wing, not traveling with the main body of the Pittsburgh squad, was expected to arrive here late today.

LOCAL FRESHIES IN ACTION

All three of the local college freshmen football teams are slated for action today or tonight.

Locally, the Duquesne University yearlings are to play their only home contest of the year on the Bluff gridiron this afternoon, meeting the Wash-Jeff first-year team. The game will get under way at 2:30 o'clock.

Carnegie's plebe eleven winds up its formal schedule at Saltsburg, meeting Kiski's crack prep school team. The Tartan youngsters are undefeated.

Kansas Aggies, Mississippi in Drill Together

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Coach Bo McMillin and his Kansas State College football squad got an unexpected break yesterday when they stopped off in Chicago, en route to Morgantown, W. Va., where they will meet West Virginia tomorrow.

The University of Mississippi squad, on its way to meet Marquette, at Milwaukee, also stopped off for a drill at Soldier Field, and a dummy scrimmage between the teams was arranged. The Loyola (New Orleans) squad, which meets the University of Detroit, reached the stadium in time to watch the last few minutes of the Aggie-Mississippi practice.

Pro Floor Loop Not Likely to Operate

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—A strong possibility exists that the American Basketball League, the professional circuit, will not operate this year, John J. O'Brien, president, said today.

The Toledo team, harassed by a bank failure, will be unable to operate leaving only five sure teams, O'Brien said, these being two in Brooklyn and one each in Chicago, Rochester and Fort Wayne.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The Cleveland Rosenblums, former champions of the American Basketball League, will not compete in the league circuit this season, but will tour the country in exhibition games, it was announced here today.

GRIDDERS GET 'BRIBES'

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Letters received by three University of Minnesota football players, offering them money to "throw" the game with Wisconsin here tomorrow, were termed last night by school officials as efforts by forces not connected with either institution to discredit and disorganize the Gophers.

The letters were received by Capt. Clarence Munn, Kenneth MacDougall and Jack Manders. Written on stationery of a Madison (Wis.) hotel, and mailed there, they offered $1,500 if the players would "do their best to throw the game away to the Badgers."

The missives were signed "W. Burzik."

The players notified Head Coach H. O. Crisler, who called the Madison hotel, but could not locate "Burzik." Crisler said he had been unable to find anything indicating the letters had been written in a serious vein and he ridiculed any possibility that gamblers might be attempting bribery.

Dean J. C. Lawrence, assistant to the president at Minnesota, said he regarded the letters as an effort "by some outsider to discredit and disorganize the players."

At Madison, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite, of Wisconsin, was quoted as saying "It is so silly on the face of it that no serious person would do it."

Hunk Anderson, and for the memory of the departed, the great Rockne. But if you think they are downhearted out at Tech—think again!

Yesterday, Bob Waddell gave his squad a final going over. He polished the offense and checked the defense. He straightened out several of the linemen, pointed out a few mistakes that some of the backs have been making and generally the practice was one of the most stringent and painstaking that Tech has held this year.

The starting lineup will be the same that was in there for the boot-off against Purdue, Capt. Armentrout, Kavel, O'Toole and Dueger will be in the backfield. Ducanis will be over the pigskin at center. Hooks Sample and Heiner are to go at the guards. The tackle positions will be filled by Don Fletcher and Forsman and Lewis and Red Stewart at the terminals.

ANDERSON SILENT

Coach Anderson, like most coaches, was noncommittal when questioned about his starting lineup. The chances are he'll shoot the same 11 men at Tech that he tossed at Pitt, which are SOME 11 men.

Anyway, you folks who are going out there tomorrow to look at the ball game are going to see Marchy Schwartz again, and that alone is worth the price of admission, whether you have it or not. Maybe you'll be in there on a pass.

Yesterday's drill was light for the first and second teams, and Coach Hunk Anderson spent his time mainly in going over those details both on offense and defense which always crop up to give the coach worry before a game. The No. 3 varsity scrimmaged the No. 3 freshman team and won handily.

SAME LINEUP FOR LIONS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 30.—(AP.)—With two exceptions, the same Penn State team which met Syracuse probably will face the Pitt Panthers here tomorrow. Hesch likely will go in at guard and Slusser at end. Dummy scrimmage and a long signal running drill made up yesterday's practice for the varsity.

Walt Balasia, of the Pitt freshman football team, was released from the Penn State College Student Hospital yesterday. Balasia was hurt in the game with the Lion yearlings last Saturday. It was thought at first that he had suffered a broken rib.

TECH-IRISH FORECAST :-: Seidel to Broadcast Popular Program :-: KING IN CONCERT

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin
Radio Editor

WHILE IT SEEMS to be a foregone conclusion that Notre Dame will "take" Carnegie Tech tomorrow afternoon at the Stadium, Pittsburgh listeners will exhibit a keen interest. We're sure, in the remarks of Coach Wally Steffen, of Tech, when Jim Murray interviews him on WJAS at 6:15 tonight. . . . Jim was a little crestfallen after his Pitt victory prediction last week and remembering this and Tech's surprise victory over Pitt in 1926, he has decided to let Coach Steffen do all the predicting tonight. . . . We must remember two things in favor of Carnegie Tech. . . . First the advantage of playing on a field where they should know every blade of grass . . . and second the incentive they should have in attaining victory over a famous foe in a game that is to be broadcast, punt by punt, pass by pass over WCAE and the network of the National Broadcasting Company . . . Graham McNamee at the microphone . . . KDKA has chosen to broadcast the game also with Bill Farren announcing.

Darrell V. Martin

* * *

Dennis King, dramatic baritone, has a concert of wide variety on WCAE at 9:30 tonight ranging from the lusty "Nicharo" to the tenderly romantic "Lover Come Back to Me" and D'Hardelot's "Because." We see "Valse Bluette" on Toscha Seidel's concert, WJAS at 10, which promises also two tenor solos by Theo Karle, "The Bells of St. Mary" and McCormack's favorite, "Macushla."

* * *

Now that the county has followed the suggestion of this column by tying in with the Police Radio Station WPDU, we might suggest again that the boroughs and townships avail themselves of this service also by installing short wave receiving sets in their patrols and communicating important crime news to WPDU at either COurt 0300 or EVergIade 7071.

Question a Day:

How long have the Radio Rascals been on the air and is this the oldest children's broadcast in Pittsburgh?—Mrs. G. H., Brentwood.

Answer—Three years on Saturday, November 21, but we believe Cousin Lora's group (about to leave the air) hold the local record for consecutive performances (about five years).

Studio Lights

An old-time Hallowe'en party is ticketed for WTAM at 9 o'clock tonight with "Dance of the Demons" a highlight . . .

M. F. McGrew of 73 McMunn avenue, Crafton, says it's lots of fun on Friday at 6:15 to go back and forth over KDKA, WTAM and WJR and pick up the Velveteers program . . . McGrew reports that all three stations put on the same concert with the same continuity but with three different orchestras and announcers . . .

The Gloom Chasers, who call themselves Colonel and Budd, have renewed their CBS-WJAS contract for an indefinite period.

The lineup of orchestras to succeed B. A. Rolfe has been changed to Wayne King on Tuesday night, Andy Sannella on Thursday and Gus Arnheim on Saturday.

As something a little different, Chickie Moss, the blues singer, has decided to take her guests on a tour of movie theaters Halloween night . . . special films of ghosts and goblins are to be shown in cinema houses owned by her sister. . .

Dance music out of town tonight: Vincent Lopez, WEAF, 12 and WTAM, 11:30; Jack Denny, WJZ, WJR, WENR, 11:30; Ben Bernie, WABC-WBBM, midnight; Cab Calloway, WEAF, WGY, KYW, midnight.

Today's Tid Bit:

Eddie Cantor, speaking over the Sunday evening coffee hour replies to a friend who asked him if he was an Elk:

"Am I a joiner? Why—I'm a Rotarian, an Elk, a Moose and a Woodman. And, if there are any Lions listening in, I'm a Lion. At times my wife calls me an Odd Fellow. So—I ask you! Am I organized? I'm for any organization that issues badges and is slow collecting dues."

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Cesar Searchinger, Columbia's foreign representative, who in the last year and a half has led to American loudspeakers an imposing number of famous Europeans, landed in New York the other day for a short vacation.

A former American correspondent who has lived six years abroad, he hobnobs with his old associates who crowd their way daily into the government seats of Downing street and the Quai d'Orsay, seized the chance of joining them on the ship bearing Laval to America. Keeping old contacts has helped him in his new work quite as much as his long newspaper training in getting stories—many of them exclusive—from world figures.

Not many of the world figures has he missed on his microphonic errands. You can count them on one hand—Stalin, Von Hindenburg, the Kaiser. An alert, well-informed, keen-minded fellow, he employs all the strategies of the successful correspondent in hunting down the great, winning their consent to speak to America.

He has not given up hope of snaring the Kaiser, though he believes his efforts will depend upon the good will of the German government. If Berlin has no objection, disclaims all responsibility—all well and good. It will then be up to him to bring his persuasive powers to work on the exile at Doorn.

* * *

Stalin is an equally hard nut to crack. There may be Washington obstacles to overcome, to say nothing of those at Moscow. And Stalin has the reputation of being a man of few words, few speeches.

As for Hindenburg, Searchinger said that the old German war lord would probably never be heard on the radio, for he has nothing to say. He has become merely a romantic symbol of a happier, greater Germany, who has no real voice in the government of today, whose decisions are made for him by a close group of advisers.

* * *

Much of Searchinger's success in getting the top shots of the European scene for American ears lies, I suspect, in a talent for subtle flattery—that backed up by an enterprising mind and a winsome manner of address. He it was who finally induced George Bernard Shaw to speak across the Atlantic when hope had been pretty well abandoned that he ever would. But it was a long, tough job to perform. It required months of sticktoitiveness and patient cajolery.

Detroit Brightens as Auto Makers Plan New Models; Tool Makers Busy

—By B. C. FORBES

DETROIT, Oct. 30.

GOOD NEWS: [illegible] tool makers in Detroit.

But with a month things will be livelier.

THE MANUFACTURING [illegible] cars to work up [illegible] throughout the country throughout the world [illegible] alone be sufficient to keep factories busy two to four months.

The city of Detroit [illegible] assured of more employment this winter than last winter. Last winter was [illegible] over, come into Detroit looking for jobs. Detroit has skilled workers that [illegible] outsiders at least six months.

B. C. Forbes

AS AN AUTOMOBILE president expresses:

"Beginning within a month Detroit will be better off than it was last year. A year ago there were more cars in the hands of dealers, there were more unsold used cars, factories had lots of cars.

"Today the conditions are quite different. Dealers stocks are extremely low, factory inventories are very light. Used cars have been well absorbed.

"There isn't a factory that is not now buying material. It will take two or three months — December, January and February, and perhaps March — to make enough cars to build up reasonable stocks for dealers.

"Beyond that one cannot see or talk with any degree of confidence because everything will depend on whether the country as a whole has by then resumed something approaching normal activity. It is comforting to know that the automotive industry here will be able to tide over the winter months for a larger number of workers than a year ago. This in itself will do something to keep the wheels going elsewhere, because no industry has wider ramifications, no industry utilizes a larger variety of materials, than the automobile industry.

"So we're hopeful that distinctly better days are immediately ahead of us."

I HAVE VISITED several motor plants and can assure the public that their motor dollar will buy more and better transportation next year than ever before. Every manufacturer realizes that competition has become unprecedentedly keen, that buyers are unresponsive, and that something unique in the way of value, beauty and quality has to be offered to move men and women to sign on the dotted line.

Hence the impending introduction of new and improved models—usually at old or lower prices—by virtually every manufacturer. Never before were so many new models conceived at one time.

FRANKLY CONDITIONS in and around Detroit have been bad, very bad. One hears on every side of drastic reorganization of executive forces since the depression. The pruning knife has been applied ruthlessly in nearly every direction.

I have found one exception. Joe Graham, head of Graham-Paige, a country boy who, with his two brothers, Bob and Ray, was a successful glass manufacturer before they turned to the automotive field, is still swayed more by sentiment than are some other motor executives who weren't raised in a family business where responsibility toward associates and toward work folks was accepted as a serious responsibility.

Although Graham-Paige has suffered its share of curtailment, the Graham brothers have not swung the ax right and left either among the more responsible members of the organization or among its wage earners who moved to Detroit when the "Graham boys" moved here.

I'm just old-fashioned enough to admire the Grahams' ethics and loyalty to those who have been loyal to them.

WITHIN THE LAST few weeks the spirit of motor manufacturers has perked up. There is developing a little more courage, a little more determination to spend money in the hope of making money. Said Austin F. Bement, well-known advertising authority:

"Indications are that the automobile and allied industries may find it desirable to step up their advertising schedules after the first of the year. All realize the existence of a dammed-up demand for new cars, part of which is purely psychological, and all of which is made possible by continued use of old cars well beyond the time when new cars would normally be purchased. This latent demand should respond to advertising next year to an unusual degree."

IN SHORT, Detroit not only looks for but is beginning to help to create better times.

Banks, Exchanges To Close for Election Day

The New York Stock Exchange, New York Curb, Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and exchanges in other cities will remain closed Tuesday, November 3, election day, a legal holiday in many states. Banks here and in New York will also be closed.

The Chicago Board of Trade, Grain Pit, will be open for its customary session.

LOSS REPORTED BY BETHLEHEM

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(INS.)—Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents and $1.75 on the common and preferred stocks respectively.

For the quarter ended September 30 the company reported a net loss of $1,502,002, after interest, depreciation, etc., compared with net income of $1,942,743 in the preceding quarter, and net income of $3,783,425 in the third quarter of 1930.

For the first nine months of this year Bethlehem Steel earned $1,892,683, equivalent to $1.89 a share on 1,000,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock. In the corresponding period of 1930 net earnings were equal to $5.09 a share on the common stock after dividends on the preferred.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the company, said that orders on hand on September 30 totaled 848,262, 342, with the mill operating at 31 per cent of capacity. He added:

"Prices are being held very well and in the last week there has been more activity on the part of the buying public."

GRAIN PRICES TEND UP

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Grain prices tended upward early today, influenced by Liverpool reports of scarcity of wheat sellers. Offerings of wheat at Liverpool, it was stated, were confined to lenders on shipments from North America. Opening unchanged to ⅝ cent lower, wheat continued to point upward. Corn started all ½ to ¾ cent in advance and subsequently rose further.

Wheat bulls laid stress on Russian advices that total grain deliveries to Oct. 20 were only 12.2 per cent of the expected total. It was further reported that Russia's 1931 adverse trade balance, January to August was 211,000,000 rubles, compared with 87,000,000 rubles during the same period of 1930. Bearish traders made much of Winnipeg advices that any announcement of the new British government's intentions to carry out promises of protection to British growers and greater preferences to the British colonies would be bearish on United States wheat.

Archer-Daniels Again Paying Dividends

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Archer-Daniels-Midland Company, the country's largest producer of linseed oil and related products, restored its common stock to the dividend column today with a declaration of a 25-cent quarterly payment, payable December 1. The company had suspended payment on the stock last April due to influences of the general business depression.

Today's action by the Archer-Daniels directors came as a very pleasant surprise to the financial community depressed and almost hopeless in the face of declining stock prices and a seemingly endless series of dividend omissions and reductions.

Bethlehem Steel Action Shows Confidence

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE DECLARATION OF THE REGULAR common dividend of 50 cents by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, coincident with the announcement of a loss of $1,502,002 for the third quarter of the year, is being interpreted as an indication that steel industry executives are looking toward 1932 with confidence. United States Steel also declared the regular dividend on Tuesday.

No particularly marked change is expected in the steel business during the final months of the year. Moderate gains in production have been recorded at a few points, but the general rate of activity is still below 30 per cent of capacity. The last two months of the year are invariably dull for the steel makers.

Wage cuts and other economies will help third quarter statements to some extent, but this is not likely to result in any startling improvement. It seems unlikely that the directors of Bethlehem Steel and United States Steel would continue to draw heavily on their cash if they were not confident that a revival in activity will start in early months of next year.

Steel Losses Heavy

STATEMENTS FOR THE THIRD quarter show steel to have been one of the hardest hit industries by the depression. A table of profits or losses of seven leading steel companies for the first quarter shows that all companies except Inland Steel and United States Steel came out behind the game. Inland had the only real profit since United States Steel included profit from the sale of a public utility property at Gary, Ind., in its earnings.

National Steel is not expected to publish a quarterly statement. This company is understood to have made money in the third quarter, but the amount was less than dividend requirements for the period. Since National's earnings were in excess of dividends in the first half of the year, it probably will come to the close of 1931 with dividends for the full year earned. It will be the only large steel company to accomplish this.

Earnings Compared

EACH OF THE SEVEN leading steel companies which have published statements this week showed less satisfactory results than in the second quarter of this year. The comparison with the third quarter of 1930 is even less favorable.

The following table compares steel company profits or losses and earnings per share after all charges for the third quarter with the second quarter and with the third quarter of last year:

Quarter ended:	Sept. 30, 1931 Net Profit	Per Share	June 30, 1931 Net Profit	Per Share	Sept. 30, 1930 Net Profit	Per Share

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

STOCK MARKET SHOWS FIRM UNDERTONE

List Fails to Hold Rally; Pivot Shares Stiffen Around Previous Close

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP.)—The securities markets displayed a firm undertone today, but shares were unable to sustain a morning rally.

Wall street regarded the drop of $24,000,000 in the volume of currency in circulation as the most encouraging news in weeks, providing tangible evidence of a return of confidence in banks. A better demand for bank investments was apparent in the bond market.

The stock market pushed up about 1 to 4 points during the morning, but its advance was virtually canceled after midday. Pivotal shares generally stiffened around last night's final levels, however. Electric Power and Light turned weak, losing 3 points. Heaviness of this issue appeared to discourage buying. Some other utilities became heavy. North American and National Power and Light losing about a point. Union Pacific sold up 4 points, then lost its rise. Gains of 1 to 2 points in such issues as United States Steel, American Telephone and American Can were lost. Bethlehem Steel, however, managed to hold most of an early upturn of 1¼. Paramount worked somewhat higher.

The decline in currency in circulation was the first since the wane of currency hoarding prompted by England's suspension of the gold standard.

Maintenance of the 50-cent common dividend by Bethlehem Steel, following similar action by United States Steel two days previously, was interpreted favorably. Belief that the steel industry may have a belated autumn recovery was bolstered by a statement by a General Motors official that the motor industry had touched bottom three months ago.

A reduction in the minimum wage scale to $6 daily from $7 by Ford Motor Company was favorably received by those interests in Wall street who hold that belated deflation of wages has delayed recovery. It was reported that motor equipment and accessory manufacturers supplying Ford probably would take similar action. Wall street continued to discuss railway wages.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported little change in general business activity, however, pointing out that unseasonably warm weather was again hampering the movement of goods at retail.

REFRIGERATION SALES SHOW INCREASE

Efforts Redoubled When Boom Conditions End, Kelvinator Head Says

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Business achievement is doubly noteworthy when accomplished in times of liquidation and stress and strain. Amidst the chorus of pessimism there are discordant notes from trend buckers who have won success during the red ink era.

Various phases of the electrical equipment industry have been especially progressive in introducing new ideas which have broken down sales resistance. The further electrification of the homes of the Americans gainfully employed has gone steadily on, despite adverse economic conditions. How have the leaders of this industry performed the miracle of increasing profits at a time when incomes and prices everywhere have been falling?

Mr. Rukeyser

PROFITS INCREASED

G. W. Mason, president Kelvinator Corporation at Detroit, in giving me the inside story of how his enterprise has increased net profits for the last two years, said:

"When it was evident in late 1929 that boom conditions were over, we did not slacken our efforts to get business. On the other hand, we increased our man power and our advertising appropriations and put forth greater effort than ever, with the result that our fiscal year, which ended on September 30, 1930, showed approximately 35 per cent increase in profits over the preceding year.

"From our 1930-31 fiscal year, beginning with October, 1930, we adopted the slogan 'full steam ahead,' increased our appropriations and continued aggressively after business. The final figures for the 1930-31 fiscal year, which closed on September 30, are not yet ready, but it is safe to say that they will again show an increase over the previous year."

CAMPAIGN SUCCESS

"During the last year of the year just closed we launched one of the largest advertising and sales promotion campaigns in the company's history, and thereby increased our business and profits in a period which has never before in our history shown a profit."

As for plans for the future Mr. Mason added:

"For the 1931-1932 year, we are planning to go ahead along similar lines.

"We have just launched another big sales campaign, and while we anticipate that business will be harder to get during the coming year, we are laying our plans to increase our efforts accordingly."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. The bond market responded today to the news of a decrease in money in circulation reported by the Federal Reserve Board by advancing irregularly, although trading continued to be moderate. The turnover in the over-the-counter market was limited.

United States Treasury and Liberty Loans experienced the most general strength, although their gains were not so large as those of other groups.

Daily True Story :: A Severe Test

For chicanery and double dealing, small town politicians rarely have anything to learn from their brothers in the larger cities. The different factions arise, rule, and recede in an ever changing sequence. The bosses, grafts, and the thousand and one lesser injustices are there just the same.

John Drake, present building commissioner of Milford, was more acutely aware of this truth now than ever before. Three and a half years ago, the ascendant political party had drafted him into their ranks. Drake had never held a public office until that time; and, even in his profession as a lawyer, had been woefully innocent of the shrewd and secret business that passed behind the closed doors of politics.

However, he had learned a lot in those three and a half years past, and he had come to be a thorn in the side of the very party that had put him in office. They had misjudged this man Drake when they had sought in him a yes man for their conniving and scheming. Drake was as straight as a steel rule; too straight and inflexible, some thought, to ever have a successful career in public office.

In the town of Milford it was Drake who had a large part in the awarding of contracts for public works, and that office had formerly been the most comfortable sinecure for graft in the whole village. Drake had taken from it a pay check of $175 every month; not one cent more. And now Drake was going to have the skids put under him by the party leaders. Drake knew this, had known it for a long time. Among themselves, the political bosses admitted it had been a mistake to ever put him in. The new election, two months away, would see another and more agreeable man on their ticket.

TAKES HIGH HONORS

Drake's law practice had gone to the dogs while he was in office, and it would be difficult for a man nearing 40 to pick up the loose threads very quickly. There wouldn't be that regular $175 a month, he told himself grimly. Personally, he wouldn't have minded that so much; but there was his wife and daughter to consider. It would be hard for them, bitterly hard, he knew.

Both he and his wife had wanted Isabelle, their daughter, to have the very best there was in the way of an education. She deserved it. All the way through high school she had been at the top of her class and had graduated at the close of the term just closed with high honors. The Drakes had planned to give her a few years in an eastern women's college of unexcelled repute, then perhaps a year abroad. Isabelle had exhibited a talent for writing, not merely a bright flash of youthful ingenuity, but definite evidence of real ability that needed only time and hard work to be developed into something more.

As Drake sat alone in his office this afternoon, he knew that all that would now have to be put aside indefinitely, if not forever. The real rub was that his wife and daughter would take their misfortunes with a smile; they believed in him. He had been a fool, he derided himself, to think that his duty to the town was all important. If he had stayed with his law practice—but alas, he had placed the civic duty first.

LARGE CONCERN

"Send him in," Drake ordered.

The Perrington company, owned and operated by Hiram Perrington, a millionaire, was the largest concern of its kind in the county. Lane entered immediately and the two men shook hands, being acquaintances, though not intimate friends. Drake offered his visitor a chair and Lane responded with a cigar of the brand that only high executives in the Perrington company could afford.

He leaned toward Drake and spoke in a confidential manner that was rather unnecessary in the privacy of the office. "Mr. Perrington intended coming here himself, but the press of business detained him. Consequently, I'm speaking for him."

Here, Lane paused to light his own cigar and Drake wondered for the moment just what business had brought about this interview. He had not long to wait.

"I won't waste words, Mr. Drake," Lane said crisply. "Our company is after the contract for the new river bridge. You're the one who awards the contracts and I'm here to talk turkey."

Lane waved a deprecating hand: "Oh, I know all about that bunk! Public integrity and whatnot. I'm not asking you to rob a bank! You know as well as I do how these things are managed. We want that contract and we're going to get it. What's your figure?"

CHANCE FOR FORTUNE

Had it been any other day than this, Drake would have ushered Lane out of the office without too much regard for ceremony. It was not the first proposition of the sort that had been made to him; but it was the first time the Perrington Company had broached anything underhanded. That was queer. Hiram Perrington was known and trusted throughout the state for his unimpeachable honesty, and Lane had said that he was speaking for Perrington himself.

"Are you sure Perrington wanted you to do this?" Drake insisted.

"I am repeating his very words," Lane asserted.

It was a chance for a small fortune. The bid was to be awarded before election; Drake knew that he could take his cut and get out, a sadder but wiser man. No one would know about it, and if they did, the majority wouldn't consider it anything unusual. He came to his decision almost instantly.

"You can tell Mr. Perrington," he said, quietly rising to his feet, "That I have never taken a bribe and I don't intend to start now. He can submit his bid along with the rest. If we decide it's the best, he'll get the contract. Otherwise, he can't buy it with all the gold in the mint!"

DRAKE PUZZLED

Lane took his hat. "Very well," he said blandly and without rancor, "I'll tell him just what you said."

When John Drake arrived at his modest home that night, he was in a divided state of mind. He had satisfied his own conscience, that was true; but he had denied his wife and daughter in doing so. Should they be made to suffer because of his decision? Likely as not, the Perrington Company would get the contract anyway. All he had accomplished was to cut himself out of several thousand dollars.

"Mary," he said to his wife, as she met him at the door, "I've got something to tell you. Is Isabelle here?" He hoped not.

His wife looked at him understandingly: "No, she isn't. And, John, I've some news for you, too, for all of us in fact."

"Let it wait," John interrupted, and he told her of his interview with Lane. "Do you think I did right?" he asked as he finished. "You know what it means, don't you?"

TELEPHONE CALL

He put down the paper and stared unbelievably at his wife. "You mean that Mary is one of the three?"

"Of course! She gets fifteen hundred and can choose any school she likes. Isn't it marvelous of Mr. Perrington?"

"Perrington? Is he the one?"

It was for John and he answered it in a semi-coma.

"That you, Drake? This is Perrington—"

"If it's about that contract—"

"It certainly is! But not what you think. We want a man like you, one that can't be bribed! It was a test and you passed with flying colors. Now, what do you say to running for mayor, at the next election on the new ticket? Let's clean out this old gang of crooks! What do you say?"

It was all John could do to stammer a faint "Okay!" Perhaps he was playing politics after all—A new kind of politics!

Check in Money Hoarding Indicated

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Indication that hoarding had been checked was seen today in a Federal Reserve Board statement that there was a $24,000,000 decrease in money in circulation for the week ending October 28.

In the last year, however, the increase has been $1,054,000,000. At the close of business last Wednesday the total money in circulation was $5,480,000,000. While the sum was on the increase, officials attributed it to hoarding by persons who feared to trust their money to banks. They added there was no greater demand for money than a year ago.

THE LOVE TRAP -:- Story of a Girl's Struggle For Love and Happiness -:- By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER VIII.

Mary went on working. She was hurt, but there was a stunned something about it all that kept her from feeling too much pain. It was possible to bear these blows and not flinch in public.

Already she knew much about the pinch, the economic struggle, of life. But these were new experiences with emotions and the embittering consequences of—men's desires. A woman like Carlotta Guido, for instance . . .

But it was amazing how she had been seized by Fate. Her meeting with Landers, his helpfulness and, unbelievably, the way she had been trapped into an engagement. Even she might have married him—it was possible—for he had been magnetic and admirable. And wealthy. But that was all over now—it gave her a sickening sensation. The Guido woman had succeeded better than she knew.

Was it Steve Moore who had put the blight on the hopes of Buck Landers? Almost in a panic Mary tried not to think of Steve. It hurt too much. A shame and unhappiness burned like an acid. Steve was through with her, and never wanted to see her again. He thought she was cheap—she wasn't, but he thought so. Well, she would have to keep away from him, and just never think about him anymore as long as she lived. She saw herself forgetting all in some new high-minded career. She thought of a convent, but that was seriously a bit too extreme. If she could only be a nurse or a school teacher or something moderately unpleasant . . .

DULL UNHAPPINESS

Alone.

One, two, three days she went along bleak and unsatisfied. She heard nothing from Steve, did not glimpse him about the hotel. It would be only a few days till Buck Landers returned from Boston—but that was a dread. Deep in her breast, throbbing like something alive, was the desire to see Steve again.

She went to a motion picture that night and saw on the screen a young actor who reminded her a little of Steve. It was a negligible resemblance, but it stirred her tremendously.

Another day of dull unhappiness passed and as she was leaving the hotel Steve Moore rose from a chair in the lobby and walked out with her through the revolving door. Her heart was pounding. Steve, in a gray suit that draped his form with a grace impossible for any other man, was again at her side.

His face was a mask, smooth and unemotional. She thought he looked ill.

"How have you been?" she asked, timidly concerned. "Everything has been all right with you, hasn't it?"

"I've been loafing." His head moved impatiently. "I'm sick of it. Outside of writing one or two letters, it's been a time wasted. I'm leaving New York in a day or two."

"For long?"

WANTS HIM TO STAY

"Permanently. I'm going back to California and get a job there." His eyes looked straight ahead. "I've decided New York is a bust for me."

"Well, I'm sorry to see you go." It was difficult to keep the wretchedness out of her voice. "Is this goodbye?"

"It looks that way, Mary."

"But I thought you were going to stay with Mr. Landers? I—"

He glanced at her without smiling.

"I'm sorry it's not going to work out that way, Mary. I've decided that it's impossible. I just wanted to see you for a few minutes before I go."

She felt herself tremble slightly. Was he bidding her goodbye forever with this cold, expressionless face? Her heart seemed to suspend operation, to wait in suspense . . .

"Shall we do something tonight, Steve?" she asked swiftly.

"No—I'll just walk along with you a little way now, and let it go at that. There's no good fooling around. I just don't feel like sneaking out of town without telling you, though."

He meant it—she would never see him again. It was going to end just like this—on a public street—and, for a moment, she had a pang of desperate fear. Without him New York would be stone dead—all of life unutterably dreary. Without the sharp joy of hope . . .

"I don't want you to go!" she said suddenly and uncontrollably. "I want to see a lot of you. And you wanted to see a lot of me, too—the other night. Oh, Steve, I don't want you to go!" Her voice aching, stripped of all pretended indifference.

"I'm sorry," he said, briefly polite. His words were as hard and cold as his countenance.

"But why, Steve, why did you decide to leave? Was it something I did?" Something about Buck? That night in the taxi. You cared a lot for me that night, Steve . . . you know you did!"

DETERMINED TO GO

Her deeper self knew that she was too bold—that this talk was too wild. She had not been able to control the rising gust of feeling. But she had to check it or in another moment she would be begging him pitifully to stay. It would make him loathe her if she did a thing like that . . .

"I'm not worth missing," he said sharply. There was a faint nervous quiver on his lips. "I tell you I ought to get out and I'm going to. If my will power had been stronger I wouldn't have seen you this last time, even."

"Is there anything on earth that will make you stay," she demanded suddenly, as her heart began to swell and melt. "Oh, Steve, I've made you unhappy. I've somehow ruined your start in New York, your career. It's all my fault. I didn't want to make you unhappy, Steve. I can't bear to see you look like this. Let me do something. I'll do anything you say—"

He was paler than she had ever seen him before. He kept avoiding her eyes . . .

"Why do you say things like that to me, Mary?" he demanded. "It's hard enough to pull out, without you making it a thousand times harder. I tell you I've made up my mind to go."

STRANGE EXCITEMENT

He had made up his mind!

"I don't mind if you think I'm a fool," she declared unexpectedly. "I can't help it, Steve—I'm not going to let you go. I don't care what you say. I don't care about anything. All I know is that you're not going to leave New York. I've got something to say about that. Oh, Steve, please let me have something to say about it! Give me tonight—let's not part right here in the street, and never give each other the chance to find out the real truth. Whatever's wrong, Steve, I'll make it right! Only don't go off this way without giving me a chance to straighten everything up. If you're worried about Buck Landers—I'll never see him again. Give me tonight . . ."

"You'd better be careful with me," he told her grimly. "I'm only a human being after all."

"But, Steve—surely a girl has as much right as a man to say—to say anything she wants to—and do anything she wants to. Steve, I am as free as a man—I make my own living. I'm not ashamed to tell you, Steve, that I do care for you—you don't know how much."

She was at a pitch of strange excitement. Yes, she knew she was throwing herself at his head. Nice girls didn't do that. Men despised that sort of thing—but a ferocious flame was burning in her breast. Something entirely new had happened to her life—had set her personality on fire, and she had no power to extinguish the flames.

STRANGER TO HERSELF

There were beads of perspiration on his forehead. "I tell you this is dangerous, Mary. You don't realize."

"I don't care."

They stopped and stood beside a doorway. She could feel Steve's hand like a clamp on her arm.

"I told you I was only human," he said.

"All right—then act like one," she said with bewildering madness. "If you go, I'll never be happy again. I'm happier when I'm with you, Steve. I was never happy before in my life. Why can't you stay and be happy, too? Is there anything I do that displeases you? Tell me what I can do to please you, Steve. I don't know what's come over me, but my heart will break if you leave. I couldn't bear it—"

Steve fastened his gray eyes upon her; he put his hand beneath her chin and turned her face up to his.

"You're lovely, Mary. Lovely eyes, like the dark blue sky at night. I dream about your eyes. I dream about all of you."

"I want you to dream about me, Steve. I dream about you, too. Let's keep together."

His jaw was set tight. Slowly, dangerous fires were beginning to burn in his eyes, and she was frightened and thrilled.

"It will mean the end of my friendship with Landers," he said. "I'm warning you, Mary—you'd better be sensible. Do you mean what you say—do you know what you want?"

She was through with discretion—she was ready to cast it to the winds. All she knew was that she was desperately determined to hold him. No longer was she the Mary Kennedy of the past. She was a new, tumultuous creature, an utter stranger to herself.

"I tell you nothing matters!" she cried. "I'm not foolish and tiresome, Steve. You don't know me yet—you're going to like me. I'll make you like me."

SEEK SOLITUDE

"If I went away now my soul would be burning in hell as long as I live." The words came out with a kind of groan. "I'd curse myself forever. You're wiser than I am, Mary. But don't expect me to marry you now—I can't. I'm practically broke, and I haven't any prospects. There's not a thing I can offer you."

"I'm not asking you to marry me, Steve. All I say is—don't leave me."

"You make it sound dangerous enough, Mary."

"I don't want to marry you," she said. "Why can't we just be happy without worrying?"

He frowned thoughtfully. "All right. But I'm not in a mood to sit with you in a stuffy movie or a restaurant. If we're going to be together we've got to be alone."

Her eyes were blurred, her pulse beat wildly.

"We can be by ourselves, Steve!" Her voice throbbed. "Listen—we can go back to the hotel. There's a suite on the fourteenth floor and the man who has it by the month is out of town for a week. I can get the master key from my office. We can have dinner up there. Nobody will know but the waiter and he won't think anything about it. It will be perfectly all right, Steve."

He crushed her hand in his muscular palms. "Right," he said, his eyes glistening.

"Steve, isn't it wonderful?" she said exultantly with a little catching in her voice. "You see, we're happy already! Isn't it silly to be broken-hearted, Steve? All you have to do is to wait at the bottom of the elevator. I'll go up first and then you come up. Fourteen-o-six is the number. We'll talk everything over, won't we?"

MARY EXCITED

"I thought we were going to forget all about Landers and everybody else?"

"Then we won't talk about him at all. We won't even mention him if it irritates you, Steve."

"I'm only interested in you, Mary—"

"I'm that way about you, too, Steve."

At the hotel, Mary walked up the stairs to the mezzanine floor, where the private offices were, and got the key that would open the unoccupied suite. From the second floor she took the elevator. Her mouth was dry. Her knees trembled with the excitement of the adventure that was upon her. She stepped inside the doorway and lit the room. It was hot and dry, but when she raised the windows a breeze rippled the curtains. Looking out, there was a golden haze against the sky from millions of electric lights. The hum from the streets reached her obscurely with but a drowsy murmuring.

"Steve will be here in a few minutes," she told herself. "Then . . . it will be wonderful. We'll have the whole evening to ourselves. Nobody can reach us or bother us. I've never been this happy before. I always wanted to be this happy, but I never had the chance. There was never anybody like Steve before. This must be love . . . he simply makes my brain swim. Nobody else ever did that. Maybe I am a fool to show it so much, but I can't help being honest with him. I want him to know it. . . ."

IMPATIENT

She began walking around the place. There was a living room and, beyond, a bedroom. It was just like all the other suites in this hotel, but it had an especial niceness. An odd magic. Steve would be here in a minute or two now, but she was disturbed by the thought that he might have misunderstood the number. She waited but he did not come. Had he changed his mind? No—that would be too wretched. "Oh, hurry up, Steve! We don't want to waste even a few minutes." She moved a little table out in the center of the room. They would have dinner served on it. It was a pretty good dinner, too, the hotel served for a dollar and a half. Funny how she could be hungry like this—but she was.

The door opened and Steve closed it behind him. He threw his hat with a wild gesture into a chair across the room. His cheeks glowed and his hair rumpled. She stood there smiling at him and he came to her with his arms flung wide.

"Steve, aren't you glad we're here?"

"It's heaven."

"And we both were in hell a few minutes ago."

His arms were out wide. She smiled at him for a moment, and then came closer to him; they were locked in a golden embrace; she felt his mouth covering her own with kisses. The pressure of his lips made her head swim—a curious weakness ran through her veins, but, at the same time, a new current of life welled up through her with a strong happy beat. He held her with a grip as though he would never let her go. It was all strange, yet it was precisely as she knew it would be—as it had to be. Their words were muffled and broken; she ran one of her hands through his dark hair. He held her apart and gazed with widened eyes at her flushed face.

"Are you happy now, Steve?"

"Yes." His eyes were glowing pools of life. "But there's going to be more, Mary, and still more."

She was in his arms again. He bent his head and kissed her with stronger, close contact.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mary Kennedy, pretty secretary, becomes engaged to Buck Landers, wealthy sports promoter, who is much older. Later, Mary meets young Steve Moore, Landers' ward. They are attracted to one another immediately. Landers asks Steve to entertain Mary while he is out of town. The bond between the young couple grows, but thoughts of Landers form a barrier. Mary tells Steve she does not want to marry Landers. One evening Steve takes Mary in his arms. Then conscience-stricken, he tells her they must not see each other again. Next day, Landers' former sweetheart calls on Mary and threatens her.

"Peace of mind attained by refusal to acknowledge existence of unpleasant data is responsible for the defeatist complex which grievously disquiets me. Laugh all you please—but the score remains Tuba, 42; Yuba, 0."

Thus spake the angry coach, as he stepped gingerly over, around and among his tired players who sprawled asleep in their blankets, worn out by the day's excitement. The coach carried a buggy whip and did not hesitate to lash Capt. Peverel mercilessly.

Peverel had lost interest—he didn't want to play Tuba and frankly said so. Both tackles had sneaked off with a couple of girls to a picture show. And now the whistle was blowing. "Gosh," groaned Peverel, as he stroked his unshaven chin dejectedly. He felt like an old man. In fact he was an old man.

But he loved Lucy Mulch. And she loved ——

Smash Gang Rule Again!

Honest Citizens Must Not Fail to Vote Next Tuesday If the Primary Gains Are to Be Held.

Evidence multiplies that the Armstrong and Kline-Coyne political machines are working together to elect Senator Mansfield and David L. Lawrence as County Commissioners.

Ward "heelers" are being instructed to vote, and get others to vote, for the Democrat Lawrence as well as the Republican Mansfield.

There is even a suspicion that fraud may again be attempted. Hundreds of thousands of sample ballots, showing how citizens may vote for Lawrence and Mansfield, have been printed—and printed under mysterious circumstances that have led County Commissioner McGovern to warn that cheating is feasible.

Why are both branches of the Republican gang that has so long urged party regularity calling now for the election of the Democrat Lawrence instead of the Republican McGovern?

The answer may and probably does lie in the fact that McGovern and his running mate on the Independent ticket, C. M. Barr, have both charged the gang with criminal mismanagement of the county's affairs and have promised an audit in the event of their election.

They have also promised honest elections. Honest elections are not to the gang's liking.

"Suspicious Persons"

It Is Just Common Sense That a Person Should Not Be Punished on Mere Suspicion.

Judges Stadtfeld and McNaugher, of Common Pleas Court, discharged from the workhouse Wednesday, through a writ of habeas corpus, a Negro who had been sentenced as a "suspicious person" by Magistrate J. J. O'Connor to serve 30 days in the prison.

The judges in their opinion condemned the magistrates' practice of finding defendants guilty of being suspicious persons and punishing them accordingly. They said they doubted the legality of the city ordinance under authority of which the magistrates act.

Whatever the law may be, it is just common sense that a person should not be convicted on mere suspicion. If a definite charge of wrongdoing, in violation of the law, cannot be sustained, the suspect, regardless of what his previous record may have been, should be discharged.

It is only the poor, the ignorant and the friendless who serve prison terms on the charge of being suspicious persons. Others sentenced on such a charge always get out through a habeas corpus proceeding.

It is time that something was done for the protection of police court prisoners who do not know or are unable to obtain their rights.

The charge of being a suspicious person should be erased from the list of penal offenses.

State Relief Plans

It Is Easy to Think of Work to Be Done, But the Raising of Money Is Another Matter.

The Legislature is to meet week after next in special session to provide relief for the unemployed.

Gov. Pinchot talks now of offering destitute men an opportunity to work this winter on the improvement of the country roads.

There seems to be no objection to the plan, provided money will be available to pay their wages. Pinchot does not say anything about that feature of the business.

It is true that he proposed in an earlier statement that the state sell bonds, which would not become valid until they had been approved by the people. Inasmuch as their validation could not be assured and, in any event, could not be effected for a year or two, it is doubtful if such bonds could be sold at this time.

The finding of state work on which the destitute may be employed will not be difficult. But the raising of the money will be another matter.

Cut the Red Tape

A Praiseworthy Movement Has Been Started to Hasten Payments to Depositors of Closed Banks.

In the ordinary course of affairs the depositors of closed banks receive none of their money until eight or nine months have elapsed.

If this rule should prevail in the case of banks recently closed in Pittsburgh it would work a hardship not only on the depositors, but on merchants with whom they would spend part of their savings for Christmas gifts.

A praiseworthy movement has been started in Philadelphia, with the approval of Secretary Gordon of the State Banking Department, to cut the red tape and hasten payments to depositors, so that some of the cash may be available for use during the holiday season.

The plan should be as applicable to Pittsburgh as to Philadelphia. It is desirable from every standpoint that all who can help to promote this plan shall omit nothing that will aid in putting it into execution. It will benefit the public as well as the depositors and merchants.

Halloween

The Police Give Some Good Advice in Regard to the Celebration of the Festival.

Halloween is to Pittsburgh what New Year's is to Philadelphia and Mardi Gras to New Orleans—the year's most notable occasion for masking and mummery.

We hope it will ever continue so, for there are elements in the origin of the festival that give it a unique charm.

The National Geographic Society discusses the geographic origins of the holiday in a current bulletin. It tells us that we derive the fancy that Halloween is the night of nights for the pranks of goblins from the ancient Druids, a religious order of the early Celts. We owe the association of nuts and apples with Halloween to a Roman harvest festival that occurred about the same date. The masquerade and mummery have come from Belgium, Germany and parts of France, where the holiday is thus celebrated.

Farsighted

The skipper, answering the cries
For help, thinks proper to advise:
"Be calm and keep a hopeful eye

Aboard the skipper's ship are three
Devices for emergency.
Along the rail they plainly show—
These unused lifebuoys in a row.

Surprise for Soldier Man

A Little More of "Enoch Arden" Than He Expected.

THE GIRL HE FOUGHT FOR

You can readily believe that Mr. Soldier, when he returned from abroad, where he had been getting $1 a day and poison gas, is a little surprised to find his dear friend Miss Liberty sitting on the bench with old Mr. Prohibition.

The soldier, during the war, was told that he was going to make the world safe for democracy. Whether he did that or not he isn't quite sure, but he is QUITE sure that he didn't make his job safe or his comfort in the future.

It never dawned upon him that while he was away Liberty would be dragged down from her pedestal by old Mr. Prohibition and married to old Mr. Prohibition without giving him, Mr. Soldier, a chance to express an opinion or TO VOTE.

When the French Revolution chopped off the head of Mme. Roland her last remark was "Liberty, what crimes have been committed in thy name!" The soldier admits that he isn't very good at coining fine phrases. If you tried to find one to suit this picture you couldn't print it in a family newspaper, probably.

The extraordinary thing is that the 3,000,000 young men sent abroad to settle Europe's quarrels, and cheated by prohibition while they were away, are not able to do anything about it now that they are back.

They pass resolutions in gatherings of their Legion. But the fanatics of prohibition control the country, intimidate the law makers, and all the soldier can do is TO BE SURPRISED. There is not much comfort in that.

Then next time there is a war it probably won't be so easy to persuade 3,000,000 Americans that they ought to go over and fight as though it were their own war.

And the next time any collection of fanatics talk about running the country they will probably hear something from those that would like the right to live and enjoy life and freedom from bootleg whisky in their own way.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"Any French boy of 18 that you talk to—not a student necessarily but a garage mechanic or a business man—can talk about reparations or the economic situation in Europe," she declares. "They have thought about it. They don't think it's the bunk. They have an opinion, one way or the other."

But our youngsters "can only wise crack"—talk nothing but football and the "oh, yeah?" line of patter . . . have no interest in world politics or national affairs . . . have absolutely no serious discussion . . . in short, are "beautiful, inarticulate young idiots . . . 12 YEARS OLD PERMANENTLY."

Plenty mad were our young hopefuls when they read that. Plenty mad, too, were their doting mammas. But here's one mother who isn't. For nearly 30 years I have had young people in my home. For half that time I have conducted newspaper departments and clubs for young people. During the summer my camp is filled with young people. They're grand! I'm for them a million. Yet I think Miss Ferber is right. Barring certain exceptional individuals and groups—usually to be found among our poorer people—THE AMERICAN YOUNG PERSON IS GORGEOUS BUT GA-GA.

But the youngsters themselves are not to blame. Potentially, they're as intelligent as any on earth . . . eager, enthusiastic, inquisitive, with flexible, challenging minds. Great stuff in our kids! But they have no chance to show their stuff. And the fault lies in the home . . . IN THE MAMMA MANAGED HOMES OF AMERICA.

The European boy is brought up by men. A man dictates the policies of his home . . . a man teaches him in school. He lives in a male environment, by male standards which are based on very grim reality. And the girl, though usually taught by women, is trained by those same standards.

The American boy is brought up by women, both in the home and school. His environment, until he leaves High School, is almost exclusively female. When and if he goes to college he is still in contact with Mamma's home and is taught by professors, most of whom were Mammas' Darlings in their own time and are still figuratively sitting at the maternal knee.

No slam intended. It's a nice knee. But knee-sitting is NOT conducive to broad, intellectual progress. And, to be brutally frank, broad, intellectual progress plays small part in Mamma's program.

The American woman is an amazing person. She is warm, witty, good natured, generous, resourceful, efficient, courageous and indomitable in getting her own way. She has more virility in her little finger than her average husband has in his whole body. And because she is all these things, she practically runs the American show. She entirely runs the American home and school.

Which would be perfectly dandy, only, unfortunately, although she has all the other virtues, MA IS NOT A HEAVY THINKER.

There are many brilliant exceptions, but the average American mother rarely reads anything save romantic novels and magazines . . . skips everything in the newspapers except the murders, scandals and sob columns . . . never goes to lectures . . . "can't understand politics" . . . is bored to tears by serious discussions. And why, indeed, should she concern herself with these tiresome matters when she gets such a big hand without the effort?

"Ma's all right!" say pa and the kids—AND THE POLITICIANS. And Ma never vetoes that vote.

Ma's all right, and the home she creates is all right, if you prefer a female world. Ma's home reflects all she is and likes, and rigorously excludes all she isn't and doesn't like. It's a pretty, gay, comfortable, friendly place, that average American home—BUT INTELLECTUALLY IT'S AN ARID WASTE. You will hear plenty of pleasant talk about clothes, cooking and kids, bridge, brides and baseball—but of the problems which are wrenching the human race asunder, nary a yeep! For the American Matriarchy does not believe, nor admit, that there are any important problems outside those with which it so triumphantly copes. Nor does it consider that there is any human race, worth noticing, outside the U. S. A. Ask mamma what she thinks about the tariff or the gold standard and she'll tell you to stop fussing. God's safe in His 100 per cent American heaven and all's well with the world, s'long as Jim keeps his job. Miss Ferber says that the American youngster is "12 years old, permanently." Why? That's why.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Glimpses at 'The Other Half'

To a man, a decade is just 10 years—but to a woman, it is the gulf between youth and henna.

* * *

The average girl has no more regard for a wife's proprietary rights in her husband than the average laundry has for buttons—or the personal ownership of handkerchiefs.

* * *

For most women, after 40, happiness consists largely in being satisfied with the "substitutes"—coffee-kisses, "dress-circle" seats, gigolos or the vicarious thrills of a screen-lover's caresses.

When a man runs away from temptation in his 20s, it is pretty safe to predict that, somewhere in his late 40s he'll be hanging back waiting for temptation to catch up with him.

* * *

Being in love is just being "on the same wire." But there never yet lived a man who didn't think he could carelessly "cut the wire"—and then come back and turn on the current whenever the notion seized him.

* * *

* * *

A man can never be absolutely contented in this world. As soon as he ceases to be tempted by forbidden women or forbidden pleasures, he begins to be tempted by forbidden foods and drinks; as soon as he stops worrying about his heart and emotions, he begins worrying about his rheumatism, his top-hair and his waistline.

Looks as though it will take more than a Eugenie hat and a bustle to make an ante-bellum lady out of a post-war Amazon.

Reno is full of those who have flunked in the School of Experience and are applying for another card of admission.

Isn't It So?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Thoughts while strolling: Fay Marbe has the blackest tan of the year. The tall Luigi Rothschild, who sports a monocle so jauntily. Just what color is Hope Hampton's hair? John Anderson and George Jean Nathan, the critics, could pose for the collar ads.

I always feel suddenly poor when I see a uniformed butler. Earl Benham in his usual hurry. They say Conrad Nagel was once bald. No one can look so depressingly solemn as Theodore Dreiser. But Jack Wheeler runs him a close race. Bill Guard's blackthorn cane.

Frank Case, a Buffalo, N. Y., boy, who made good in the city. Monta Bell and Gary Cooper walk alike. Sightseeing char-a-bancs for Chinatown have top-hatted decoys at night. And a movie barker using a megaphone splattered with silver dust. Mrs. Will Hays' peach-blown complexion.

Hurdy gurdies grinding out "Meet the Mrs." already. Laurence Stallings shoots dice for exercise. Cigar store sign: "Come back prosperity. All is forgiven." Motor car beggars now open doors and brusquely demand alms. And slam doors if they don't get it.

And I would, too, if hungry. You'd never recognize Harpo Marx off stage. A Broadway type—hennaed lady in vivid green, cheap jewelry and back-stage talk. And in constant touch with shyster lawyers. Bright-eyed Queenie Smith—the newest Rialto toast.

Whatever became of Charles Purcell? And Paul Frawley? And some other handsome juveniles of a few years ago. Nobody has dreamier eyes than Ruby Keeler. And Gladys Glad remains the season's most beautiful show girl. Norman Anthony, whose crack weekly—started with $500—now sells more than a million.

Daddy Browning eats a plate of celery before each meal. Fulton Oursler is an amateur ventriloquist. Has dummies in his office and practices in leisure moments. The New Yorker with the most intriguing name—Foxhall Keene. Eighth avenue window sign: "Men's dress shirts for a dime during sale only." Quit pushing!

* * *

When Mayor Walker was a guest of American newspapermen in Paris he shucked official dignity, sat at the piano and played favorite tunes and otherwise indulged high jinks even to joining lustily in the Arthur Moss version of the old song thusly:

Yeast Side, Wet Side,
Mulrooney's in swimming at Coney,
Brooklyn cops are falling down,
Jean Norris and Mickey O'Rourke,
Sam Hofstadter's getting sarcastic on
The Sidewalks of New York.

F. P. A. in the Herald-Tribune: "And saw that Mr. McIntyre said 'George S. Kauffman just stuck the 'S.' for swank which is unt[r]ue. S. being not for swank but Simon, nor do I know why Mr. McIntyre stuck in the extra 't' in George's surname.'"

* * *

All over town little Ragged Dicks, of the Horatio Alger period, are showing up with shine boxes to bestow the nickel polish. The dime shine is out like a light. So much so big barber shops have reduced rag flicking forces by more than half.

Briefiets: George Jessel follows his closest friend Eddie Cantor with a series for the Saturday Evening Post on toast-mastering. And "The Good Companions" is the best English importation since Charlot's Revue.

SCIENTIFIC GENIUS

By Archibald Henderson

There is a juvenile conception of genius which presumes that great ideas and revolutionary theories just happen to people because they are geniuses. Behind every epochal idea, every transforming hypothesis, lies a long train of thought, usually not by one thinker alone, but by many thinkers. It is frequently the business of the genius to integrate, to put together into a coherent whole, apparently disconnected ideas and theories worked out by others. It is the genius who can divine the underlying connection, the fundamental unity, of these ideas, and reveal their relationship to each other.

Great thoughts, profound ideas, come only after long reflection and intensive contemplation. The scientist, by hard work, confers a genuine service upon mankind. The taking of pains is by no means all of genius; but it is certainly an initial and indispensable requirement. Carlyle is usually misquoted. What he actually said is: Genius is the capacity for taking pains, first of all. You cannot get anywhere unless you are willing to dig, to work, to think long and hard. Jacobi, who has been called the greatest mathematical teacher of his generation, knew how to make the very best use of his time. "It must not be supposed," he observed, "that it is to a gift of Nature that I owe such mathematical power as I possess. No, it has come by hard work. Not mere industry, but brain-splitting thinking-hard work. Hard work that has often endangered my health."

In his stimulating work, Discovery, Sir Richard Gregory cites the striking illustration of the indefatigable and unself-seeking Simon Newcomb, American astronomer. Some years ago the leading astronomers in the United States were asked to set down in order of preference the names of living Americans who had contributed most to the progress of astronomy. The name which headed all the lists was that of Simon Newcomb, yet he made no discovery in astronomy to which the periodical press would give prominence. Far greater, however, than the observation of a new star, planet, or comet was the exceedingly laborious computations made and directed by Newcomb to enable the positions of the sun, moon, planets and some of the fixed stars to be predicted with greater accuracy than had hitherto been the case. This was the work which gave him the first place in the esteem of men who were best able to judge its value to astronomical science.

To be a successful votary of Nature, one must constantly worship at her shrine. Patient observation and persistent inquiry are requisite to the production of valuable results. For every fruitful idea which Faraday evolved, he probably rejected a dozen. As he himself has said, the world little knows how many of the thoughts and theories which have passed through the mind of a scientific investigator have been crushed in silence and secrecy by his own severe criticism and adverse examinations; that in the most successful instances not a tenth of the suggestions, the hopes, the wishes, the preliminary conclusions have been realized.
